GOVERNOR BANS TAX INCREASE AS FISCAL CURE

Any New Levy Must Be Substitute.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Gov. Emmerson said emphatically last night that he would not approve the creation of new forms of taxation by the approaching special session of the general assembly if such levies would increase the burden of taxation.

"If special taxes are to be established," he said, "they must not be additional taxes, but must replace other taxes already in existence. The citizens may rest assured that there will be no legislation enacted into law that will increase the burden of taxation."

For example, if a state income tax were imposed it would replace the state distributive school tax now in force. This would mean definite relief for real estate.

Session May Open Next Week.

The governor arrived in Chicago for a two day visit that will have him back in Springfield tomorrow morning. He hopes, it was concluded by an interviewer, to issue the call for the special session that same day. And his remarks all led to a belief that the session will open next week, probably on Tuesday.

The revenue commission created four months ago to devise ways and means of meeting the financial problems of Chicago, Cook county, and other local governments will meet in the Stevens hotel at 10 o'clock this morning to receive the program prepared by an executive committee of eleven members headed by Joseph K. Brittain. It is believed the plenary session will approve the report. If that action is taken the report will be in the governor's hands so that he will be able to issue his call tomorrow.

Ready to Issue Call.

"I am informed," said the governor, "that the revenue commission's task is about finished. If the program warrants it I will call the legislature into session.

"I know only in the most casual way what the program proposes. I have refused at all times to give advice concerning the commission's conclusions and I have heard of its work only informally through talking to some of its individual members.

"There were two purposes in the creation of the commission. The first was that of devising ways and means of meeting the crisis in the financial affairs of the local taxing bodies within Cook county. The other was to make a start toward more permanent revenue reform.

"As I said, I do not know the specific proposals agreed upon; but I do know that I, as governor, am not going to approve any legislation that will add to the total tax burden."

Long Notice Not Needed.

"It will be unnecessary to give any lengthy notice to the legislators. They all expect the call and, since this is the same body that met in regular session last spring, it can go to work the moment it convenes. The moment Speaker Shanahan drops the gavel in the house and Lieut. Gov. Sterling drops his in the senate, bills can be introduced, can be referred to committee, can be heard in the committee of the whole, or can be advanced."

Discussing estimates that the session may run five weeks, Gov. Emmerson said that apparently its work could be completed in less time than that if the members agree to work four or five days a week—from Monday through Friday—instead of the two or three days a week averaged during a regular session.

Expects Support for Speed.

He said he felt the downstaters who, although not seeking legislation for their own districts, will be more willing to bear the expense of this speedy program than they will to stand the cost of a greater number of trips to Springfield.

The governor said he would bar from the call most of the miscellaneous subjects he had been asked to include in it.

"I want to see this emergency program considered on its merits and without complications," he said, "and I trust it will be considered on a nonpartisan and a nonfactional basis."

Members of the Brittain subcommittee continued to refuse to discuss the specific proposals of the program they have approved, but two points of importance were disclosed during the day. One of these was the fact that the report will not recommend an amusement tax as had been supposed. The other was that, while accurate estimates are difficult if not impossible, experts have calculated that the income tax scale proposed will bring in about $30,000,000 a year.

TEACHERS, LONG UNPAID, TO GET CHECKS TODAY

Today is pay day for the 18,000 school employés in Chicago. Their September pay checks, representing the first cash they have had since May 1, were mailed last night from the offices of the board of education.

CHARLES GILBERT.

The pay day was made possible by the transfer of $4,650,000 in city funds to the school board coffers, approved yesterday morning at a special meeting of the city council, and ratified within a few hours by the school trustees.

Charles E. Gilbert, secretary of the school board, immediately delivered to City Controller Szymczak interim certificates as evidence of the board's debt to the city, and the money was transferred in the office of City Treasurer Kearns to the credit of the schools.

Give Out Checks Today.

The checks mailed last night will be distributed to teachers and other employés in the schools this morning. At the same time pay checks will be distributed in the downtown offices of the school board. All employés will get a month's pay.

City employés also benefited by the council action, since the ordinance passed by the council authorizing the advance to the school board also empowered city officials to place tax warrants in the city's aggregate of funds to cover withdrawal of sufficient funds to meet all city pay rolls for a month.

The total tax warrant purchases authorized were $9,660,000, divided as follows: School board, $4,650,000; municipal tuberculosis sanitarium, $220,000; public library, $110,000; firemen's pension fund, $330,000; city corporate fund, $4,350,000. Employés at the tuberculosis sanitarium and the library will get a month's overdue pay today as a result of the action.

Warrant Purchases Increased.

The warrant purchases were increased $910,000 over the total specified in the ordinance when it was approved on Wednesday by the council finance committee. Of that sum $900,000 extra went to the city corporate fund and $10,000 to the public library.

The corporate fund tax warrants will pay 2½ per cent interest, and all the others 4 per cent, but it was provided by the council that the interest on the warrants should be raised to 6 per cent if it becomes possible to sell the warrants to the public. The school board agreed to this in so far as its tax warrants are concerned.

The council approved the transfer of funds after listening to a severe arraignment by Mayor Cermak of the holdover majority in the board of education. The mayor addressed a long communication to the council, urging the pay roll relief plan, but demanding that the board of education fall in line with his economy campaign.

Refers to School Scrip.

Mayor Cermak pointed out that he and Controller Szymczak had signed the board of education tax warrants, on which the board based its scrip plan, under protest, after making the assertion that the scrip plan would

TRIBUNE PRINTS FIRST PHOTOS OF LINDY'S ACCIDENT

From far-off Shanghai there arrived in Chicago yesterday a set of photographs showing how Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh were thrown into the Yangtze river at Hankow the morning of Oct. 2 when their plane capsized, how they were rescued and how the plane was saved.

When the Lindbergs climbed into the cockpit of their plane that morning, prepared to continue their air survey in the Hankow flood area, the officers and petty officers of H. M. S. Hermes, the British airplane carrier, were ranged along the ship's deck with cameras poised, to get pictures of the take-off.

The plane was lowered from the Hermes deck by a crane. Just as it touched the surface of the Yangtze the current seized it and thrust it backward. The colonel "gave her the gun" and the plane shot forward. Ordinarily the crane would have released the ship as soon as it began to pull, but this time the crane jammed.

The wing nearest the Hermes dipped and slapped into the water and the plane nosed over.

Edmund J. G. MacKinnon, R. N., commander of the Hermes, was worried about those pictures.

But Col. Lindbergh said: "They can be sold, but I don't want the money and you don't want it. Why not let them go to the highest bidder and use the money to endow a bed in the Shanghai hospital for the soldiers and sailors of all nations? If that plan has your approval I'm willing to have you do it." Agents of the Wide World Photo Service brought the pictures, two of which are published on the back page of this issue.

Ford Cuts His Minimum Pay Scale to $6

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—The Ford Motor company late today issued a statement confirming rumors its basic pay had been revised from $7 to $6 a day.

HENRY FORD.

The statement follows:

"The Ford Motor company has not changed its standard wage rate or abandoned its basic wage principle. Its wages remain the highest in the automotive industry.

"The minimum wage now in effect is that paid by the company throughout the so-called 'prosperity' period from 1919 to 1929. When the depression came President Hoover called upon industry to counteract as far as possible the downward tendency.

Cost Company $35,176,101.

"The Ford Motor company as its contribution to the betterment of conditions added an emergency dollar to its wage, thus increasing its minimum from $6 to $7 a day. This was done Dec. 1, 1929. Proportionate increases were made to every employé in every plant.

"During the 22 months this emergency rate was in operation the increased wage has cost the company $35,176,101, or an average of $1,600,000 a month. Total pay rolls for the 22 months amounted to $297,442,837. Under the system of automatic raises in pay which has been in operation at the Ford shops, the 'depression dollar,' as the 1929 increase was called, assumed large proportions.

Drop Probationary Rule.

"The shops three weeks ago returned to the $6 a day minimum for ordinary labor, grading upward in the more skilled jobs.

"The probationary rule by which a man is hired at $5 a day has been abandoned. In all cases of newly hired men at ordinary shop labor the minimum $6 rate will apply at once. Hiring in, under present schedules, ranges from 75 cents to $1 an hour, according to grade of employment."

Killed in One Story Fall Down Loop Elevator Shaft

Robert J. Montgomery, 52 years old, 1701 North Mason avenue, a clerk, was killed last night when he fell one flight in an elevator shaft in the building at 165 West Lake street.

FLAMING AUTO IN LONELY ROAD; SCENT MURDER

A sedan, stolen earlier and suspected by police of having been used in a murder, was set afire and burned by an armed man early this morning in a little-frequented road near the Oak Hills Golf club, 131st street and 80th avenue.

The flaming automobile attracted half a dozen motorists to the scene. Their curiosity was dampened by an unidentified man who stood guard with gun in hand and refused to allow any one to approach too close to the car. Willow Springs county highway police were notified, but by the time Policemen Jacob Leppin and Arthur Kerinchin arrived the gunman had disappeared. He escaped in another car, witnesses said.

Investigators asserted the car might have been employed in a murder and had been destroyed to conceal clews. A search was begun in adjoining fields for a body. Police traced the license on the car to Samuel Cohen, 1507 South Kominsky avenue, and learned he had reported his car stolen from in front of the Marbro theater, 4124 Madison street, several hours earlier.

SOME OF 6 BURIED IN MINE 7 DAYS STILL ARE ALIVE

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Assurance that some of the six men entombed following a gas explosion and coal slide in Mocanaqua mine of the West End Coal company last Saturday night are alive was announced tonight by company officials who declared that rescue squads had received an exchange of signals through the fallen coal.

Continuing the process which has been maintained since Saturday night opinion was expressed that probable location of the men might be reached in a few hours.

The tappings are said to have been heard first about 9:30 p. m. They came over an iron pipe which was driven through a coal fall which was encountered when rescue workers had completed penetration of one of the solid coal masses.

Seize "Peeping Tom" at North Side Girl's Window

John Becker, 30 years old, a casual, was arrested early this morning as an alleged Peeping Tom. A Town Hall police squad, summoned by a telephone call, found him standing on an impromptu platform near the bedroom window of Miss Florence Rogers, 514 Cornelia avenue. Becker tried to run, but was halted by several warning shots. Miss Rogers signed a complaint against him charging disorderly conduct.

Survey Shows Trade Scoring Gradual Gains

New York, Oct. 29.—[Special.]—The bottom of the industrial depression has been reached and recovery, slow in general but quite active in numerous instances is under way, according to the annual trade survey of the National Association of Manufacturers, made public today by J. Lewis Benton, general secretary of the association, at the thirty-sixth annual meeting held here.

Mayors, city managers, chairmen of regional and city employment stabilization councils and individual directors of plants plans—ten in all—described various programs for unemployment relief at the second annual conference on methods of relieving and preventing unemployment, held in conjunction with the meeting.

Study Employment Problems.

The entire day was devoted to the problem of employment stabilization and relief and the employment relations committee of the association made a comprehensive report with recommendations for standardizing unemployment emergency relief funds.

John E. Edgerton, president of the association, struck the keynote of the meeting when he declared that if "voluntary action on the part of the most responsible" industrialists and others is not taken the government would keep on trying to solve the problem "however big a mess it may make of the job."

The annual trade survey, which is a report of present conditions, covered 800 replies received up to Oct. 24 to a questionnaire sent out on Oct. 15 to shops and factories ranging from automobiles to textiles.

Inventories at Low Ebb.

Among the factors which it was regarded indicated that the bottom of the depression had been passed were the following:

1. Inventories are at the lowest point they have been in years, some of the plants being completely cleared of products, giving strong evidence that as soon as general buying is resumed, these plants will be compelled to increase forces and push at top speed to hold their markets. Low and depleted stocks are reported by 44 per cent of the companies, as against 26 per cent last year; normal by 48 per cent, as against 57 per cent last year, and only 8 per cent report overstocks, as against 17 per cent last year.

Wages Hold Own or Gain.

2. Wages, on the one side, and production, sales and factory prices on the other, show significantly. In 54 per cent of the companies reporting, wages have held their own or have been slightly bettered. In the 46 per cent which have been compelled to reduce, the general average reduction has been about 15 per cent. Decreased production is reported by 73 per cent, decreased sales by 75 per cent, and decreased prices by 70 per cent, and these various decreases strike a general average of approximately 40 per cent, or nearly three times that of the wage reductions.

3. Employment shows a slight improvement over this time last year. 5 per cent of the reporting companies having increased their forces, as against only 3 per cent last year; 31 per cent having held their same personnels as against 29 per cent last year, and 64 per cent having reduced forces as against 68 per cent last year.

4. Better business than last fall was noted by 8 per cent of the companies as against 5 per cent last year; 18 per cent have held the same business as against 14 per cent last year, and 74 per cent report lower business as against 80 per cent last year.

BRANDS ATTACK ON HIS ECONOMY POLICIES FALSE

Plans a Commission to Investigate.

Naval Holiday

The United States, in a communication to the league of nations, pledges a one year naval construction holiday, provided other nations go on record at Geneva to halt armament building. (Story on page 2.)

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—President Hoover tonight blew the lid off the current naval economy controversy with an announcement that he will shortly appoint a special committee to investigate charges leveled against him by William Howard Gardiner, president of the Navy league, who last night gave out a statement blistering the President's naval construction policies.

Upon completion of this inquiry, which the President said would show the Gardiner article was filled with "untruths" and misstatements, Mr. Hoover asserted he would "expect a public apology" from the Navy league chief executive.

The article which aroused the ire of the President and prompted the special White House inquiry charged that Mr. Hoover had made every possible effort during his administration "to restrict, reduce, and to starve the United States navy," under the guise of national economy.

Calls It Abysmal Ignorance.

Mr. Gardiner accused the commander in chief of America's armed forces with "abysmal ignorance" of the reasons why navies are maintained and the means used to accomplish their major mission. He climaxed his charges with the assertion that the President, through application of his naval policy, "was not only controlling our internal naval policy but dictating its external subordination to those of foreign naval powers."

Through his action today the President threw the national spotlight sharply upon the "row" that has been raging between elements of the navy and the Navy league on the one hand and the White House and Chairman Will R. Wood [Rep., Ind.] of the house appropriations committee on the other over the advisability of making further slashes of navy personnel and ships in the name of economy.

The President's statement as well as its bluntness of expression took official Washington by surprise. Much comment was occasioned throughout official circles and especially among naval officers over the President's inclusion of a statement that he felt it was "desirable for the public to know the character of the indirect campaign of misinformation to defeat the efforts of high officials and the navy department for reduction of federal expenditures."

Limit Committee's Inquiry.

While the President in his statement tended to limit the special committee's investigation to the Navy league's activities there were the strongest indications tonight that the inquiry will have far reaching ramifications. Before it is concluded, it was predicted tonight that congressional committees will go into the whole question of the President's navy economy moves, his row with the navy department resulting from his orders that $61,000,000 be slashed from the 1932 budget estimates for operating the naval establishment.

The action of the President in announcing that he would appoint a committee was taken as indication he intended to go to the country for approval of his navy slashing program. Chairman Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.] of the house naval committee said tonight that congressional committees will see that naval officers will have an opportunity to present their side of the case before the country when congress convenes.

Gardiner Asks Congress Quiz.

Considerable surprise was occasioned by the wording of the President's statement which found the Navy league guilty of making "misstatements" before the investigating committee had been appointed. This view was taken by Mr. Gardiner, who expressed surprise that the President himself intended to appoint the special committee to investigate a matter of executive policy.

"An investigation by congress would seem to be the normal procedure,"

Mr. Gardiner said. "I would welcome an impartial inquiry under congressional auspices. I will be able to substantiate any statements in the articles sent out by the Navy league under my name."

Here's President's Statement.

That the darts shot by Mr. Gardiner found a tender spot immediately was evidenced by the first paragraph of the President's statement. The statement follows:

"The Navy league states in its announcements that it has 'for a quarter of a century specialized in accurate information as to navy matters,' and 'the principal activity of the league is to disseminate facts bearing on navy matters to the press.'

"In order that the country may know the untruth and distortions of fact in Chairman Gardiner's recent pronouncement I will appoint a committee, including members of the Navy league, to whom agencies of the government will demonstrate these untruths and distortions of facts. Such inquiry will absolve the members of the league who have not participated in this statement. Upon its completion I shall expect Mr. Gardiner to make a public correction of his misstatements and an apology therefor.

"It is desirable for the public to know the character of this indirect campaign of misinformation to defeat the efforts of the high officials of the navy department and the administration for reduction of federal expenditure not immediately essential in order that we may avoid increased taxation of the people in these times."

Civilians Compose Navy League.

As a first move in the approaching inquiry, Ernest Lee Jahncke, assistant secretary of the navy, today investigated the question of whether any naval officers belong to the Navy league. He found that while at one time many officers belonged to the league, in late years the organization has confined its membership largely to civilians.

For several months the league in its statements has attacked the Hoover administration economy policies as inimical to the best interests of the nation. The league fought the action of President Hoover in agreeing to limit the number of 8 inch gun cruisers for the United States at the London naval conference. It attacked the London naval treaty and in recent weeks it has aroused the wrath of White House officials by openly scoring the administration's advocacy of a naval building holiday such as the United States agreed to today.

Kills 130 Million Ship Bill.

The action of the league in printing an article showing it would cost one billion to build up to parity with Great Britain now due to past neglect of the navy occasioned White House comment some weeks ago. Shortly after this article was printed newspapers printed stories to the effect that Mr. Hoover had killed the navy's plans for obtaining congressional approval of a 130 million dollar new warship construction bill. This was followed by a White House attack against naval officers. Shortly afterward Chairman Wood stood in the White House executive offices and charged certain naval officers with circulating "pure damn lies" in an attempt to defeat the Hoover economy program. Mr. Wood said at the time that the President felt much as he did about it.

Chairman Britten assailed all efforts toward navy economy which would impair efficiency. "With Manchuria aflame and the whole world sitting on a volcano this is no time for naval economy," he said.

Gardiner a Retired Engineer.

Mr. Gardiner, who serves as Navy league president without pay, is a retired business man, having been at one time a partner of Henry L. Doherty in managing and financing public utilities in New York. He is a chemist and an electrical and traction engineer, having taken a degree from Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He retired from business in 1914. The league has at present about 4,000 members, all of them civilians. Under the league's constitution, members of the navy are eligible for membership but not for office in the organization. At the present time, however, no officers on the navy active list belong to the league. Any American citizen is eligible to belong to the league.

MR. FOX HELD ON DRY CHARGE, BUT WINS HIS $1 BET

When prohibition agents, after considerable labor, finally succeeded in breaking down a steel door at the end of a passageway beneath 711 West 42d street yesterday they found William Fox, a rotund gentleman, convulsed with laughter. He was sitting on a cot, a jug in one hand, a watch in the other. Near him were other jugs, a few bottles, and numerous crocks, all filled with intoxicating liquor, according to the agents. Mr. Fox had not recovered from his mirth when taken before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker.

"What's the joke?" asked Assistant United States District Attorney Alfred W. Bosworth. Then, in a sterner voice, "My good man, do you realize you're charged with violating the prohibition law?"

"Ho, ho, ho," Mr. Fox responded. The commissioner frowned and entered an order holding Fox to the grand jury in bonds of $2,000. Mr. Fox laughed some more. Asked again the reason for his hilarity, he finally subsided and explained. "I bet a friend of mine a dollar that it would take those prohibition fellows more than a half an hour to break down my door, and I won," he giggled.

HOOVER MESSAGE TO BE READ AT MEETING TODAY

When the Chicago regional White House conference on child welfare and protection opens today at the Palmer house, one of the first events of the day's program will be the reading of President Hoover's message, received yesterday by William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, who is chairman of the conference.

Although 2,500 teachers, social workers, medical men, and club women are to attend the two day conference, the public also has been invited to the sessions, which start at 9:15 o'clock this morning.

HOOVER PLEDGES NAVAL HOLIDAY FOR ONE YEAR

U. S. to Halt Shipbuilding if Other Nations Do.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—The United States tonight forwarded to the league of nations a formal communication committing this government to observance of a one year armament construction truce beginning Nov. 1. During the holiday period army and navy construction now under way will go forward, but no new warship keels are to be laid down other than possibly for replacements.

The new holiday arrangement will go into effect when and if the other major powers go on record at Geneva as agreeing not to take any steps during the next year which would have the effect of increasing their armaments above their current level. All powers willing to observe the truce are expected to have their replies in the hands of league officials by not later than Saturday night.

Study Various Proposals.

The American communication was dispatched in compliance with a request made by the armaments truce committee of the league of nations which spent several weeks during the summer and fall in studying various proposals for bringing about a naval construction holiday during the period when the league's arms limitation conference is in session at Geneva. The parley which is scheduled to discuss reductions in both world armies and navies and their equipment is to begin Feb. 2.

The truce in new arms construction to which the United States has agreed was suggested by Dino Grandi, foreign minister of Italy, under circumstances which indicated the move had been inspired by the United States. The Grandi proposal that all governments "refrain from any measure involving an increase in their armaments" during the year of the Geneva conference was made before the league arms truce committee. The committee accepted this proposal and on its recommendation the assembly of the league urged the powers to state before Nov. 1 whether they were prepared to accept the truce in armaments.

The text of the American note has not been made public. It is known that it pledges this country not to lay down any new warships which would increase the tonnage level of the American fleet. Seven 8-inch gun cruisers, one aircraft carrier, three submarines and five destroyers, now building, will not be affected by the truce.

May Construct Six Destroyers.

While it is understood that the holiday provisions do not forbid the laying down of replacements for old ships during the next year, all indications today were that the United States will not take advantage of this loophole to lay down such new destroyers and submarines as go over London treaty age before Nov. 1, 1932. The possibility exists that construction may be started on six destroyers, which would be building today had not the White House intervened to postpone the awarding of construction contracts.

According to officials in close touch with the administration's limitation of armaments activities there is nothing in the truce agreement to prevent the United States from adopting a new warship construction program during the coming session of congress and appropriating funds for beginning construction work as soon as the holiday ends next November.

It was pointed out in this connection today that as funds in the 1932 budget will not be available under normal circumstances before July 1, 1933, the laying down of new cruiser and aircraft carrier construction would be delayed by five months by the truce, if the administration recommended passage of enabling legislation this winter.

Freeze Existing Armies.

While the immediate effect of the truce would be to freeze existing armies and navies at their present built and building levels for the duration of the agreement, different interpretations placed on the provisions of the holiday may allow some nations to forge ahead.

As the holiday truce communication reads, opportunity will be afforded adequate navy men in the house and senate to push new warship authorization legislation without being accused of violating a solemn compact entered into by President Hoover. Chairman Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.], of the house naval committee is pledged to introduce a half billion dollar authorization bill.

Tank Construction To Go On.

The truce will postpone the day when this country can close the gap existing between American and British and Japanese fleets.

Army tanks and aircraft probably will be the only army materials affected by American participation in a one year arms construction holiday. The army will complete seven new unarmored light Christie combat tanks this fall and winter. Estimates now before the budget director provide for construction of five new armored tanks, equipped for actual fighting with armor plates. Whether these tanks will be able to weather the arms holiday and the Hoover economy program seems doubtful.

CZECH FOREIGN CHIEF CHARGES NATIONS ARE FAKING ARMS REPORTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PRAGUE, Czecho-Slovakia, Oct. 29.—Eduard Benes, Czech foreign minister, once a leading candidate for the presidency of the forthcoming international disarmament conference, today charged that several nations are giving false and misleading data concerning their armaments in reports filed with the league of nations. The United States was the first nation to deposit data on armaments at Geneva, and others followed later.

"It is known that some countries are giving false, incorrect data on their armaments, while others are secretly arming," Benes said. "The latter nations are doing it by false budgets. They list expenditures for arms and other military equipment under a nonmilitary heading."

Benes, who is counted upon by Paris to swing central Europe behind her at the conference, revealed small hope of accomplishing any disarmament of tangible value at this meeting

FORMER PALATINE BANK PRESIDENT INDICTED BY U.S.

Ralph L. Peck Denies Embezzlement Charge.

Ralph L. Peck, 57 year old Chicago attorney and former president of the First National bank of Palatine, was brought before Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley yesterday, where it was revealed that he was indicted by the last grand jury for alleged embezzlement of $29,655.50 in bank funds. He was released on his own recognizance until arraignment.

Mr. Peck was for twenty-five years village attorney of Palatine. He denied at his home last night that he is guilty of the charge, asserting that it grew from disagreements with the board of directors. Actually, he said, the bank owes him $15,000. He helped organize the institution, he said, and was its president for twelve years, resigning a year ago.

U. S. Reveals Charges.

According to Assistant United States Attorney Owen A. West, the bank directorate learned of the alleged defalcation and forced Peck's resignation. The indictment charges that he converted to his own use funds which reached the bank as payments on outstanding loans.

The first affirmed theft took place on Dec. 18, 1928, the grand jury was told, and the remainder was taken at intervals until Sept. 17, 1929.

Peck Denies Charges.

"That is not true," said Mr. Peck. "I got out because I didn't like the way loans were being made at the bank. I didn't swindle any one. My work and my reputation here in Palatine are an open book. While I was village attorney I was responsible for more than $1,000,000 worth of village improvements."

Mr. Peck now has law offices at 100 West Monroe street. He is a graduate of the University of Chicago law school, a member of the Hamilton club, is married, and has two sons. He told Judge Lindley that he could not raise the $5,000 bond set by the grand jury, but that he had no intention of failing to face the charges against him. The court, accordingly, allowed him liberty on his word.

Illegal Operation Case Against Doctor Delayed

The case against Dr. Henry J. Millstone, 724 East Marquette road, who is charged with performing an illegal operation, was continued until Oct. 29 by Judge Leon Edelman in the South Chicago court yesterday. Mary Foley, 18 years old, 6725 Cornell avenue, upon whom the operation is alleged to have been performed, is still in the hospital, and Assistant State's Attorney William R. Crowe asked for a delay.

WIVES HEAR FROM 2 MISSING MEN; BOTH ARE SAFE

Two west suburbanites who left their homes suddenly and for whom police search had been asked, reported by telegraph and long distance telephone yesterday that all was well.

They are William M. Carpenter, 37 years old, of 702 Hill street, Glen Ellyn, an insurance collector, and Lenox Roberts, 27, of 320 Clinton avenue, Oak Park, a junior accountant for the Chicago Clearing House association.

Carpenter disappeared on Wednesday and his abandoned car was found that night in an Oak Park alley. For a time it was feared he had been harmed, but this fear ended last night when he telephoned to his wife from St. Paul. He said he had suffered from amnesia. Roberts was last seen Monday when he started for work. He telegraphed to his wife from Red Bank, N. J., this message: "I'm coming home."

CAPONE MAY GO TO PRISON SOON; BAIL HOPE FADES

Raiders Find His Hotel Camp Deserted.

Al Capone in the next few days may voluntarily leave his comfortable quarters in the county jail and depart for Leavenworth penitentiary, where he can get credit on his eleven year prison sentence for income tax evasion.

Attorney Michael Ahern emerged from a three hour conference with Capone in his hospital ward at the jail yesterday with "no statement to make," but it was stated on good authority that he told the gangster there was no hope for bail.

Mr. Ahern is reported to have said that Judge James H. Wilkerson's denunciation of the Capone gang, delivered in sentencing Capone's bodyguard, Philip D'Andrea, to six months in jail for contempt, had blasted whatever hope the defense had of getting bail from the United States Supreme court.

Up to Supreme Court.

On Tuesday Mr. Ahern told the United States Circuit Court of Appeals that in the event he failed to convince Justice Van Devanter of the supreme court that Capone should be freed on bail he might request the vacation of the supersedeas granted by the Appellate court to stay Capone's removal to prison. He told the court that Capone would not wish to stay in the county jail without receiving credit toward his sentence.

Federal prosecutors, in view of Judge Wilkerson's denunciation of the Capone gang as "a menace to the administration of justice," said they doubted that Mr. Ahern would even apply to Justice Van Devanter.

Police Raid Capone Camp.

A squad of detectives under Acting Deputy Chief Walter Storms, sent out by Detective Chief William Schoemaker, raided the "outlaw camp" of the Capone gang in the Lexington hotel yesterday. The headquarters of the mob, the third and fourth floors of the hotel, were found deserted save for Capone's chef, dishwasher and Negro bus boy.

There has been no secret about the gang's headquarters in the Lexington, the matter having figured prominently in Capone's trial, and the police have visited the place regularly. But yesterday's raid was made with a view of telling the gang to get out, according to Chief Schoemaker.

Learn Little from Cook.

The "outlaw camp," described by Judge Wilkerson the day before, had changed, all of Capone's retainers having opportunely fled, and the kitchen force was in charge of the furnishings. The police questioned the chef, James Arcadi, and the dishwasher, Dominick Autilitano, about the affairs of the gang and ascertained that Capone is very fond of spaghetti with cheese. The manager of the hotel told the police that the whole gang had departed in great haste and to an uncertain destination the night before.

The raiding party found that Capone had installed his own range stove and electric refrigerator, together with other kitchen equipment suitable for a regimental headquarters. The police believe he did this for fear of being poisoned. Five radios of the console type were found in the rooms, one of them set for the low wave length police orders, and the furniture in Capone's bedroom was of period design.

After the raid was all over Chief Schoemaker said: "We've got Capone on the run."

Serritella Visits Chief.

Yesterday was visiting day on Capone's floor at the jail, the fifth. The visitors included Dan Serritella, state senator and former city sealer; William Facelli, alderman of the Twentieth ward, and Harry Hochstein, former deputy city sealer.

All denied that they had seen Capone, said they had visited other friends, but the records of the jail read otherwise.

Assistant United States Attorney Jacob Grossman yesterday announced that Judge Wilkerson had turned over the deputy Municipal court bailiff's star worn by D'Andrea to an emissary of Bailiff Albert Horan.

An inquest yesterday in the death of Matt Kolb, beer racketeer, who was shot to death in the Club Morton, a roadhouse he owned in Morton Grove, was continued to Nov. 4 at the request of Lieut. Frank Donoghue of the coroner's office. Robert Lotz, a bartender, and Paul Polenski, a doorman at the club, testified that they would be unable to identify the killers.

DOG SAVES BABY'S LIFE

HOWARD JENSEN AND ARKO.

Pulled from Water

Howard Jensen, 15 months old, was left to play yesterday afternoon in the basement of the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Anna Berkson, 2917 East 96th street. He was alone except for a German police dog, Arko.

Toddling about on his unsteady little legs, Howard came to a tubful of water. He fell in head first. Arko went in after him. How long it took the animal to accomplish his purpose of dragging the infant out of the water no one knows. Perhaps five minutes, perhaps ten.

But when the excited barking of the big dog attracted the attention of the grandmother little Howard, dragged out and lying on the floor, was unconscious, but alive. A hurried call to the fire department brought Rescue squad No. 2, which revived the boy after fifteen minutes' work. Last night Howard was happy in his crib and Rescuer Arko was parked at his side.

BELL IS FOUND SANE; TO DIE IN CHAIR NOV. 27

Jury Decides Slayer's Fate in 10 Minutes.

Frank Bell, 31 years old, condemned slayer, was found sane by a jury yesterday in the Criminal court of Judge George Fred Rush. He was sentenced to die in the electric chair on Nov. 27, the day after Thanksgiving, for the murder of Chris Patras, north side restaurant proprietor, in a holdup.

Deliberating only ten minutes, the jury found Bell sane on the first ballot. The defendants unshaven and disheveled, was apparently unmoved at the reading of the verdict. But as a special guard of ten bailiffs led him, heavily manacled, from the courtroom, he screamed and kicked at them.

Guard Against Another Attack.

The unusual number of bailiffs was assigned to guard Bell following his attack with his fists on Assistant State's Attorneys Ross Lee Laird and Walker Butler during the insanity hearing on Wednesday.

After Judge Rush had set the execution date yesterday, Defense Attorney Stanley Doyle made a motion for new trial. This was denied. A motion for an arrest of judgment was also denied. Attorney Doyle indicated he might file a bill of exceptions with the Illinois Supreme court within the next two or three weeks.

State Uses Defense Evidence.

The state closed its case without placing any witnesses on the stand. Since Dr. Francis Gerty, prosecution alienist, and Dr. Charles Murphy, defense alienist, both called to the witness stand by the defense, had testified that Bell was sane, the prosecutors said it would be unnecessary to offer further proof. In his closing argument Assistant State's Attorney Butler asserted that the defense had proved the state's case.

Bell was convicted with Richard Sullivan for the slaying of Patras. Sullivan, bitter at his one-time bandit pal because Bell had exposed a jail break plot, died in the electric chair on Oct. 16 believing that Bell had preceded him. Bell was saved by an insanity petition a few hours before his execution was to take place.

EDISON LEAVES 2 YOUNGER SONS MOST OF ESTATE

Value of Industries Put at 7 to 10 Millions.

BY TOM PETTEY.

New York, Oct. 29.—[Special.]—The bulk of the estate of Thomas A. Edison was left to his two younger sons, Charles and Theodore M. Edison, it was revealed when his will was filed for probate in Newark today. No estimate of the value of the estate was made in the will, but it was learned that the Edison Industries, Inc., in which the inventor had centered his holdings, had an estimated worth of between $7,000,000 and $10,000,000. The nineteen acre Edison home in Llewellyn Park, East Orange, valued at $190,000, was given to Mrs. Edison a short time before Mr. Edison became ill.

Included in the unofficial estimate of the value of the estate is the plant and equipment of Edison Industries, which was valued at $4,114,428 in 1930, against $3,791,378 in 1929.

There were no bequests to charitable or religious organizations, the residuary estate, with three minor exceptions, being left to the two sons in trust, for them as executors to divide among the six children when and as "it shall be deemed judicious."

Children by Second Wife.

The other four children are Mrs. Marion Oser, Thomas A. Edison Jr., and William L. Edison, the inventor's children by his first wife, and Mrs. Madeleine Sloan, who, like Charles and Theodore, are children of his second wife.

There was no indication in the will nor from members of the family that the four children who received small shares in the estate had previously been taken care of. At the time of Mr. Edison's death a week ago there were rumors that the will would be contested by the children of his first wife if they did not share equally, but no confirmation was obtained.

3 Employés Get $28,000.

The will stated that Mrs. Edison had been provided for by gifts previous to his death and otherwise. Three employés received a total of $28,000—$8,000 to Frederick P. Ott, $10,000 to John F. Ott, and $10,000 to William H. Meadowcraft, Mr. Edison's secretary for 50 years. John F. Ott died of shock the day the inventor died.

The will was dated Feb. 1, 1926, and the codicil, drawn after a reorganization of Mr. Edison's assets, was dated last July 30.

Share in Capital Stock.

The two favored sons share alike in all the capital stock of Edison Industries, Inc., and share as tenants in common in the land and premises known as Edison laboratories. He also gives to Charles and Theodore all of his shares of the capital stock of the Edison Portland Cement company and all the income debenture bonds issued by the Edison Portland Cement company.

The 1930 financial statement on Edison Industries showed a surplus of $7,000,000 for the corporation. The entire stock of the organization is owned by the Edison family.

Codicil Changes Provisions.

Under his will the capital stock, bonds, and promissory notes of the Edison Portland Cement company were to be divided by the same brothers, but under the codicil this was changed as follows:

"To Mrs. Marion Estelle Oser, Thomas A. Jr., William L. and Madeleine Sloan [wife of Matthew S. Sloan, president of New York Edison company], 5 per cent each; to Charles and Theodore, 40 per cent each.

The trust fund for all of the children is to consist of all of the estate's United States, railroad and first mortgage bonds, the value of which was not indicated. Listed among the assets of the Edison Industries, however, was Liberty bonds worth $3,453,113.

Walker Shown to Share Bank Safety Box with Sherwood

New York, Oct. 29. — [Special.] — Mayor James J. Walker was added today to the list of those in Tammany who possess "tin boxes."

The mayor's tin box, it was disclosed by testimony before the Hofstadter legislative committee, is in the vaults of the Chase Safe Deposit company. And according to the company's records, he shares it with Russell T. Sherwood, whom Samuel Seabury, counsel of the committee, has characterized as the "business and financial agent" of the mayor.

Sherwood, who has been wanted as a witness by the committee for three months, was served with a subpoena last week in Mexico City. The testimony connecting him with Mayor Walker, given by Edward S. Lubbers and Frank J. Mooney of the safe deposit company, was offered by Mr. Seabury in preparation for application to Justice Glennon of the Supreme court to declare Sherwood in contempt of the committee and to have him fined with a view of attaching any property he may have in New York state.

Party Division Seen.

At the request of Mr. Seabury, the committee, by a party vote of 5 to 3, authorized him to proceed with the contempt action. The Democratic members, led by Senator John J. McNaboe and Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, not only opposed the resolution but made repeated objection to the admission of the testimony of the two safe deposit company officials. They charged that the Republican majority on the committee was seeking to pry into Mayor Walker's private affairs for partisan propaganda.

The testimony of Lubbers and Mooney, supported by records, showed that Sherwood and Mayor Walker rented a safe deposit box on Nov. 18, 1924, a little less than a year before Walker first was elected mayor. The original record was "Russell T. Sherwood or James J. Walker," and the rental was $7.50 a year.

The records showed that on July 2, 1930, Sherwood and the mayor took a larger box at a rental of $20 a year. In the contract for the rent of the box, signed by Sherwood and Walker, and by Mr. Mooney and Mr. Lubbers as witnesses, acknowledgment is made of the receipt of three safe keys and two tin box keys.

Deputy Appointed Oct. 2.

Another fact of some significance brought out at the hearing was the disclosure that Fred C. Harris had been appointed a "deputy," presumably of Sherwood, on Oct. 2, and as such now had access to the safe deposit box, this appointment having been made about the time or soon after Sherwood left for Mexico.

Mr. Seabury asserted that a man named Harris had called Mr. Sherwood by telephone in Mexico City and afterward communicated with Mayor Walker.

Fred C. Harris, secretary of the Manhattan company, declined to discuss the matter.

The disclosure of the safe deposit box with the two tin box keys caused much amusement among those who recalled the "wonderful tin box" of Sheriff Thomas M. Farley, the reluctantly admitted tin box of John Theofel, Queens Democratic leader, and the tin boxes of others whose bank deposits were alleged to exceed their salaries.

KEEP YOUR ARMY OUT OF CHINA! JAPAN TO RUSSIA

Soviets Deny Giving Aid to Nanking Troops.

MOSCOW, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Reports that soviet Russia was lending military aid to the Chinese in Manchuria were laid before the soviet government by Japan today and were promptly denied. In calling the soviet government's attention to the rumors Japan declared that if soviet troops were sent into the Chinese Eastern railway zone Japan would be compelled to "adopt necessary measures for the protection of its residents and the railway line."

of so-called protection does not coincide with the interests of general peace."

Envoy Presents Protest.

The Japanese protest was presented to the Russian foreign office by Ambassador Hirota, who said there was "great danger that the sphere of conflict may widen." He cited "various rumors circulated in Manchuria" and quoted Gen. Ma of the Chinese forces at Tsitsihar as saying that an agreement exists under which he receives military airplanes, anti-aircraft guns, and aviators from the soviet union.

Gen. Ma consulted with an officer of the Red army at Sakhalin in mid-October, the ambassador added, and also charged that there were soviet instructors in the Chinese general's army.

The Japanese statement also referred to reports that a Chinese army in the Khelutsyan district, on the northern bank of the Honkho river, was receiving guns from the soviet union. Three hundred freight cars, it said, were being concentrated on the western lines of the Chinese Eastern railway near Tsitsihar.

Troops Massed at Border.

According to Gen. Ma, it added, soviet troops numbering between 20,000 and 30,000 were being concentrated near the soviet station of Dauri, near the border, with from 600 to 700 freight cars, with the intention of sending them to Manchuria.

Gen. Ma had made it clear that the Chinese armies were sufficient protection for the Chinese Eastern railway, and he had requested that the soviet troops be sent into the interior, the Japanese said they were informed.

"In case soviet armies are sent to the Chinese Eastern railway zone," the ambassador continued, "the atmosphere will be made worse and the situation will become acute, and the Japanese government will be compelled, for the sake of protecting its residents and the railway line of Taonan-Tsitsihar, which was constructed with Japanese money, to adopt necessary measures for protection. Thus there is a great danger that the sphere of conflict may widen."

Acting Foreign Commissar Karakhan replied, on behalf of the soviet government, that the Japanese statements were based on inventions.

There were no soviet instructors among the troops at Tsitsihar or in any other Manchurian province, he said, nor were any arms or ammunition being sent or had been received by these troops from Russia. He pledged that the government was not giving any assistance to either of the struggling factions in that area.

Chinese Bandits Loot Towns.

TOKIO, Oct. 29.—(AP)—The situation in North Manchuria is threatening to become serious owing to the increased activities of bandits and gypsy groups of soldiers who, vernacular newspapers here report, are endangering railroad property in which Japanese have an interest.

Bandits looted several small towns between the Saupingkai and Taonan in the last few days, and last night clashed with the Japanese garrison near Yikoushu. The Rengo News agency reported 100 Chinese, one Japanese captain, and two Japanese soldiers were killed.

A vernacular report, for which the war office here has no confirmation, says the Russians have sent three armored trains containing 500 men to the region of Tsitsihar to protect the line of the Chinese Eastern railroad, jointly owned by China and Russia.

The South Manchurian railway, Japanese enterprise, is sending a group of engineers and workers with a military escort near Tsitsihar, where the Russians are said to have sent their armored trains, to repair railroad bridges between Taonan and Tsitsihar damaged during the fighting between the armies of Wan and Chang.

War Lord Flies to Nanking.

NANKING, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Chang Hsueh-Liang, governor of Manchuria under the Chinese Nationalist régime who was forced out of his domain by the recent Japanese occupation, arrived here today by airplane from Peiping. Chang began consultations immediately with Chiang Kai-shek, Chinese president, regarding Manchuria and the proposed reorganization of the Nanking régime.

Dictator Pilsudski Quits Trip; Returns to Poland

WARSAW, Poland, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Marshal Joseph Pilsudski, Poland's dictator, surprised the capital today by returning home unannounced after abandoning a trip which took him as far as Rumania, where he suffered an attack of influenza.

James Cagney, actor of gangster rôles in the movies, stopped in Chicago for a few hours yesterday en route from Hollwood to Milwaukee. "The skids have been put under them at last and the public no longer cares to see them portrayed on the screen."

COURT CONTINUES CHARGES AGAINST GOLD COAST CLUB

The Gold Coast club, 19 Cedar street, gambling emporium of Ben "Welsher" Marden, will continue to receive, each night, what might be compared in law with a traffic arrest slip. Policemen will serve summons on the club, charging violation of the municipal code requiring places of amusement and restaurants to have licenses.

This was decided yesterday in the court of Judge John Sbarbaro, before whom Charles Bowman, secretary of the club, appeared on charges of twelve such violations. The judge continued the charges until Nov. 4 after Attorney Morris Kaplin, counsel for the club, asked time to prepare a formal brief.

Capt. Gregory Moran, under whose stern orders the club has continued to operate while his men serve the nightly arrest slips, asked Judge Sbarbaro if he should continue to serve them, and the judge advised him to do so. Capt. Moran late yesterday delivered a report on the case to Commissioner Allman, informing the commissioner, perhaps to his great surprise, that the captain was serving notices at the club nightly.

CAPONE GIFT IN JAIL ONLY $10, DEFENDANT SAYS

William Dawson, 1918 Central street, Evanston, who was reported to have been given $100 by Al Capone in the county jail to pay his fine, was dismissed on charges of disorderly conduct yesterday by Justice of the Peace James Corcoran of Evanston. Dawson, who was arrested a week ago in Evanston when he was found intoxicated, was taken to the county jail pending his appearance in court when he was unable to give bond.

"Capone gave me only $10," Dawson said in court, "and I was glad to get it."

Justice Corcoran held that his incarceration was sufficient punishment and dismissed him with a warning.

Just as there's a difference in flavor and texture of fresh grapefruit, there's a difference in canned grapefruit. Seald-Sweet is as rich as wine—slightly sweetened—and 'tis said all the tonic health properties are preserved just as you find them in fresh grapefruit. Have on hand when you want to prepare fruit cup, fruit salad or for quick breakfasts or desserts.

Do you know that grapefruit becomes alkaline in the system—not acid, as many believe? That's why it is said to help ward off colds—for to create an alkaline condition in the human body is to create a condition unfavorable to germs that cause colds. Many health authorities advise grapefruit in some form twice a day. Why not drink the juice at breakfast? Combine with tomato juice as an appetizer for dinner. These large cans hold about 4 orange glasses of juice.

M'DONALD CALLS ON KING; BEGINS PICKING CABINET

New Government to Have Twenty Members.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 29.—J. Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister and virtual dictator of Great Britain, lost no time today in getting down to work after his National government's overwhelming victory at the polls—a victory greater than any in British history.

Up at 7 a. m., he took a walk with his daughter, Ishbel, and at 9 a. m. left his official residence at No. 10 Downing street to visit King George. He remained at Buckingham palace nearly an hour discussing the national

Mr. MacDonald, though in good physical health, is over 65 years of age. He has already indicated the broad outlines of his plans for solving the many problems now vexing Great Britain.

On his return to Downing street he began a series of conferences with his governmental colleagues. The chief topic was the choice of cabinet members who will help to put England's economic house in order.

Plans Cabinet of 20 Members.

The emergency cabinet, organized after the formation of the National government, consisted of 10 members. This number, considered sufficient in a crisis, is believed to be too small for regular procedure, as it fails to supply enough members for the various cabinet committees appointed to study special problems. It is understood, therefore, that the prime minister intends to organize a cabinet of about 20 members.

The most important and most urgent problem is a successor for Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, who will enter the house of lords. It is generally believed that he will remain in the cabinet as lord privy seal.

Neville Chamberlain is considered to be the prime minister's choice for the chancellorship. There is also a report that Sir Walter Runciman, banker and ship owner, may be selected. Sir Walter, though a Liberal, favors a moderate tariff, and his appointment might be better received than that of a high tariff advocate such as Mr. Chamberlain.

Baldwin to Keep Post.

Stanley Baldwin, leader of the Conservative party, will continue as lord president of the council, it is unofficially stated, thus enabling him to assist Mr. MacDonald in the leadership of the house of commons. It is expected that Sir Samuel Hoare, Conservative, will remain secretary of state for India, and that Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, also a Tory, will continue as president of the board of trade. A cabinet post is also scheduled for Sir John Simon, leader of the National Liberals.

Arthur Henderson, the defeated Labor chieftain, returned to London today.

"Labor will come into its own again—perhaps in the near future," he declared.

With four more constituencies reporting their election figures today, the party standing in a total of 611 out of 615 seats was Conservatives, 472; National Labor, 13; National Liberals, 66; Labor, 50; Lloyd George Liberals, 5, and independents, 5.

Urge Economic Parley.

Mr. MacDonald will be forced to turn his attention to foreign and intra-empire affairs immediately. Already two premiers, R. B. Bennett of Canada, and G. W. Forbes of New Zealand, have sent him messages urging an immediate imperial economic conference. Canada wants the parley to be held at Ottawa. The request for the conference is said to be due to the fear that a protective tariff may be placed too high for the dominions to hurdle even with an inter-empire preference. He is also being pressed to make some gesture towards America which might involve a trip to Washington to confer with President Hoover on war debts and reparations, which question he is bound, by his election promises, to raise.

It is expected Mr. MacDonald will leave for Lossiemouth, Scotland, within a few days to take a rest.

It is not expected that he will make any public pronouncement of the government's policy before the lord mayor's banquet in London on Nov. 9. It is the custom for prime ministers to disclose their policies there.

CAMPAIGN ENDS NIGHT PARKING ON BOULEVARDS

The enforcement of the Lincoln park ordinance against all night parking in Sheridan road and other streets under the park jurisdiction has resulted in an almost complete abandonment of the practice, Capt. James U. Sammis, head of the park police, said yesterday.

The park police, Capt. Sammis said, give three warnings. If the last warning is not heeded the automobile is towed away and a court summons is given to the car owner. The campaign was begun three months ago after property owners complained that they could not reach their homes because of the parked cars.

Ashland, O., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Dr. I. R. Suter, dentist of Ashland and Mansfield, was held today on charges of attempting to extort $1,000 from T. W. Miller, chairman of the board of the Faultless Rubber company, whose son he threatened to kidnap in letters to Mrs. Miller, police declared.

GANDHI SAD MAN; LABOR'S DEFEAT PUTS HIM IN HOLE

Sees Chances for India's Freedom Slipping.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Indian leaders in London are greatly depressed over the result of the British general election because they fear they will receive less consideration from a strong national government than was expected from a weak Labor administration.

There has always been a close connection between Indian revolutionary leaders and left wing Laborites. There also exists a strong Socialist or even communist element in Mahatma Gandhi's All-India congress party. Now that Great Britain is in the hands of "an unassailable national government," the Indians, it is stated, realize they must negotiate each step on its merits and that the opportunity for squeezing out independence through the aid of British allies has disappeared.

Gandhi today admitted he is disappointed. He has asked for an appointment with Prime Minister MacDonald tomorrow or Saturday, when he will ask for a clear statement as to how far the British government is prepared to go toward giving India independence.

The government's attitude, it is understood, is that there is no intention of going back on anything which has been offered at the two round table conferences, but the government is also making it quite clear that it considers its duty to protect the land owners' class in India, both Indian and British, against communism, which it fears if the India congress party wins control.

Gandhi will be told very plainly what he can have in the line of self-government. He will also be told to take it or leave it. If he takes it, the plans will be worked out in cooperation with him. If he leaves it, they will be worked out without him. He has been talking of starting his civil disobedience campaign again, but the British believe that such a movement, once stopped, cannot be started again.

WINNIE R. JUDD READY TO FACE JURY IN PHŒNIX

Drops Extradition Fight; Has New Counsel.

BULLETIN.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 29.—(Special.)—Arizona officers left with Mrs. Judd for Phoenix by automobile late tonight.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Mrs. Winnie R. Judd changed counsel again in court today. She retained Paul Schenck, Los Angeles, who immediately announced that his client would waive extradition. Phoenix, Ariz., officers then announced that they would take Mrs. Judd to Phoenix at once to stand trial on the charge that she murdered Agnes Le Roi and Hedvig Samuelson Oct. 17 and shipped their bodies here in trunks.

WINNIE RUTH JUDD.

Louis Russell, who had been retained by Mrs. Judd after her first attorneys had been discharged, came to court to represent her at a hearing on a habeas corpus writ. Schenck, however, arose and announced that he was the accused woman's new attorney.

Schenck declared he had agreed to withdraw all legal actions designed to delay extradition in return for the promise of as long an interview with his client as he deemed necessary before officers left with her for Phoenix.

Trip by Auto Planned.

Sheriff J. R. McFadden of Phoenix indicated that Mrs. Judd would be taken to the Arizona city by automobile with two other police officers and a police matron and that the party would start as soon as Schenck completed his interview with his client.

A second murder warrant, charging Mrs. Judd with the murder of Miss Samuelson, will be served as soon as the prisoner is on Arizona soil, officers announced.

From Phoenix came word today that new evidence had been uncovered which tended to contradict Mrs. Judd's story that she had murdered the two women unaided.

Automobile May Be Clew.

Neighbors of the slain women told officers that late on the same night a large black sedan entered the driveway of the Le Roi-Samuelson home. Officers are attempting to trace ownership of the car and to learn whether it may have contained an accomplice.

Dr. William C. Judd, the woman's husband, was arraigned before Municipal Judge Harold Landreth here today and pleaded not guilty to a charge of practicing medicine without a California license.

RAILROAD FINED IN SCALE SUIT.

The Chicago Great Western railroad was fined $25 yesterday by Municipal Judge Sbarbaro on a charge that it has not paid its scale inspection fees for a four years. Attorneys for the railroad said they would appeal. They contend the interstate commerce acts exempt the railroad from such a tax.

WENDEL WILL IS ATTACKED AS UNAUTHORIZED

New York, Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Miss Ella Virginia Von E. Wendel had no more to do with the will by which she left nearly all of the $75,000,000 Wendel estate to charitable institutions than "the man in the moon," Samuel Untermyer charged in federal court before Judge Julian W. Mack today.

Mr. Untermyer appeared as counsel for Miss Rosa Dew Stansbury, 74 years old, of Vicksburg, Miss., alleged to be the next of kin to Miss Wendel, as well as others claiming kinship to the last of the wealthy Wendels. The court action was a motion to enjoin the filing of the will for probate.

U. S. COURT TAKES DRY AGENTS WHO SHOT BYSTANDER

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—The state of Michigan today lost its fight to try Clarence Fish and Walter Wesolowski, United States customs border patrol men, in a state court for the shooting of Arthur Gajeski last July.

An order signed by Federal Judge Charles C. Simons, commanding change of venue to federal court, was granted by Circuit Judge Guy A. Miller.

The two agents, members of the river patrol force of Col. Heinrich A. Pickert, collector of customs, are charged with reckless use of firearms and felonious assault upon Gajeski. Gajeski was a member of a church party on board the excursion steamer Ste. Claire when bullets from the guns of Fish and Wesolowski, sent after a suspected rum runner, sprayed the deck, endangering hundreds of merry-makers.

The trial was to have started tomorrow in state court, but now will be delayed until the federal calendar is made up.

Assistant County Prosecutor George S. Fitzgerald, in charge of the investigation of the case, said:

"The federal government wants to try its own agents in its own court, to be sure of a good whitewashing job."

Fitzgerald enjoys a strange relationship to the case. Before joining the county legal staff he was assistant United States attorney in charge of defending all dry shooting cases. Now he is prosecuting one of the most flagrant gun cases on the Detroit border in the last several years.

MAJ. GEN. BUTLER DOUBTS CAPONE WILL SERVE TERM

Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, United States Marine corps, retired, passed through Chicago yesterday, silent on Mussolini, the world situation, politics and cleaning up Chicago, but skeptical about the likelihood of putting Al Capone in the penitentiary.

"I have great admiration for Judge Wilkerson and for the twelve men on the jury, who found Capone guilty," said the stormy ex-Marine officer, who six years ago attempted to clean up Philadelphia and admitted failure. "But Capone is not in the penitentiary. I won't say anything about him until they get him there. And I have my doubts about that, for our judicial system is pretty cumbersome."

Gen. Butler, whose criticism of Mussolini as an alleged hit and run driver brought a reprimand for himself and a state apology to Mussolini, was en route to Danville, a stop on his country-wide lecture tour.

Jury Refuses Damages for Plane Crash Killing Ten

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 29.—(AP)—A jury trying eight damage suits for a total of $775,000 growing out of an airplane crash Jan. 1, 1930, in which Kenneth Hawks, film director, and nine others were killed, late today returned a verdict for the defendants. The actions were brought against the Tanner Air Livery and James Grainger, Inc., owners of two airplanes which collided and fell in flames 2,000 feet into the Pacific ocean off Palos Verdes, killing all the occupants. The ships were being used in filming a motion picture.

AUTO STICKERS FOR AIR SHOW ON SALE TODAY

Assure Parking Place for Charity Event.

Windshield stickers for automobiles entering Grant park, where the charity air show will be held the afternoon of Sunday, Nov. 8, will go on sale this morning at 9 o'clock at three TRIBUNE public service offices and in the lobby of The Tribune Tower.

The public is urged by the committee on arrangements to purchase these stickers in advance of the show in order to facilitate the movement of traffic. The stickers will be $2 each, and only one sticker will be required on each automobile. Pedestrians will be charged 50 cents each at the various gates to the park.

On Sale at Four Places.

These stickers may be purchased at the public service office at 1 South Dearborn street, 4152 West Madison street, and 1101 East 63d street, as well as at the information desk in the lobby of The Tribune Tower.

A meeting of traffic experts will be held today at which a plan is to be evolved for the movement of traffic. Different entrances to Grant park will be set aside for separate types of traffic—some for automobiles bearing stickers and some for automobiles without stickers. The cars with stickers will receive preferred parking space, due to the greater facility with which they will be moved into the area.

While arrangements for the charity air show were under way in Chicago yesterday Maj. R. W. Schroeder began the organization of airports in Chicagoland to care for the many visiting planes expected to attend the event. Maj. Schroeder found the airports anxious to cooperate with the plan and ready to throw all their facilities open to the use of the famous pilots who have announced their intention of participating.

Bayles Tunes Up Plane.

Lowell R. Bayles, who surpassed both the American and world land plane speed records at the National Air races in Cleveland two months ago, wired from Springfield, Mass., that he is tuning up his Gee Bee supersportster racer, powered by a Wasp motor, in preparation for his visit to Chicago.

Several companies owning autogiro planes have been requested to send them to the charity air show, and the presence of at least two of the "windmill" machines is virtually assured.

E. M. [Matty] Laird, builder of racing planes, announced he would fly one of his own fast creations during the show.

NEW AIR RECORD

Maj. James H. Doolittle broke another speed record yesterday by flying his Laird 400 racer from St. Louis to Chicago in 1 hour and 11 minutes, nineteen minutes less than the previous record, held by Capt. Frank M. Hawks. The distance is 260 miles. Maj. Doolittle left his plane at the E. M. Laird Airplane company factory for an overhauling.

Passengers carried over the lines of Kohler Aviation corporation, operating between Milwaukee and Detroit, increased 47 per cent in September over the same month last year. The August gain was 38 per cent over the corresponding month last year. The increase since Jan. 1 has been more than 300 per cent. The passengers totaled more than 7,000. Three new Keystone amphibions have been added to the line's equipment.

MEXICAN HERE TO PLAN 1933 FAIR EXHIBIT

Participation of the Mexican government in the World's Fair of 1933 was assured last night when Carlos Contreras, noted Mexican architect and chief of the governmental bureau of architecture arrived to select the site for the Mexican buildings and to outline plans for his country's exhibits.

"While it is impossible to state exactly the nature of our exhibition before I have conferred with the fair officials," Mr. Contreras said, "I can say the buildings will be of modern design and the exhibitions will show the culture, resources, and life of Mexico both of today and before the conquest. Native hardwood panels, frescoes by Mexican artists, ebony doors and like exhibits will probably feature the displays."

Today Mr. Contreras will be the guest at a luncheon in the administration building on the fair site. Following the luncheon a site will be selected and the exhibition discussed. Mr. Contreras was met last night by Charles S. Peterson, vice president of the fair, and Maj. L. R. Lohr, manager.

"SLEEPER" AIR LINERS SOON TO BEGIN SERVICE

Coast Planes to Be First with Berths.

The first overnight air transportation with sleeping accommodations for passengers is to be inaugurated in about two months, operating between Chicago and Los Angeles, according to H. G. McCarroll, Detroit experimental engineer.

Mr. McCarroll said the line, to be operated by a railroad, will be equipped with four Fokker F-32 planes, the largest land plane built in the United States, which are now being rebuilt at the General Motors corporation plant near New York. He brought a privately owned F-32 to Chicago on Wednesday for demonstration purposes and will leave with the plane today.

The four F-32s being rebuilt will have sixteen berths, he said, instead of the usual thirty chairs for daytime travelers. The planes will have a top speed of 151 miles an hour, a cruising speed of 124 miles an hour and a landing speed of 55 miles an hour. They are of the full cantilever wing type and are powered by four 575 horsepower Hornet motors.

The four F-32s will be operated on a 19 hour schedule, one leaving both Los Angeles and Chicago each afternoon. Dinner and breakfast will be served on board the air liners. When they first board the plane passengers will have regulation seats, which will form part of the berths when they retire.

Two railroads with headquarters in Chicago are negotiating with the General Motors corporation, which owns the planes, for the service, Mr. McCarroll said. The fare to be charged will approximate the $125 fare charged on railroads between Chicago and Los Angeles, including lower berth and extra fare. The time spent in travel, 19 hours, would be about one-third the time spent on a train, 56 hours. The fastest air line transportation between Chicago and Los Angeles at present is 22½ hours, and it involves changing planes, which will not be necessary on the F-32s.

The giant Fokkers will make two stops en route to and returning from the Pacific coast, at Kansas City, Mo., and at Albuquerque, N. M. They are capable of flying as high as 17,000 feet, in order to clear the mountains. Two similar planes have been operated on the Transcontinental and Western Air Line between Los Angeles and San Francisco for the last eighteen months as day passenger carriers.

Mr. McCarroll declared no part-way passengers will be carried on the new line, but all will be through passengers. There will be no rail connections at any point along the route.

The F-32 now visiting Chicago is housed in the Century Air Lines hangar at the Chicago airport. It was flown from Detroit by William N. DeWald, chief pilot for General Motors corporation. The plane will make several trips over Chicago today

SEIZE THREE IN RAID ON UNION AFTER BOMBING

Shop Owner Tells of Getting Threat.

In the investigation of an early morning bombing Chief Investigator Pat Roche yesterday conducted a raid on the headquarters of the Retail Clerks' union, 431 South Dearborn street. Harry Winnick, 6444 North Oakley avenue, business agent of the union; his brother, Lester, who said his home is in Glen, Mich., and Sidney Alden, 5043 Kenmore avenue, a member of the union who is now on strike, were arrested.

PAT ROCHE.

The haberdashery store of Jack Fagman, 3451 West Roosevelt road, was bombed early yesterday. Damage to the building was estimated at $400 and Fagman said there was a merchandise damage of $500 to $600.

Owner Tells of Threat.

"Three weeks ago Harry Winnick told me he would move my place out into the street if I didn't close every night at 6 o'clock," Fagman told Roche. "It was nearly moved into the street this morning."

Fagman said he employs no clerks or assistants and consequently has had no dealings with the union on matters of employment. But other haberdashers who have union employes have been ordered to close at 6 o'clock. Fagman said he had defied Winnick.

Roche said charges of malicious mischief would be placed against Winnick.

Bomb Routs Six Families.

A black powder bomb, set off last evening in the rear door of James Weinberg's restaurant at 1055 Fulton street, caused damage estimated at $200 to the building. Members of six families, all colored, who live on the upper floors, fled from their homes after the blast but soon returned.

The police advanced a theory that the bomb may have been intended for a speakeasy at 1051 Fulton street,, which was conducted by a man named Harry Johnson, according to Weinberg. This place was entered and the police found evidence that the occupants had fled a short time before. Several cases of beer on ice were seized.

Another bomb, placed in the doorway of the roming house of Mrs. Fanny O'Brien at 608 West Adams street, was discovered last night by a roomer, who called in Policeman Dennis Shalloo of the Desplaines street station. Shalloo extinguished the fuse before its flame could reach the five sticks of dynamite which made up the bomb. Residents of the building said they knew of no reason for the attempted bombing.

Will Channell, union motion picture operator who had served a prison sentence for the murder of Mrs. Pattie Kauffman, mother of Julian ["Potatoes"] Kauffman, was released from police custody yesterday after witnesses to moving picture theater bombings had failed to identify him. He was also viewed by witnesses to the murder of Jacob Kaufpman, an operator who was not in harmony with union officials, but they failed to recognize him.

Two small dairies in Joliet were bombed early yesterday. The owners said they had refused to conform with milk wagon drivers' union rules that no milk be delivered before 7 o'clock in the morning. The dairies were owned by Leo Lamping and L. B. Anderson, who continued to deliver milk on the summer schedule. The police questioned Virgil Floyd, who admitted having remonstrated with Lamping, but denied knowledge of the bombings.

FRANCE HONORS CHICAGOAN

Hutchins of University of Chicago; Miss Dorcas Perrenoud, founder of French house at university, who received the decoration of "Palmes d'Academiques"; Edmond Meyer, French vice consul, and M. Awarded Decoration

Henri Bougeaurel, acting French consul in Chicago, yesterday conferred on Mlle. Dorcas Perrenoud of the University of Chicago the "palmes academiques," a decoration awarded by the department of education in France. Mlle. Perrenoud has been in charge for many years of the French house at 5810 Woodlawn avenue, where French only is spoken. M. Bougeaurel announced also that the French government has made a gift of 50,000 francs to the university to be used as the authorities see fit, the only condition being that the sum be expended in making the French language better known.

Robbers Get $1,064 in Two Holdups of Storekeepers

Bandits obtained $1,064 in two robberies in the Austin police district last night. From Louis Dubnow two men stole $574 as he was about to close his butcher shop at 3217 Division street. A short time later two robbers, believed to be the same who held up Dubnow, halted Angelo Fantozzi, 1637 Wrightwood avenue, at Division street and Central Park avenue and stole $490, the ay's dreceipts from his grocery store.

WOMAN DIES AFTER FALL.

Mrs. Mary Ellen Holmes, 82 years old, died yesterday in St. Bernard's hospital as a result of a hip fracture suffered on Oct. 23 when she fell in her home at 7726 South Green street.

U. S. AGENTS SEIZE LARGE BREWERY IN NILES CENTER

Prohibition agents raided a large brewery last night in Niles Center and seized $25,000 worth of equipment which they believe had just been placed in operation.

They found nine 3,000 gallon fermenting tanks, seven of them full of mash, and twenty-six barrels of finished beer, apparently the first product of the brewery. The place was deserted when they arrived. A tunnel leading out of the building, evidently intended for an emergency exit, was only half finished.

The brewery was located in a new garage, built on the rear of a lot at 9226 Ewing avenue, Niles Center. Agents from the office of Deputy Administrator A. E. Hamilton made the raid.

GREEN OUTLINES NINE STEPS FOR PROVIDING JOBS

Sees Seven Million Idle by January 1.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, declared today that there will be some 7,000,000 persons out of work by Jan. 1 if the ranks of the unemployed continue to increase at the present rate of two-tenths of 1 per cent a month. According to figures issued by Mr. Green, 19.2 per cent of the federation's membership was out of work in August, 19.4 per cent in September, and 19.6 per cent in October.

Unemployment, according to Mr. Green, is most serious in Detroit, Baltimore, Chicago, Cleveland, Philadelphia, Jersey City, Buffalo, New York, and Los Angeles, in the order named. In each of these cities, he said, more than 25 per cent of potential wage earners are out of work.

Once more shortened hours of work were pointed out as one of the principal solutions for unemployment.

The recommendation for shorter hours was one of nine recommendations put forward by the federation. Th nine are:

1. Maintain wages so that workers' buying power will be kept up and the demand for goods sustained and employment will not fall to lower levels.
2. Shorter work hours so that available work may be divided among all workers.
3. Assure employment to minimum work forces from November to April.
4. Each employer to take on additional workers.
5. Create work through public undertakings.
6. Strengthen employment agencies.
7. Keep young persons in school to avoid their competing for jobs.
8. Give preference to workers with dependents.
9. Secure financial relief from public and private funds to take care of those for whom no work can be found.

Of the more than 2,000 boys and girls enrolled in Farragut Junior High school, 2336 South Spaulding avenue, quite a few are even worse off than Walter K——, whose father is trying to support a family of nine persons on his meager wage of $17.60 per week. Miss Alice Leech, vocational adviser, mentioned the K—— boys yesterday as examples of the conditions existing at the school.

"Walter and his brother, John, are 14 and 13 years old, respectively," Miss Leech explained, "but they are so undernourished that they are being taken out of school to be sent to Arden Shore for special attention. Both boys are extremely small for their ages. Their father works eight hours a day and five days a week for a railroad, however, so they are comparatively better off than a good many families in this section.

Father Sells Dining Set.

"Then there is Adele S——, whose father told me only yesterday that though he used to have a good job and make good wages, he had just sold his dining set of seven pieces, for which he paid more than $100, for $15, to settle one month's rent. Adele always has a smile for every one, although she is showing marked effects of undernourishment.

"There are also the six children in Genevieve's family, with only a sixteen year old girl, earning $10 a week, as breadwinner. Both parents are out of work. Genevieve came to us from an open window room of another school, indicating that all her life she has been undernourished."

Case after case similar to these was cited by Miss Leech, including one of seven children and their parents, now living on $9 weekly loaned by the man's former employers, to demonstrate the emergency at Farragut. Twenty-five children are being fed daily, but more than fifty are known to need free meals.

Grocers Donate Cereal.

Samuel Kunin and Sons, wholesale grocers, 347 Sheldon street, yesterday reported they were donating through the Hungry School Children's fund twenty-five cases of rolled oats to be used for needy youngsters. The cereal will be apportioned to various schools requiring breakfast food.

Members of the Stockyards Business Men's association, who were collecting donations to help feed destitute children at the Graham school, 4650 Union avenue, said yesterday that merchants expressed unwillingness to give after seeing a picture indicating that the Hungry School Children's fund had placed the school on its list. Food provided at Graham to date has been purchased on credit, and all the help received will be imperative if these bills are to be met and the unusually large number of hungry boys and girls receive free meals as needed.

SMITH-ALLIS JOB PLAN GIVEN HOOVER GROUP

Advance Buying Urged to Employ 2,500,000.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Relief of unemployment by commodity buying in advance of actual requirements by every industry and every family is suggested in a plan offered to the Hoover committee on employment plans by L. R. Smith, head of the A. O. Smith corporation here, the only Wisconsin member on the President's emergency group.

The plan charted by the research laboratory of the Smith company, if carried out, would provide work for at effective, it would mean $1,474,894,000 in additional wages paid. It calls for an agreement by industry to purchase at once, in addition to its regular quarterly commitments, 15 per cent of its annual requirements of materials, deliveries to be spread over a six months' period. Retail distribution would be achieved by an agreement of every family to buy an average of $79 worth of merchandise in excess of its least 2,500,000 men. If 100 per cent normal needs for a three month period.

Plan Works Two Ways.

This buying of commodities in advance, and in excess of current need, would insure workers of continued employment for a definite period and thus enable workers in turn to aid conditions by increasing their expenditures.

In explaining the plan today, Mr. Smith declared it was not a "buy now" campaign. Its success is dependent upon the major portion of the people purchasing their quotas and also upon the coöperation of most of the industrial companies. The efforts of one company would be only a drop in the bucket and the plan, to be effective, must be participated in by every one from the President down."

Smith proposes a pledge by the whole of industry to buy in advance of requirements.

He suggested obtaining such pledges in a manner similar to annual community fund drives to obtain pledges. Perhaps a national drive of one week's duration among industries and consumers would start the machinery moving, he suggested.

Seek Public's Reaction.

The plan was submitted to the Hoover committee on employment plans and suggestions at its meeting this week in Chicago and was found to be of sufficient merit to warrant general submission to the public. The committee is now analyzing the specific chart Mr. Smith submitted with the plan. It will be considered at the next meeting of the committee, a date for which has not been set.

The committee requested that Mr. Smith give his plan publicity before the next meeting of the committee to determine the public reaction it would create.

The plan offered by Mr. Smith was founded on the suggestion of Louis Allis, another Milwaukee manufacturer, who undertook a similar program during 1921-1922. The extensive research laboratories of the Smith corporation then expanded the Allis suggestion into the comprehensive study submitted to the committee.

Mr. Allis said he first conceived the idea while a purchasing agent for the old Edward P. Allis company in 1893, when his buying of pig iron in advance of actual requirement started a nation-wide buying of this commodity which greatly aided industry. He was approached to sponsor some such idea during the slump of 1921-'22, but normal conditions returned before the plan was actually in operation.

ATTACK 1928-'29 TAX AS ILLEGAL IN COURT TEST

Malone and Fairweather Rap Assessments.

William H. Malone, chairman of the state tax commission, which ordered the 1928 reassessment, and George O. Fairweather, assistant business manager of the University of Chicago and vice chairman of the 1927 joint commission on real estate valuations, yesterday testified before County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki. They were witnesses in a suit which charges that the 1928 and 1929 tax levies were illegal because the board of assessors and board of review failed to assess personal property.

The action was brought on behalf of Mrs. Lillian Cisar, an Oak Park widow who owns a five room bungalow, who protests that her tax bills were excessive. Actually the suit is a test case for 2,000 taxpayers represented by Attorneys Morris Schaeffer and Roy D. Keehn.

Charge Unfair Taxation.

In their opening statements both lawyers asserted that a total of almost 18 billions of dollars worth of personal property has escaped assessment in Cook county for tax levies under protest. Consequently, they said, real property has been forced to produce far more than its own share of governmental revenue. The testimony of both Malone and Fairweather was offered in proof of this contention.

"The present personal property assessment is a criminal farce," declared Malone, who was the first to take the stand. "There never has been any sincere effort to place personal property on the books. Why, the police records probably show that burglars stole more personal property during 1928 and 1929 than the taxing bodies placed on their assessment books."

County Attorney Hayden Bell, who is defending the levies, asked on cross-examination: "Do you think the present personnel of the board of assessors could make a good assessment if they were ordered to do so?"

Malone's answer was emphatic "No!"

Questioned by Attorney.

"But, Mr. Malone," suggested Attorney Schaeffer, "don't you think that if the state tax commission set up rules for the assessment of personal property as they did in 1928 for real property, and an honest effort was made, that you could get enough personal property on the tax books to relieve much of the present financial stress on the city and county?"

"I'm sure of it," Malone responded.

Mr. Fairweather then was called to the witness stand. He explained that before 1927 personal property in the county was assessed at more than $9,000,000,000. In that year, he said, almost $3,000,000,000 "slid off the tax books," and another $1,000,000,000 worth of personal property followed in 1928.

"A regular business grew up," he said, "and any politician, or lawyer, or layman who had a connection with one of the assessors, found himself in a profitable position. Hundreds of personal property schedules delivered to large corporations and to citizens were either marked 'no assessment' or were approved by some member of the assessors without an investigation as to the truth of the listing or the valuations. It was a convenient rule that no single assessor or the board as a whole could pass upon any schedule once it had been approved by any member of the board."

Personalty Assessment Drops.

The personal property assessment shrank to less than 10 per cent of the total valuation of all the property in the county during the years in question, Mr. Fairweather said. In response to questions by the lawyers he explained that in other cities where a real effort to assess personal property had been made, it had been found that usually such property was assessed at more than 30 per cent.

Attorney Bell asked: "Do you believe there is enough militant honesty in the county to develop a uniform system of taxation with the present machinery of five assessors and three reviewers?"

"I certainly do not," Mr. Fairweather replied.

Objects to Woman's Suit.

When the hearing was begun on Wednesday afternoon, Attorney Bell objected to the suit on the grounds that Mrs. Cisar had not exhausted all other means of relief and should have sought a mandamus to make the board of review place personal property on the tax books. Judge Jarecki took the objection under advisement but ordered the trial to continue.

Yesterday Attorneys Keehn and Schaeffer filed the mandamus suit on behalf of Mrs. Cisar in the Circuit court. The suit asks that the reviewers be forced to list $5,000,000,000 worth of personal property.

injure the credit of the city and the school board.

"I doubt that any one will question," he said, "that the issuance of these participation certificates (scrip) has damaged the credit of the city of Chicago as well as the board of education.

"It is well known that every effort of the mayor or of the city controller to participate in the financial operations of the board of education has been resented and resisted by that board.

Cites Economy Program.

"At no time have I desired to deprive the school board or any of its members of their right to manage the school system of this city. But every one knows that immediately upon becoming mayor last April I entered upon a serious and positive campaign to reduce the costs of government. This naturally met with resistance. I fully realize the difficulties and obstacles to be overcome before this purpose will be accomplished."

Mayor Cermak then said that his advisory committee had prepared a tentative 1932 budget for the city embodying large economies, and that he has been reliably informed that the governor's revenue commission in its report today will demand radical cuts in the costs of local governments in Cook county.

"The board of education," he continued, "has refused to cooperate with the mayor, and cooperation is all I have ever asked for in a survey of the school finances in order to ascertain how the cost of operating the schools of the city may be reduced without impairing the essential services that must be rendered in our schools.

Criticizes School Board.

"It is obvious that saving a dollar in the cost of operating the city governments and then wastefully spending that dollar in the school system is not meeting the demand of our citizens for economy in conducting the business of the public. If the board of education does not endeavor to economize, the public will have no confidence in the effort of the mayor to bring about a reduction in the cost of government.

"I have been unable to understand why the board of education refuses this cooperation. Its members occupy honorary positions. Suggestions have been made that certain holdover members, who have refused to cooperate, should resign and allow the mayor to appoint other persons to carry on a harmonious relationship with other public officials who are trying to satisfy the demands of the public.

"Although the mayor has been told to mind his own business and allow the board of education to run the affairs of the school system without interference, about ten days ago the mayor requested the city controller to consider the investment of as much of the city's aggregate of funds as could safely be invested in the anticipation tax warrants of the school board for 1931, so that the teachers and other school employes could receive some portion of their unpaid salaries, without jeopardizing public improvements.

"So far as I have been advised, the board of education made no request on the city controller, nor the city council, for the city to buy any school tax warrants until yesterday.

"In conclusion, I desire to say that regardless of the relief which the general assembly may give at the special session about to be held, the board of education must retrench. It must budget its revenues so that the payment of the teachers' salaries will hereafter be made as and when due and payable, and so that they shall not again be made to suffer as they have this year."

Council Vote Is Unanimous.

The council passed the ordinance unanimously, but before it did so Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the finance committee, issued a warning that it probably would be impossible to dip into the aggregate of funds again this year for pay roll purposes.

"I think headway was being made to sell tax warrants to the public when this matter was brought up. I hope the bankers and large taxpayers will not think that everything has been settled."

Controller Szymczak yesterday pointed out a method by which he said it would be possible for the board of education to raise an additional $2,750,000 for pay roll purposes. The city's aggregate of funds now holds that sum in 1928 educational fund tax warrants of the school board.

Among the fiscal relief measures passed at the special session of the legislature in 1930 was one authorizing the school board to issue bonds for the redemption of 1928 and 1929 tax warrants if tax collections, on a date six months after the tax penalty date for those years, prove insufficient. Mr. Szymczak suggested that the board avail itself of that privilege.

COUNTY SENDS OUT CHECKS FOR $50,000 MOTHERS' PENSIONS

Mothers' pension checks for the first half of October, totaling $50,000, were mailed out yesterday by the county bureau of public welfare. The money was made available by County Treasurer McDonough from the miscellaneous contingent fund. That fund, which now contains some $250,000, has been collected over a long period of years from double payments made accidentally by taxpayers, and from refunds due taxpayers which the latter have failed to collect.

SHOW 75% OF CITY CASH IS TIED UP IN TAX WARRANTS

Only $26,357,278 Liquid Out of $103,255,455.

The city's aggregate of funds, a sort of internal bank through which the details of Chicago's municipal finances are handled, today consists of 25 per cent cash and nearly 75 per cent in "frozen assets," principally tax warrants.

The total deposits in the aggregate of funds are $103,255,455. Of this, after the purchase of $9,660,000 worth of city and school tax warrants yesterday by authority of the city council, only $26,357,278 remains in cash. Of the remainder, $75,872,077 is in tax warrants, $22,300 is city bonds, and $1,003,800 in interim certificates deposited in lieu of city bonds.

Compared to a Bank.

The practice of collecting all city funds in an aggregate account was officially recognized in 1907, when the city's accounting system was reorganized. To continue the analogy of a bank, each of the multitude of special funds of the city, including those of the board of education, is a depositor.

Thus, the transit fund now has on deposit $60,255,823. The proceeds of bond issues sold to finance public improvements, and deposited in the aggregate of funds until they are needed to pay contractors and condemnation damaged, total $14,760,564.

If it became necessary tomorrow to use those funds, that is, if the transit and bond fund depositors had to withdraw their accounts from the city "bank," they would be paid largely in tax warrants, and not in cash.

Other Funds Heavy Borrowers.

The reason is that certain other "depositors," the funds from which the salaries of city and school employés are met and current bills are paid, have become heavy borrowers from the city bank. As collateral they have deposited tax warrants.

In former years, it was sometimes the practice for funds which were short of cash to obtain it from the aggregate of funds. But until the 1928 reassessment postponed tax collections beyond their usual dates, the tax warrants thus deposited as collateral were redeemed within a few months, keeping the aggregate of funds in a highly liquid state.

What the Securities Are.

Now, however, due to the practice of redeeming all tax warrants held by the public before paying off those held in the aggregate of funds, the "bank" still holds some warrants for 1918 taxes, besides warrants for 1929, 1930 and 1931. Its total holdings of securities of the various funds are as follows:

1926 tax warrants—
City corporate	$ 5,468,000
School educational	2,750,000
School building	1,350,000
	$ 9,568,000
1929 tax warrants—
City corporate	$ 1,910,000
City bonds and interest	950,000
Sanitarium	300,000
Firemen's pension	160,000
	$ 3,340,000
1930 tax warrants—
City corporate	$27,977,977
City bonds and interest	700,000
Library	115,000
Sanitarium	700,000
Firemen's pension	270,000
School educational	8,965,000
School playground	130,000
	$39,767,977
1931 tax warrants—
City corporate	$19,950,000
Library	125,000
Sanitarium	585,000
Firemen's pension	940,000
School educational	4,470,000
School building	135,000
School playground	45,000
	$26,220,000
Total tax warrants	$75,872,077
City bond interim certificates	1,003,800
City bonds	22,300
Total securities held	$76,898,177

Even though the "bank" still has cash deposits of more than $26,000,000, it can make no more loans this year for payroll purposes. That money, and more, is already spoken for.

Some Funds Must Be Cash.

First, there is $13,000,000 in special assessment funds and small trust funds which, under the law, must be kept in cash. Then $1,900,000 more deposited in sinking funds of the water fund and other small funds must be set aside to meet obligations due before the first of the year.

That, substracted from the cash on hand, leaves approximately $11,450,000. Then the city has these bills falling due by Jan. 1: In the water department, $4,000,000; for street repairs, from the vehicle tax fund, $1,500,000; for work done on bond-issue improvements, $4,000,000, and bond interest falling due, $2,900,000.

Some Collections Expected.

That totals $12,400,000 and would leave the city a million dollars short were no new deposits made in its banks before Jan. 1. However, collections of $1,600,000 in miscellaneous revenues are expected by then.

Upon the success of city officials in making other collections, or of turning some of the tax warrant assets in the bank into cash, depend the chances of the city and school employés getting any more pay before the relief program expected from the special legislative session takes effect.

COUNTRY TOWN ASSESSMENTS CUT $4,779,918

Reviewers Finish Books for 1930 Taxation.

The board of review yesterday completed the 1930 real assessment books for country town districts. The volumes were transferred to the county clerk's office. The total assessed value, which is 37 per cent of the full fair cash value, as fixed by the reviewers, amounted to $708,930,459. This is $4,779,918 less than the valuations made by the assessors.

The comparative tables of the assessed valuations of the towns, showing the assessors' valuations and those of the board of review follow:

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE FARMER AS SPECULATOR.

The latest suggestion for farm relief has come from the corn belt. Organizers are seeking to induce corn growers to lock their crops in the barn and wait for better prices. To make this plan succeed, the farmers are to borrow money with their crop as security; and, as available funds for crop loans may be lacking, congress may be pressed to put up more of it.

The assumption is that the price of corn is going up. Perhaps this assumption is justified, but if so, it is curious that the most accomplished of market prophets, the gentlemen on the board of trade, do not share the view. Today's quotations on corn are the best existing index to the future price of corn. The guess may be wrong, but it is as likely to err in one direction as the other.

The farmer who withholds his crop from the market automatically changes his occupation. He is no longer a farmer. He is a bull speculator. He is betting that the market will go up. Indeed, he is betting that the market will go up more than enough to pay the interest charges on the money he has borrowed against his crop.

Farm relief will never come through diverting the thought and attention of the farmer from his land and its management to a speculative interest in the grain markets. Farm relief will never come through encouraging the farmer to dissipate his income in interest payments.

Needless to say, any farmer is justified in borrowing money to acquire land and necessary equipment. A farmer with corn in his possession is justified, also, in borrowing money to buy stock to which the corn is to be fed. Efforts have been made in previous congresses to see that such loans as these can be had at reasonable interest rates; and if there is still an insufficiency of reasonably cheap money for these legitimate purposes the facts can be presented to congress.

But the notion of lending money to farmers for speculation should be discouraged. The successful farmer is not likely to be the successful speculator. Each occupation requires too much time and attention to permit the ordinary man to succeed at both. Over the years, the successful farmer will be the man who disposes of his crops within a few days of the time they are ready for the market. He will devote all his time to his real business, which is getting the maximum production out of the land he tills. He will pay out a minimum in interest charges. While his neighbor who has borrowed money to hold his crop is paying the banker for the privilege of speculating, the wise farmer is receiving interest on the money he has taken in.

RELOCATING THE I. C. TERMINAL.

The opening of the Illinois Central's new suburban terminal at Randolph street raises again the question of moving the main passenger terminal of the road to the rivea between the new outer drive bridge and Michigan avenue. If the suburban terminal were at Roosevelt road the company would have to content itself with half or less of its present suburban business because many of its customers would find it inconvenient to reach a point so far south of the main business district.

It seems altogether probable that this feeling is shared by through passengers as well. Many travelers who now take other routes because they find the terminals more convenient would use the Illinois Central if its station were easier to get to. Other railroads using the Illinois Central station could no doubt afford to pay substantially higher rentals for the privilege if the station were situated at a point where it would attract customers.

These considerations, we should think, would take on added importance in the minds of the Illinois Central management in view of the fact that the railroad has just passed its dividend on the common stock for the first time in 70 years. The present station is wholly inadequate and the railroad is obligated to build a new one. Today it is more important than it was some years ago to obtain the maximum return from the expenditure. In this matter the interest of the public is identical with that of the railroad. Any added profits which would be made by the railroads using the terminal would be gained by giving the public superior service.

The location on Roosevelt road was approved in the early days of the Chicago plan. Meanwhile the city has not grown in exactly the manner which the original plan contemplated. The center of gravity has moved northward. The Roosevelt road site, which at one time may have seemed as good or better than the river front, is now plainly inferior.

To make the change, of course, would require the consent of various governmental bodies and no doubt the railroad is reluctant to open negotiations anew when the consents for the Roosevelt road station have all been obtained. At the same time we should think that the advantages which more central location affords would appeal strongly to the railroad's business management and the difficulties might not prove as great as feared. Certainly, the plan commission of late has shown a disposition to reëxamine its original projects in the light of changed conditions and might prove a valuable ally.

No doubt the Roosevelt road site offers some operating advantages derived from the fact that at Roosevelt road the trains can be operated through the station. That could not be done if the station was situated along the river, but we do not doubt that the railroad's engineering staff could devise a plan which would prove equally satisfactory. The problem should not be a very difficult one in view of the width of the railroad's right of way, providing ample area for storage tracks.

A DISCREDITED SCHOOL BOARD.

Mayor Cermak and President Myers of the school board have been exchanging compliments. Freed of a good deal of verbiage and innuendo, the remarks of Mr. Myers invite the mayor to mind his own business while leaving the school trustees free to mind theirs. Mr. Cermak replies that if the school board would only concentrate on the job of running the schools the pupils and the teachers would have a good deal to rejoice over.

Mr. Myers comes off second best in the exchange. The school board today is controlled by a majority of trustees appointed under the previous, discredited administration. The board did not, in fact, have the confidence of the people of Chicago before last April and it has lacked even the presumption of public confidence since. That situation is well known. It has resulted in the refusal of responsible elements in the community to treat with the board in its attempts to obtain money for the teachers.

The mayor is right. There can be little hope of a prompt reorganization of school finances until the discredited board members clear out. They have stood between the teachers and their pay, whether they know it or not. They are depriving the public school system of public confidence. The people of Chicago do not believe the present board can be trusted with additional funds, and without money the present disorganized condition of the school system is destined to persist. The board has shown no genuine appreciation of the need for economy and no stomach for the task of reducing expenditures.

Chicago today has a school board majority which refuses to resign, but which, so far as its usefulness is concerned, has resigned. The sooner the majority members recognize their true position the better for all concerned.

POLITICS AND THE JUDICIARY.

The Seabury investigation in New York is developing material for a study of practical politics which every citizen who wants to know how he is governed will do well to study. The disclosure of the influences affecting the selection of judges is, we think, the most important result of the inquiry. While there have been some denials from witnesses as to amounts exacted or received by the party organizations from judicial aspirants, it is clear that virtually a system of purchase has existed. But the passage of money, vicious as the offense is, is not the only form of improper influence. The general evil is that pull and party service, whether in the crude form of money payments or in less tangible forms, pervert the processes of selection and put the more scrupulous and therefore the more fit aspirants at a disadvantage.

The conditions exposed by the Seabury inquiry are not peculiar to New York City. They are unfortunately rather general. If they are inherent in our political system we must endure them, but certainly we ought to do our best to mitigate if not abolish them. The establishment of a judiciary independent as far as is humanly possible of political or other ulterior influences is the very first essential of just and responsible government. It is more important than the selection of competent and conscientious executives and legislators for reasons which any intelligent citizen will understand. Yet we condone or shirk the evils we know exist in our methods of selecting judges and will make no serious and persistent effort to amend them. The task is difficult but not impossible, and we ought long ago to have been at it. The bar especially ought to feel a greater responsibility for devising a system which would better insure moral and professional competence in the judiciary and protect its independence. We are not indulging counsels of perfection when we assert that present methods of selection may be greatly improved. We are shirking this greatly and urgently needed reform.

Editorial of the Day

CAPONE'S CONVICTION.

[The Washington (D. C.) Star.]

Capone's guilt of the charge brought against him in this case was virtually confessed in his unsuccessful efforts to "adjust" his taxes. The fact that he enjoyed an enormous revenue from his various crooked and criminal enterprises was patent, and there was no dispute as to his failure to make return to the government. Yet even in this trial, which seemed to be merely a formality, effort was impudently made to deny that the revenue was "legitimate," on the ground that it was from gambling and, furthermore, that a great part of it was squandered in losing bets on the horses. Now Capone's attorneys are making a motion to set aside the verdict on the ground of inconsistency—based upon the fact that he was acquitted of some of the charges but convicted of others of a similar nature—and when this motion is denied, as it presumably will be, they will take an appeal and so endeavor to prolong the case, leaving the hideous creature at liberty for an indefinite period, leering and grinning at the law in contemptuous defiance.

The shame is that Chicago has not caught this brigand in its own legal net and long since sent him to his deserved punishment. The shame is that the state of Illinois has not handled the case of a common felon. The shame is that the law has failed utterly to cope with the creature whose hirelings have slain and robbed and mutilated offenders against his own bandit rule. No matter how satisfactory will be the eventual incarceration of Capone in a federal prison for the failure to make an income tax return, as a technical means to the end of getting him in jail, there will remain the sense that the law has failed.

LATH MARKS.

If the ceilings and inside of the walls of a house are unduly dirty, one can be certain that the insulation is poor. The house will be cold in winter and hot in summer. The winter coal bill of a person living in such a house will be high. These are the conclusions of Dr. W. J. Hopper, as given in the Aerologist.

His opinion is based on a study of the cause of lath marks on the ceiling. Who has not lain in bed and wondered why the streaks of light and dark on the ceiling above him? If his curiosity had led him to read up on the subject, he has had his choice between several explanations. He has found authorities who have written that air passes freely through the ceiling and all other walls. When a ceiling is made up of plaster laid on laths the air passes more rapidly through the spaces between the laths. The plaster acts as a filter, and the dirt of the outflowing air is deposited on the wall in black bands over the spaces between laths, and in lighter bands over the laths themselves.

Another theory that he might have read is that the deposit of dirt on the wall was preceded by a deposit of moisture. There was primarily a sweating and the bands between the laths, being the wetter zones, picked up more dirt.

A third theory was that the walls radiated electricity; that this was uneven, being much modified by the presence of the lath in the plaster.

Dr. Hopper conducted experiments which proved that none of these explanations were correct. He inserted a layer of nonporous material into a wall of plaster laid on laths. Air could not soak through the wall, but he got lath marks just the same. Experiments done with walls laid on plaster, in which electric radiation was under complete control, likewise gave lath marks. Experiments with walls in which there could be no sweating ruled out that as a possible explanation of lath marks.

Lastly, he took up experiments with wall insulation. These proved that if a wall was kept as warm as the surrounding air it did not become unduly covered with dirt. If the wall became cold, as compared with air, it accumulated dirt. Lath marks on a ceiling or wall prove that it is comparatively cold. The spaces between the laths, being the coldest zones, become dirtiest. If the walls were well insulated lath marks did not appear.

SYMPTOMS OF PARESIS.

L. writes: After reading your description of paresis, I truly believe my husband has it. He has always been a model man, and tight in money matters towards outsiders. He is 63 years old. Two years ago he was hit on the head severely by holdup men. Now he borrows money, entirely unneeded, to give to an unscrupulous woman. He has kept his son out of college to give her and others, and let his property be sold for taxes [uncalled for, as he makes the money]. What shall I do? Is there a cure?

REPLY.

The symptoms given are those of paresis. Usually some evidence of serious loss of judgment and deterioration of morals and behavior are the symptoms which cause paresis to be suspected. Modern treatment of paresis offers some hope of improvement, at least for a period. Sometimes paretics will take treatment voluntarily. More often they will not do so until compelled by process of law.

SILVER BUGS.

Mrs. E. H. writes: Our neighborhood seems to be infested with silver bugs. They get into our homes and we cannot get rid of them.

1. Do they harm us?
2. Do they eat our clothes?
3. How can they be destroyed?

REPLY.

1. No.
2. Yes, particularly starched clothing.
3. Mix some Paris green, or other arsenic preparation, with paste and some with glue. These poisoned preparations are put on small bits of cardboard, which are placed in locations infested by bugs but inaccessible to babies.

Herrick also recommends sprinkling clothes, drawers, and books with buhach.

The state entomologist has a small booklet on this subject.

DIVORCE IS ILLEGAL.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A woman started her divorce in the state of California on Nov. 15, 1928. The following June she married in the state of Illinois. 1. I believe the laws of California require one year before the final decree is granted. 2. Is the second marriage legal, according to the state of Illinois laws? 3. Am I right or wrong in my idea? 4. In either case, which would be correct, divorce or annulment? L. C. V.

1. Under California law an interlocutory decree is entered after the hearing, which finds the facts but does not operate to dissolve the marriage so as to place the parties in a position to contract a new marriage. This interlocutory decree is followed by a final decree one year later.
2. No.
3. You are right.
4. We would consider annulment more appropriate.

MENTAL EXAMINATIONS LATER.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—[Friend of the People.]—I have just recently passed my medical and physical examination for the police force, and now I am waiting to be called for the mental examination. Are you in position to tell me just when this examination will be held? I have been told that it will not take place until all applicants have been called for the physical examination. Is this information correct? B. K.

The mental examination for patrolmen will not be held until the physical examinations are completed. I am unable to advise at this time when this mental examination will be held.

LEGAL LIMIT 3 PER CENT.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Please advise whether a pawnbroker in the state of Illinois is limited in the amount of interest he is allowed to charge on loans with jewelry as security. 2. What steps can be taken if the interest charge is in excess of what the law allows? J. F. H.

1. The legal limit is three per cent per month.
2. You might try asking a police officer to accompany you to the shop.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

BUT HOW CAN ENGLAND put up a tariff wall? The understanding we got from all the G. O. P. stump speakers we ever heard was that only the U. S. A. could put up tariff walls. That was so that other nations couldn't compete with our cunning little infant industries. That's right, isn't it? But now England and other European countries are putting up tariff walls so that the U. S. A. can't bust in and compete with their cunning little infant industries. No fair! They're stealing our stuff! Uncle Sam ought to sue 'em for infringement of copyright. Write to your congressman today.

Right here the other day in your own newspaper appeared this: 'Although Mr. Irish was annoyed, he didn't feel too badly.' Is that your idea of the king's English?" No, Carmi, distinctly not. But we didn't write that, Carmi. When we're not conducting the Line we run the freight elevator in the rear, and very seldom do they let us do reporting. SONG.

It matters not if heads be white,
If hearts are two-and-twenty;
Though grief and sorrow try the soul,
Of joys there are a-plenty;
For who that sees the day reborn
Can languish in its glory?
Or who that thrills with spring can call
His life an outworn story?

Away with all your talk of age!
Speak not of day's declining,
For I who still count life a friend
Must scorn your weak repining.
A song for me, a song of youth,
With faith and love a-plenty;
It matters not if heads be white
If hearts are two-and-twenty!

OUR PERSPIRING REPORTER interviewed Miss Sereana Teachum, one of our numerous teachers who have received no pay for six months. "After the fashion of the other great news sheets of Chicago," said the Perspiring Reporter, "I am asking you what is the very first thing you will do with a whole month's pay, which will be placed in your hands today?" "The very first thing?" replied Miss Teachum. "Why, the very first thing I shall do when I get my check is to have it cashed in dimes. Then I will get in a boat and go out into Lake Michigan and throw the dimes into the lake, one by one. Oh, it will indeed be great fun!"

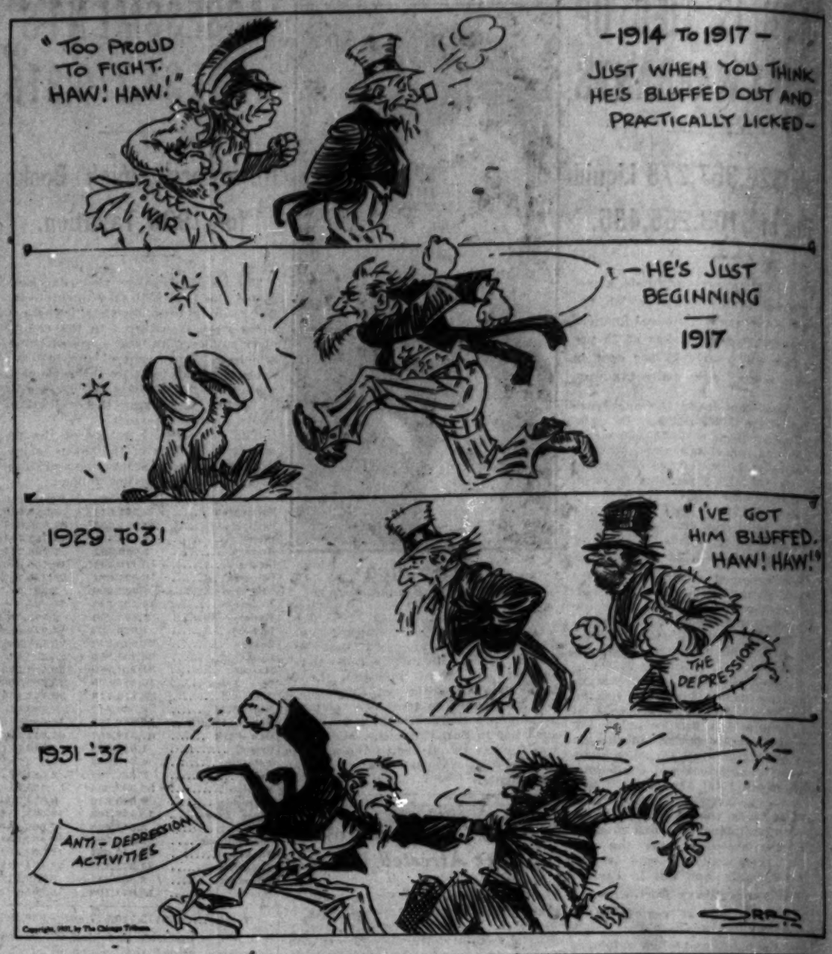
UNCLE IS FUNNY THAT WAY



FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 30, 1915.

BALTIMORE.—John Prentiss Poe Jr., once famous football player of Princeton, popularly known as "Johnny" Poe, was killed on Sept. 22 while fighting as a private in the English army along the northern boundary of France. In the English drive which started on that date the Black Watch, of which Poe was a member, practically was annihilated. Only meager facts concerning his death were received. Poe belonged to the distinguished Maryland family of that name, nearly all the male members of which were prominent lawyers and jurists.

PARIS.—Aristide Briand, the new premier, who took office and formed his ministry, authorized a statement in which he declares that the change in ministry in France in no way is a sign of any change in policy. "The policy of France is summed up in the word 'victory,'" the statement says. In the new cabinet Gen. J. S. Gallieni is minister of war and Rene Viviani is minister of justice. All parties are represented in the coalition cabinet.

LONDON.—King George was injured when his horse reared and threw him during a review of the allied troops at the front in northern France. The official bulletin says that he was bruised severely and will be confined to his bed for the present.

CHICAGO.—Miss Helen Cudahy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy of 22 Banks street, and Austin Niblack, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Niblack of Lake Forest and brother of Mrs. James Ward Thorne and Mrs. Alden Swift, will be married this afternoon at the family residence, with Father Fitzsimmons officiating.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 30, 1901.

CHICAGO.—The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, formerly a corporation under the Illinois laws but now incorporated in the state of Iowa, with a capital stock of $100,000,000, took out a license yesterday with the secretary of state in Springfield to operate in this state but without capital stock as an Illinois corporation. This stock is therefore untaxable under the recent decision of the Supreme court. The railroad's actual property is, of course, subject to taxation.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—In balancing the books of the Pan-American exposition, now in its last week, two statements are made, both of which go unchallenged. Artistically the exposition has been a success; financially it is an utter failure. Whether it will prove a benefit to Buffalo remains to be determined. An unfriendly fate has pursued the fair from its beginning, the series of misfortunes culminating in the shooting and death of President McKinley, the tragedy coming at a time to work the most harm.

CHICAGO.—Dr. Frank Crane, pastor of Hyde Park Methodist church, who has been called by the People's church to succeed Dr. H. W. Thomas, yesterday received a call to the Union Congregational church of Worcester, Mass., the pulpit of which he occupied during the summer.

OCTOBER 30, 1881.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The senate confirmed Gen. John L. Beveridge as United States assistant treasurer at Chicago. Dispatches have been received here from Chicago making inquiries as to whether the appointment of Gen. Beveridge to the office held by Frank Gilbert is to be regarded as indicating an intention on the part of President Arthur to remove Blaine men throughout the country and to appoint the supporters of Grant. The appointment of Gen. Beveridge was made at the suggestion of Gen. Logan.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Delegates to the Woman's Christian Temperance union convention called on President Arthur. Miss Frances Willard made a short address asking the political and moral aid of the President to the object of the convention.

CHICAGO.—The south park board selected the site for the Drexel fountain that has been presented to the south park board by the Messrs. Drexel of Philadelphia. The place chosen is where the boulevard turns south at 51st street.

EDUCATIONAL FRILLS.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—The editorial on educational frills in THE TRIBUNE this morning should receive the commendation of all persons sincerely interested in public education. Any one taking the trouble to become familiar with the curriculum in our public schools of today cannot help but realize how far we have departed from the fundamentals of education.

The educational value of the dictaphone, the typewriter, power driven machinery, dishwashing, laundry, etc., can well be questioned. At a hearing in the superintendent's office the other day when the Woman's City club protested the use of a power driven machine in our public schools by children under 16 years of age because of its danger, its lack of educational value, and its great cost, also that it was a violation of the spirit and standard accepted by our child labor law, this astonishing fact was brought out—that "99 per cent of the work done in the shops where power driven machines were used was done by hand and 1 per cent on the machines." Can any department of our school system desend that kind of expenditure when our teachers are going unpaid?

To realize the amount of money spent on "palatial school buildings equipped with luxurious swimming pools," marble partitions between shower baths, and porcelain topped tables in the lunchroom, a visit should be made to one of the new junior or senior high schools.

While I hold no brief for the majority of our school board members, there are enough members of that board who, I am sure, would support a program of sound education and substantial building if the educational department would present such a program. The Otis law under which our board of education functions makes the educational department responsible for any recommendations having to do with that department. Let us hope those responsible for the conduct of our schools will listen with an open mind and act on these sound and practical suggestions which, no doubt, have come from authorities in the field of education and have been given to us, the public, by THE TRIBUNE.

MRS. HARVEY A. TYLER,
Woman's City Club of Chicago.

DIAGRAMS ON REQUEST.

Cotter, Ia., Oct. 14.—In today's TRIBUNE I find an editorial captioned, "The Rise Up and Fall of Primo Carnera." It appears to me that the preposition "up" is unnecessary and therefore superfluous. However, if it is there for a purpose, why not be consistent thus, "The Rise Up and Fall Down of Primo Carnera"?

WILLIAM OWEN.

CAPONE SENTENCED.

Oak Park, Ill., Oct. 26.—Your editorial today, "Capone Sentenced," was excellent, and I must compliment you on what in my opinion was a fine display of courage. D.

WILL IT STICK?

Melrose Park, Ill., Oct. 26.—Maybe I'm cynical, but all this glee that is being expressed in some quarters reminds me of the similar outburst of enthusiasm over the law's ability to reach into high places at the time Judge Landis slapped a fine of $29,000,000 on the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. I refuse to be convinced until Capone is actually in prison; and if that happens I shall feel certain all it means is that his money has run out. JEROME KELLER.

THE CAPONE VERDICT.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—The rejoicing is general over the conviction of Al Capone if one may judge from the statements published in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. May I say that the rejoicing among the common people who do not approve of prohibition is not so much in evidence and the thousands that received charity from Capone are not rejoicing at all?

The product the Capone group is said to have sold produced only a temporary headache, while the conduct of certain bankers have produced heartaches that will last throughout life for many.

H. E. WALKER.

THE POLICE EXAMINATION.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—What is the cause for the delay in posting of the results of the west parks' police examinations, given last January? I know that the west park board of commissioners is under a financial handicap, but still maintain that the list of eligibles should have been posted, as this is the second examination given for this position. The results of the first examination was never posted. Is it because the men who head the list have no political sponsors? S.

A POSTOFFICE CONTRACT.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—I am an ornamental ironworker [shop man], and have looked forward to the day when the local shops would be awarded the contract for the Chicago postoffice and a few hundred of our men would have work and be relieved from taking charity. I understand that a Minneapolis firm has secured the contract and the work will be done elsewhere, while Chicago labor will go begging for charity again.

For the sake of moral righteousness cannot some red blooded American plead with our foremost business men to keep all Chicago work in Chicago?

DR. WEST'S TOOTH PASTE shown to be the only one of 10 that really CLEANED without SCRATCHING!

IT IS CERTAIN that any dentifrice user has a right to know, as exactly as possible, what that product will—or will not do—for teeth.

Here is a report of scientific and impartial tests, conducted in the laboratory of a great university, which accurately gives you this information.

Ten typical tooth pastes were tested: DR. WEST'S and nine others:

(a) SEVEN DID NOT CLEAN TEETH (and two of these seven scratched enamel)

(b) TWO OTHERS DID CLEAN, (but both of these scratched enamel)

(c) ONLY ONE—DR. WEST'S—CLEANED TEETH WITHOUT SCRATCHING ENAMEL

Normal teeth were used in making the tests. First, they were stained before brushing, to show both visible and invisible dirt present (with a stain that does not discolor enamel). Then after brushing they were stained again, exactly as at first, to show cleansing—or failure to cleanse. Finally the effect of each dentifrice on the enamel was determined accurately.

Delicate instruments and powerful camera lenses measured and recorded the results. Typical pictures are reproduced here.

DR. WEST'S Tooth Paste alone, of the 10 brands tested, cleaned teeth without scratching enamel. That is fact; not guesswork.

Double polishing plus cleaning!

In DR. WEST'S Tooth Paste, pure cleansers are combined with two gentle polishers. This gentle, double polishing is unique. Neither polisher can scratch enamel but, working together, they gently restore the natural brilliance of the enamel.

It is a delightfully refreshing dentifrice to use—cooling and stimulating to the whole mouth. And it brings every other good result a dentifrice can safely provide.

You are quite sure to like it, as have millions of other people. It has already won sensational success, beyond anything in previous dentifrice history.

You need to know what this safe and effective tooth paste will do for your teeth. So we make a special economy offer: two big, 25c tubes—regular 50c value!—for 33c! COURTNEY USES ROUND ROBIN TO URGE GUN LAWS

Wants Action Taken at Special Session.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

State Senator Thomas Courtney, minority floor leader and candidate for the Democratic nomination for attorney general, started to circulate a round robin among the senators last night asking Gov. Emmerson to include in the call for the special session of the legislature an item to put teeth in the gun toting law.

T. J. COURTNEY. [Wallinger photo.]

The legislative commission which spent the summer in England and Europe studying prison systems last week asked the governor to put penal reforms up to the extraordinary session. The governor's attitude was that the session should be limited to revenue reform. After conferences yesterday it was decided that if a request came from a number of legislators Gov. Emmerson might act.

Seeks Weapon Against Gunmen.

The idea that the battle against gangland might be strengthened by amendments to the law passed in the spring relating to the carrying of deadly weapons, was expressed by a group of the European researchers. A synopsis of the changes they advocate was put out as follows:

"The commission suggests that the laws dealing with the carrying of firearms be considerably strengthened, that the sale of firearms be restricted entirely to licensed dealers, that each sale be registered with the proper authorities, who should retain a sample of the bullet discharged from the gun and name and finger prints of the owner of the gun, and that all persons now owning firearms be required to register them with proper authorities.

"We feel that in this respect Illinois should strive to create a national sentiment which should bring about cooperation of all the states in an effort to reduce to a minimum the crimes committed by armed men. Europe is virtually free from such crimes. America can likewise free itself from the gunmen by proper legislation and by the creation of public sentiment."

Follow Capone Conviction.

Senator Arthur A. Huebsch of Brookfield who is listed among the Republican possibilities for attorney general, was in the delegation last week which asked Gov. Emmerson to put an anti-gunman item in the special session call. Senator Courtney was the Democratic nominee in 1928 against Attorney General Carlstrom.

"The conviction of Capone," said Courtney, "ought to be followed by a strengthening of the gun toting law. The round robin may convince the administration that the reform would not involve the special session in a controversial matter. Under Volstead our jails are filled to overflowing, and the overcrowding of our prisons is a matter of grave import. The governor vetoed the prohibition repealer and would not sanction the vote of a majority of the legislators to get the Illinois search and seizure act off the statute books, but it seems to some of us he might put an item in the call directed against the gunmen who have flourished under prohibition."

Ready for Halloween

Edward Vaid, 5218 Drummond place, prepares for tomorrow night's celebration.

MAYOR WARNS AGAINST PRANKS ON HALLOWEEN

Chicago youngsters must not let their fun reach the stage of property destruction in their Halloween celebrations tomorrow night, Mayor Cermak warned in a proclamation read to the city council yesterday.

"Without discouraging to the slightest legitimate and healthful fun among our boys and girls, may I call upon them to observe strictly the property rights of our citizens and to be careful not to destroy or injure anything of the slightest value," the mayor said.

"The consequence of vandalism shall not be tempered by the occasion, and I call upon the principals and teachers of our schools to warn every boy and girl that law and order must be strictly obeyed this Halloween.

"The police are instructed to deal summarily with any person, boy or girl, who shall destroy or injure, or attempt to destroy or injure any property whatsoever."

HOOVER NAMES VAN METER NEW REVENUE OFFICER

Gregory T. Van Meter, associate of George F. Harding, former county treasurer, was appointed collector of internal revenue for the Chicago district by President Hoover yesterday. The appointment followed indorsement by Senator Otis F. Glenn.

"It's the first I've heard of it, but it's certainly good news," asserted Mr. Van Meter when told of dispatches from Washington.

Mr. Van Meter will take the post which Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge resigned shortly after her name was involved in the famous faro game in Springfield in which Edward R. Litsinger, member of the board of review, lost $50,000.

Robert E. Neely has been acting collector since Mrs. Blackidge left the office.

Mr. Van Meter is 64 years old. He is a bachelor and lives with his mother and sister at 5019 Blackstone avenue.

DRIVES 3 BLOCKS WITH AN INJURED MAN ON BUMPER

Hits Two Others Before He Is Stopped.

Arthur Each, 63 years old, 7229 Merrill avenue, was arrested on a charge of reckless driving last night after his automobile had struck and injured three persons on the far south side.

At 89th street and Burley avenue Each, driving north, struck two men who were pushing a handcart. One, Adolph Mantal, 35 years old, 3907 Buffalo avenue, tried to leap out of the way. His left leg was caught between the bumper and the radiator of Each's car and the driver, apparently unaware of the accident, continued to drive.

Mantal was still caught when the automobile struck Mrs. Rose Miller, 39 years old, 8152 Houston avenue, at 88th street. Each did not notice this accident either, according to police, and continued with the injured Mantal on the front of the car to 86th street, where another motorist stopped him. Mantal's injuries are critical. The hurts of Mrs. Miller and of Carl Schmaltz, 44 years old, 8911 Brandon avenue, who was struck when Mantal was, were not serious.

Killed by Skidding Autos.

George H. Funk, 76 years old, 1526 Edgewood avenue, Chicago Heights, former head of the Funk Brothers foundry in the suburb, was fatally injured last evening when two automobiles which skidded on the wet pavement after a collision crushed him on the street near his home.

Victor Tomszewski, 71 years old, 5408 South Lincoln street, was killed when he was run down by an automobile in front of his home. The driver, John Karawzyszyni, 1925 West 51st street, took him to the Burnside hospital, then fled. At the inquest witnesses absolved Karawzyszyni, but police were searching for him to add his sworn statement to their records.

These deaths and five others brought the toll for Cook county since Jan. 1 to 1,045. The victims:

Miss May Howard, 55 years old, 2817 Logan boulevard. Fatally injured when struck by the automobile of Samuel Greenberg, 34 years old, 5341 West Madison street, at Logan boulevard and Francisco avenue.

John Pocicz, 60 years old, 100 North May street, a laborer. Killed at Ogden and Grand avenues when struck by the auto of Dr. Louis M. Myers, 1520 Stratford place.

Eva Bambach, 3 years old, 3647 North Hermitage avenue. Killed when crushed beneath the wheels of an ice truck near her home. William Haraton, 3031 Greenview avenue, was the driver.

Gilbert Larson, 45 years old, 1944 North Richmond street, a railroad employé. Killed in Western avenue at Kinzie street when he was struck by an automobile driven by W. F. Kreuser, 2122 Morse avenue.

Alexander Jaskrowski, 60 years old, of 1438 North Leavitt street. Died early this morning in St. Elizabeth's hospital of injuries suffered Thursday when he was struck by the automobile of Herman Swinsky, 1133 South Homan avenue, at Leavitt and Hirsch streets.

Seized After Hitting Girl.

A motorist who failed to stop after running down a 6 year old girl in Washington boulevard at Karlov avenue was captured after a short chase last night. He is Albert Tiffol, 34 years old, 221 South Crawford avenue. His car struck Anna Marie Foote, 4016 Washington boulevard, as she was crossing with her mother, Mrs. Stella Foote. The girl's right leg was broken. Tiffol was captured by Motorcycle Policeman Frank Boland of the west park force. He was charged with reckless driving, driving while intoxicated, and leaving the scene of an accident.

Louis Hatala was killed and William Vincent was critically injured yesterday when their car collided with a truck at Hammond. Both men were from Indiana Harbor. The truck driver, Raymond Mecklenburg of Milwaukee, was arrested. Police said he told them that he had fallen asleep at the wheel.

COOLIDGE KILLS SKUNK; WIFE HOLDS THE LIGHT WHILE CAL TAKES AIM

Plymouth, Vt., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Even if Calvin Coolidge could find a taxidermist willing to tackle the job, it is safe to say the former President will not have his latest trophy of the hunt mounted for display in his study. It's an ordinary chicken coop variety of polecat.

As Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge were preparing last night for their departure today for their home at Northampton, Mass., the barking of a neighbor's dog attracted their attention. Investigating, they found the object of the dog's clamor across the street from the Coolidge homestead.

Mr. Coolidge returned to the house for the double barreled shotgun with which he had been bagging partridge during the last week. Mrs. Coolidge focused a flashlight on the target. Mr. Coolidge drew a steady bead and pulled the trigger. The skunk dropped.

Robert Williams of Films Undergoes Operation

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Robert Williams, film actor, underwent an operation for appendicitis at a hospital here today. He played opposite Ina Claire in the film "Rebound," after occupying the same rôle in the stage version.

DIVORCEE DROPS SUIT AGAINST HER SUCCESSOR

Mrs. Clare Green, divorced wife of J. Birchard Green, president of the Chicago Steel and Wire company and of the Fusion Welding company, yesterday withdrew her $75,000 suit for alienation of affections against her former husband's second wife, Mrs. Patti Green, 6930 South Shore drive. The action was taken by her attorney, Howard Ames, before Judge Craig Hood in the Circuit court.

The suit was the fourth action started by Mrs. Green against her former husband or his present wife since her divorce was granted by Judge Daniel P. Trude in October, 1928. Shortly after Green's second marriage in February, 1929, the first Mrs. Green sued him for breach of marriage contract and for loss of companionship. The court held that both questions had been settled by the divorce.

Mrs. Green then filed a bill of review asking that the divorce decree be set aside and asserting that she had given perjured testimony herself while under the influence of self-administered drugs. Judge Trude informed Mrs. Green that she would not be able still to receive her alimony income of $300 a month, so the action was dropped.

Green then petitioned to lower his alimony payments. When the petition was refused Green asked leave to appeal and furnished his wife $400 to defend it. The appeal, however, never was taken and recently Green petitioned for the return of the money. Mrs. Green's counter petition now is pending before Judge Trude for $250 attorney's fees to oppose her husbands' petition for the return of the appeal money.

HINDENBURG BEGS BUSINESS CHIEFS TO JOIN HANDS

Urges Domestic Truce to Weather the Crisis.

BERLIN, Oct. 29.—(AP)—President Paul von Hindenburg appealed today to the men who rule Germany's industries to drop all partisanship and join in a domestic truce that the nation may weather its economic crisis.

The aged head of the reich voiced his appeal at the first session of the economic advisory council, formed two weeks ago for the purpose of laying down a concerted economic program for the nation. Its twenty-five members include the industrial and commercial powers of Germany.

"I expect," he said, "that you will be animated by an inflexible will to ward off from our people whatever can be warded off by Germany's own strength. Only the consciousness of devotion to duty and of supreme effort will enable our people to bear, with dignity and with a feeling that all belong together, whatever proves to be an inescapable fate."

Asks Factions to Unite.

"None of you will fail to realize to what extent Germany's situation is determined by world political and economic considerations. These constitute the great tasks of Germany's foreign policy."

There can be no help from abroad, the president declared, unless there is union of the divergent factions at home. He warned that collaboration between the government and the economic elements of the nation is indispensable if the condition of the country is to improve.

Those who heard the 84 year old president's appeal compared it with two other public declarations he has made since he became head of the reich—his famous war guilt speech on his 80th birthday in 1927 and his address in March, 1930, in explanation of his reasons for signing the Young plan. Only on these three occasions has he sharply broken his rule of reserve.

Bruening Outlines Tasks.

Chancellor Bruening, who originated the council and prevailed on President von Hindenburg to head it, outlined to the members the tasks that confront them. His speech was not made public.

The council is composed of representatives of Germany's commerce, industry, trades, agriculture and labor. Among the men who agreed to serve on it are Ernst von Borsig, manufacturer; former Chancellor William Cuno, president of the Hamburg-American line; Herman Schmitz, director of the dye trust, and Paul Silverburg, industrialist.

"CRUSOES" STRIVE TO CATCH UP ON THEIR SMOKING

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Oct. 29.—(AP)—America's three unwilling emulators of "Robinson Crusoe" in the tropical Pacific, where making cocoanuts serve as ham and eggs is no new stunt, tried a little farming as well. This was learned today by Capt. George M. Bowdey, commander of the gunboat Sacramento, on which the castaways—Paul Stachwick, Gordon Brawner, and Elmer J. Palliser—are making their return to Balboa and civilization after six months on the tiny, uninhabited isle of Cocos.

The Sacramento, which rescued them Tuesday, reported their agricultural effort by radio. The three adventurers, having weathered a troublous storm one day last April, had a supply of beans and corn as they cast about for a place to rest and repair their raft, West Wind. Facing the necessity of coaxing a living out of the earth, they took some tools saved from the wreckage and began gardening. They cultivated a small plot into which were planted the beans and the corn.

The venture, however, proved unsuccessful. The beans and the corn, unused to the heavy rain of Cocos, were beaten from the start. The refugees are spending much of their time aboard ship smoking in an effort to use up, the captain reported.

A NEW RACKET RISES FROM WAR ON LOAN SHARKS

A reputed new racket, arising from another which has been under attack, is being investigated yesterday by the racket bureau of the state's attorney's office.

F. W. Irwin and D. F. Borden, operators of a so-called National League Opposed to Usury, with offices in the 30 North La Salle building, were taken to the racket bureau and questioned by Assistant State's Attorney Edwin C. Duffey and representatives of the Better Business bureau. They were released with a warning to cease operations.

"Plainly a racket, their operations were timely," Prosecutor Duffey said. They availed themselves of sentiment created by our drive against the loan sharks. When publicity drove the loan sharks to cover, exposing exorbitant interest rates, the alleged protection company was formed. Railroad workmen, express company employes, and others in the toils of the sharks were solicited. For a $10 fee they were supposed to be protected against usury. Due to the absence of a specific complaint, the men were released, but are being watched despite their promises."

COURT TO GRANT AUDITOR NELSON CHANGE OF VENUE

To Rule Tuesday on Bank Case Motions.

Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady of Lake county yesterday indicated he will grant the change of venue asked by State Auditor Oscar Nelson, George Woodruff, president of the former National Bank of the Republic, and Norman O. Geyer, former president of the defunct Waukegan State bank, all indicted on charges of conspiracy in connection with the failure of the Waukegan bank last June 17.

OSCAR NELSON.

Attorney Albert Fink, representing Auditor Nelson, presented a written motion to quash the conspiracy indictment against his client and also another indictment charging misfeasance in office. Mr. Fink also gave 16 arguments declaring the indictments and the special Lake county grand jury, which investigated the bank closing, to be illegal.

Will Make Ruling Tuesday.

Judge Dady directed attorneys for Woodruff and Geyer to prepare written motions to quash the indictments against them for submission Monday. On Tuesday the judge said he would rule on the motions to quash, although he will probably grant the change of venue. He explained he would make the rulings on the motions to expedite the trials.

"I cannot help but know something about the public feeling, number of depositors' meetings and press reports of the investigations so that I may have considerable doubt as to whether the defendants would receive a fair trial in Lake county," the judge said. "In view of this, attorneys may ask for another judge to hear the motions."

State's Attorney A. V. Smith and attorneys for the defendants said they would not make such a request.

William H. Miller, former vice president of the National Bank of the Republic, also under indictment, is to be tried in Lake county. Judge Dady announced he may secure Circuit Judge Edward D. Shurtleff of Marengo to hear the case. Arguments to quash are to be made in behalf of Miller before Judge Dady.

Another defendant, John Murray Connors, former vice president of the Waukegan bank, has made no request for a change of venue or change of judges. He will be tried before Judge Dady if the indictment against him is sustained.

Depositors Get Dividend.

The state auditor announced that 3,000 depositors of the North Town State bank, Devon and Claremont avenues, received a dividend of 20 per cent, which totals $115,000. The bank closed April 14. At the same time the auditor announced the appointment of Morgan L. Fitch, 7621 Colfax avenue, as receiver for the Hegewisch State bank, 13355 Brandon avenue, which closed Oct. 2.

The Congress Park State bank of Brookfield closed yesterday at the request of its board of directors. The bank had capital of $50,000 and deposits of $41,000. Depleted cash and secondary reserves was given as reasons for the closing. The closing leaves the suburb without a bank, as the only other bank, the Brookfield State bank, closed Wednesday.

TRUCK TRAILER GOES INTO DITCH; 5 COTTON PICKERS DIE; 20 HURT

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 29.—(AP)—A trailer attached to a truck loaded with cotton pickers went into a ditch near Marion, Ark., early today carrying five persons to their deaths and injuring more than a score of others.

Occupants of the truck, residents of Marietta and Curtisville in Prentiss county, Miss., were being moved to the Eason plantation, 35 miles north of Marion, where they were to pick cotton.

Cary Eason, plantation owner, was driving the truck with a trailer attached. Near Marion the trailer broke loose and careened into a six foot ditch. There were 53 in the party.

All the household goods of the families were carried on the truck and trailer. Motorists took the injured to Marion. The dead were brought to Memphis.

DEFENSE CLOSES ATTACK ON CANAL CASE INDICTMENT

Claim Charges Are Voided by Age.

Defense arguments on a motion to quash the graft indictment against Timothy J. Crowe and eight other defendants who were officials of the sanitary district during the "whoopee era" were concluded yesterday before Chief Justice Harry Fisher of the Criminal court and judges John Prystalski and James J. Kelly, sitting en banc.

Claim Age Voids Charges.

The defense argument was made yesterday by Attorney John L. McInerney. He based his contentions that the indictment should be quashed mainly on the statute of limitations. This statute, he asserted, at least covered the last four counts against the defendants.

Attorney McInerney argued that the counts in the new indictment were considerably different from those in the first indictment, which was withdrawn, and for that reason the statute of limitations had been operating after the first indictment was dismissed.

Police Hamper State Search.

It was revealed that state's attorney's detectives had been hampered in their search for Timothy L. Connolly, purchasing agent for the sanitary district under Crowe, because county highway police thought the detectives resembled "stickup men." Connolly has been a fugitive.

The detectives, Andrew Fasseas and George Crosoli, went to the White House, a roadhouse in Schiller Park, on Saturday night after hearing that Connolly frequented the place. County highway police found that they were carrying guns and held them until an inquiry revealed that they were really investigators.

QUIZ SHEDS NEW LIGHT ON DEALS OF CLOSED BANK

Judge Questions Banker on Notes.

A fat, worried man sat in the witness chair in Judge Michael J. Feinberg's court yesterday and writhed under the pointed questioning of the court. He was Harry S. Schoen, 3024 Adams street, cashier and director of the closed West Central State bank, which has been revealed in the hearing as having conducted business in an astounding manner before it failed. The bank is at Ogden avenue and Roosevelt road.

On Wednesday Charles Fryer, 3613 South Millard avenue, testified that a note for $2,770, which bore his name, had not been signed by him. Other testimony indicated that Schoen, the cashier, had written the note and listed it as part of the bank's assets. Schoene denied this when queried by the judge.

Points to Changed Writing.

Judge Feinberg directed the witness to produce specimens of his handwriting. The cashier wrote his own name and that of Fryer several times. The judge compared this writing with ledger sheets bearing the cashier's handwriting and remarked:

"Don't you notice a vast difference in these various exhibits of your writing before and after leaving the bank?"

Schoene admitted that his handwriting "might have changed" in two years.

The judge continued his efforts to discover if any of the score of witnesses who readily obtained loans from the bank without security had given commissions to any of the officials of the bank.

"Did any of the bank's customers remember you around Christmas time?" Judge Feinberg asked.

"Sometimes they gave me cigars, but nothing else," replied Schoene.

"To speak plainly, Mr. Schoen," said the judge, "did any customer give you a bonus for granting him a loan?"

By repeated questioning, the judge finally elicited from the witness another unusual fact regarding the bank's transactions. The bank books showed that Schoen owed the bank $3,930 on a note.

"I didn't get a nickel on that note," said Schoen. "We had purchased a second mortgage for that amount and we didn't want to have the bank examiners know we had done it because banks are not allowed to buy second mortgages. So I gave my note to be listed as an asset instead of the second mortgage."

The hearing will continue today. Several witnesses who promised to bring in cash to repay loans they obtained from the bank are scheduled to appear this morning. Terry Druggan, beer gangster, borrowed $17,000 from the bank on unsecured notes. Since the beginning of the hearing before Judge Feinberg in an effort to find assets of the closed institution, Terry has repaid nearly half of these loans.

2 NEW YORK SOCIETY FAMILIES VICTIMS OF $40,000 GEM ROBBERS

New York, Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Two recent jewel robberies of socially prominent families in the fashionable upper east side residential district were reported tonight.

A sneak thief entered the twenty room duplex penthouse apartment of Wilton Lloyd-Smith, lawyer, and stole 13 pieces of jewelry valued at $25,000.

A thief or thieves robbed the large apartment of O'Donnell Iselin and escaped with seven pieces of jewelry valued at $15,000.

SAYS TAX FROM BOOTLEGGER IS SIGN OF DECLINE

Taking revenue from a politician bootlegger is a sign of national decline, Stephen A. Day, constitutional lawyer, told the Junior Association of Commerce last night in the Hotel Sherman.

"There is a sardonic aspect to this travesty on law," said Mr. Day. "The identical liquor which pays a tax when used for medical purposes is exempt if merchandised by a bootlegger. The devil himself must laugh when he remembers that good medicine from a doctor is taxable, but if it gets into the hands of a criminal it is not.

"If prohibition were repealed, federal revenue from the excise tax on liquor in 17 wet states, comprising 49 per cent of the population, would produce $906,402,223 as compared with a government deficit of $868,243,200.

"Conceding that the drink bill under prohibition is no higher than before, it is evident that billions spent for drink are going to finance crime, and the government gets no revenue to fight crime. It is merely a problem of mathematics to figure out how long we will be able to finance our enemy."

AGED PASTOR KILLED.

WHAT ABOUT ADVERTISING RATES IN 1932?

AN IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT FROM TRUE STORY MAGAZINE!

SHOULD advertising rates and circulations follow present day economic trends?

True Story says "Yes."

And in announcing a rate adjustment based on a circulation of 1,800,000, we back this statement with definite action.

This is a deliberate choice—a choice based on our firm belief that newsstand sale at a quarter a copy is the advertiser's best assurance of real purchasing power and high reader interest.

Any student of the publishing business will agree that True Story could easily maintain its present guarantee of 2,000,000 by forced circulation methods.

But we do not believe that such circulation would be giving the advertisers the dollar-for-dollar value that they get from circulation based on True Story's traditional policy of more than 90% newsstand sale.

For newsstand sale at 25c a copy is an effective, immediate gauge of current buying power.

Newsstand sale at 25c follows the payrolls. That isn't theory. It's a fact that any True Story representative can support by actual sales figures.

In cities where unemployment is particularly acute, figures show True Story newsstand sales are down. Where general conditions are good, newsstand sales are up.

We feel that circulation based on this voluntary newsstand sale is the only way a magazine can search out the employed—the only way that you can buy circulation with every bit of the water squeezed out.

So, in making this adjustment, on a basis of 1,800,000, we believe we are bringing True Story directly in tune with today's economic trend.

At 1,800,000, True Story still has the greatest newsstand circulation of any magazine—regardless of price! And True Story's average circulation for the first nine months of 1931 was 1,950,000.

Effective with the January 1932 issue True Story's guarantee is 1,800,000, 90% newsstand,. and the adjusted rate schedule is as follows:

Full Page . . .	$4000.00	Line Rate . . .	$ 11.00
2 Columns . . .	2800.00	4 Color Insert .	6750.00
1 Column . . .	1400.00	Back Cover . .	9000.00
		Inside Cover .	$6750.00

END PLEAS IN FACTOR HEARING; RULING NOV. 10

British Crown Demands He Be Extradited.

Closing arguments in the case of John [Jake the Barber] Factor, whom the British government is seeking to extradite for trial on charges of defrauding investors in England of a reported $7,000,000, were completed yesterday before United States Commissioner Walker.

EDWIN K. WALKER.

He announced that his decision in the matter would probably be ready about Nov. 10. There is a record of 3,000 pages to be gone over.

Attorney Franklin R. Overmeyer, representing the British crown, demanded that Factor, the one time barber who became the gambling companion of important personages in the spas of Europe and later the promoter of tremendous deals in stocks, be extradited "in the interest of public justice."

Britain's Lawyer Pleads.

"Why should this man be protected?" Mr. Overmeyer asked. "If he is innocent of the charges against him let him go back to England and be acquitted. He has heaped affliction and distress on hundreds of people by taking money, not for his subsistence, but that he might live in luxury.

"Would you give this criminal an asylum here?"

Salmon O. Levinson, of counsel for Factor, objected to the word criminal. He declared that the whole extradition proceeding was a fishing expedition and that it was persecution instead of prosecution.

The attorneys for the dapper ex-promoter asserted that the Illinois law recognized no such charge as the one on which he is wanted in London: "Receiving money, knowing the same to have been fraudulently obtained."

Urges Against Technicality.

Mr. Overmeyer retorted that he was glad to know the objections of the attorneys were to the form rather than the substance of the charges and urged the commissioner not to allow the issue to be clouded by a technicality.

During the arguments the offer of Factor to pay claims of British investors, up to $2,000,000, as soon as a board of arbitration passes on them, was brought into the evidence. This was objected to by the crown's attorney, who declared that it had no place in the extradition proceedings. The proper place to mention the offer, he added, was in Judge Wilkerson's court, where the investors have already brought a civil suit against Factor. In fact, he said, this money is already tied up in trust funds by the civil suit.

Factor Plans to Appeal.

It was announced by Factor's lawyers that he would appeal to higher courts if Commissioner Walker ordered him sent back to England for trial.

Pending the decision, Factor remains in the custody of a deputy United States marshal. He has been in custody, technically, for five months. The deputy who accompanies him, it was pointed out in the discussion yesterday, allows him to go about the city as he likes, although keeping watch on him. Mr. Overmeyer referred to this as an unusual courtesy to a man charged with a criminal offense.

DOCTOR TELLS HOPEFUL SIDE OF CANCER WAR

Early Detection Is Chief Weapon, He Says.

Two common beliefs, that cancer is incurable and that X-ray and radium are ineffective in the treatment of cancer, are without foundation, Dr. Max Cutler, head of the recently established tumor clinic of Michael Reese hospital, said yesterday. He addressed the joint committee of the Hourly Nursing service at a luncheon in the Palmer house.

"Cancer of the skin is consistently cured by radium," Dr. Cutler said, "and a high proportion of cases of cancer of the tongue and mouth are cured by radium. The danger of radium burns can be totally eliminated now with skilled use.

Lists Five Hopeful Aspects.

"Among the hopeful aspects of cancer," he said, "are these five facts: The recognition of chronic irritation as one of the causes of cancer. If the disease is caught in the tumor stage a cure can be effected with ease. Cancer in certain parts of the body is curable by X-ray, radium, or operation. Many cases are curable by radium only. Lastly, the establishment of tumor clinics in large hospitals offers the most effective diagnosis and treatment to a class of patients formerly neglected."

The early detection of the disease is the chief weapon in fighting cancer, and it lies in the hands of the patient, Dr. Cutler said. He deplored the common dread of cancer, explaining that more persons die of heart disease annually in the United States than of cancer.

"The ultimate cause of cancer is the cause of cell growth," Dr. Cutler went on. "This we do not know and probably never will know, as it is linked with the mystery of life itself.

"But we can know contributing causes. In some quarters the belief is held that heredity is the chief cause. It cannot be denied, of course, that heredity is one factor.

Cancer of the Mouth.

"Bad teeth, tobacco, and social diseases are causes of cancer of the mouth. Three thousand persons die annually of cancer of the skin, yet most such cases can be prevented or treated early and cured.

"The care of the breasts during nursing is important. Injury is also recognized as a factor which may play an important part in inducing cancer.

"Free clinics and nursing service are the most hopeful agencies in the battle against cancer. For the patients who won't accept free clinic service the Hourly Nursing service affords an especially fine opportunity. The Hourly Nursing service also is important in the all-important follow-up work."

The Hourly Nursing service, a not for profit organization, has found that 28.78 per cent of all its cases are those of cancer patients, Miss Miriam Ames, superintendent of the service, said.

Mrs. Arthur H. Spiegel presided at the luncheon. Other members of the committee present included Mrs. Stanton A. Friedberg, Mrs. David Wilson Graham, Mrs. Ernest E. Irons, Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, Mrs. John W. Gary, Miss Edna L. Foley, Miss Kathryn S. Gruber, and Mrs. Lucy Van Frank.

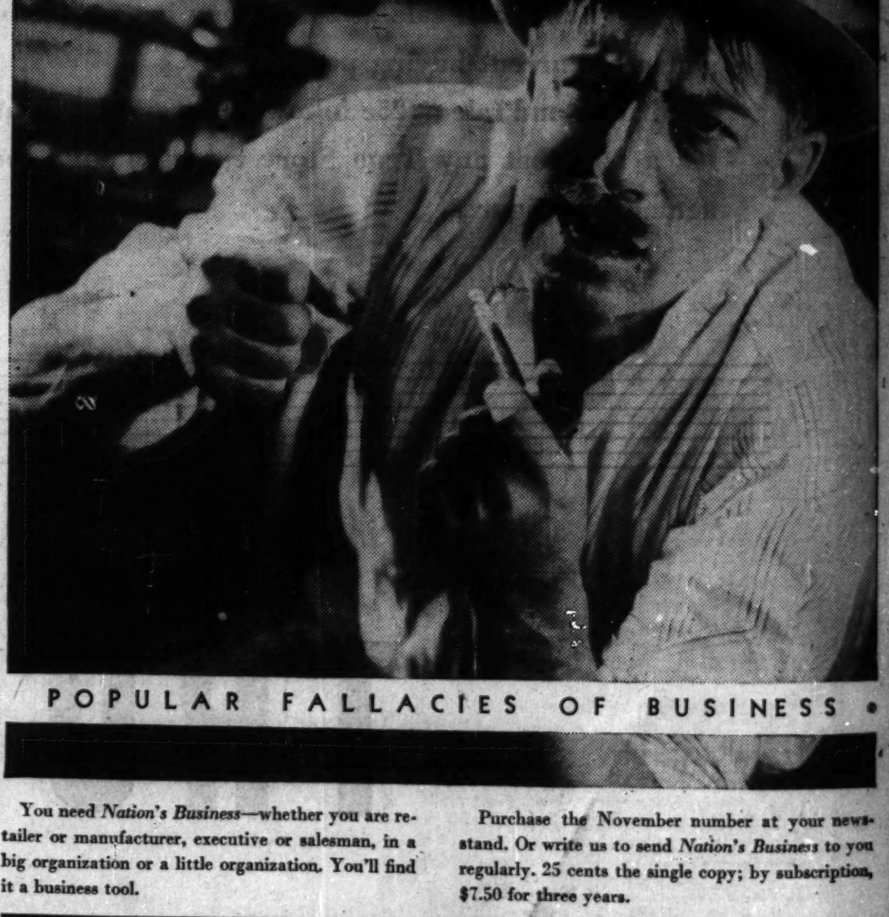
"DAMN the CHAINS"



"DAMN THE CHAINS!" cries an anti-chain store agitator. "They don't do their part in civic affairs. They ship all their money out of the community!"

"Damn the independent merchants!" retorts another class of critics. "The 'independents' are backward and inefficient. They keep distribution costs too high. They ought to be wiped out."

Both wrong!

In legislatures and in city councils—through newspaper advertisements and "over the air"—around the stoves in general stores and across the directors' tables of manufacturers—the battle of the "independent" vs. the "chain" is waged.

One type of business assails another type of business! Sweeping charge is met with sweeping countercharge! Appeals are made to government and to punitive tax. A vicious family of fallacies is bred, sired by the mistaken notion that the way to solve the problems of one business is to attack another business!

The old adage still applies: Every tub must stand on its own bottom. That type of distribution unit, or manufacturing system, or professional service that best meets the need of its patrons, its times, its locality, will prosper. The customers see to that! And the universal foes of business everywhere in every era are fallacious thinking, misrepresentation, based on unsound, erroneous conclusions.

For twenty years Nation's Business has served business by combating fallacy with fact. Today it is bringing new energies—new resources—to its task.

$15,000 SOUGHT TO PRESS FIGHT ON TUBERCULOSIS

Mrs. A. H. Niblack Leads [illegible] County Drive.

The annual Christmas Seal drive of the Lake County Tuberculosis association will be concentrated next month in Lake Forest and Highland Park in an effort to raise $15,000 to continue the organization's work during 1932. The drive begins Thanksgiving day.

This announcement was made yesterday by Mrs. Austin H. Niblack, 1441 West Old Mill road, Lake Forest, chairman of the publicity committee of the association. She has been working three mornings weekly in the headquarters of the organization in Waukegan preparing the campaign. Coöperating is Miss Ruth Hendrickson, acting executive secretary.

Need $15,000 for 1932.

"Last year only $7,200 was realized from the drive," said Mrs. Niblack. "We will require at least $15,000 for 1932. There are now 400 cases of tuberculosis on record in Lake county. All Lake county will be asked to aid, but Highland Park and Lake Forest will receive particular attention."

Mrs. Niblack said she believed that letters with more personal appeal would bring in better results. She will send such letters to leading citizens of the north shore, she said, to raise the $15,000.

Finances of the Tuberculosis association are none too strong at present, Miss Hendrickson pointed out. There is only $700 left in the treasury. Moreover, $1,068 was on deposit in the Waukegan State bank when it closed last summer, tying up much needed funds. As a result it has been necessary to release an office secretary, and to dispense with the services, Nov. 1, of the lone dental hygienic worker. This means, it was stated, that the county-wide work of the organization will have to be carried out by one person, Miss Hendrickson, unless sufficient financial aid is given.

Three Phases of Work.

The work of the association is divided into three phases, rural school education, general education, and direct aid to sufferers. Personal visits are made to homes by the hygienic nurses, instructions on dental and physical sanitation and care are given in schools and elsewhere. Thus far in 1931 a chest testing clinic has been held monthly in the St. Therese hospital, Waukegan, numbering 255 examinations.

This year there has been a 3 per cent gain in weight correction, and a 39 per cent increase in dental correction, due to the campaign in schools, halls, and homes. This campaign was carried on by talks, movies, posters, booklets, and letters.

U. S. CONFISCATES 2 FARMS WHERE RUM WAS MADE

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Under orders of Federal Judge Louis Fitzhenry government agents today seized twenty acres of land in Putnam county and two acres in Bureau county where "wildcat" stills were discovered by prohibition agents a year ago.

The case is the first of its kind decided in a federal court since the eighteenth amendment became a law.

The land will be sold by the government, but the interests of persons holding mortgages will be respected.

The twenty acres seized are on the Joseph Engelhaupt farm and include all of the farm buildings. On the Elmer F. Flaherty farm in Bureau county a plot of 1.8 acres, on which all buildings but the house are located, is seized in addition to a lane leading to the barn lot and a right of way where electric light wires cross a field.

Flaherty testified that he sold the land to Peter Flogalto on Oct. 16, 1929, for $3,500. A barn, silo, and other improvements, including a tool shed in which federal agents found a complete distilling plant, were situated on this land.

All of the buildings except the tool shed were leased by Flaherty after he sold the land, which was separated by fences from the rest of the farm, where William Mauer, Flaherty's hired man, made his home. Despite the fact that Flaherty kept his horses and some mechanical equipment in the buildings near the tool shed and often went to Mauer's home, also adjoining the building where the still was located, he testified that he did not know what was being done in the shed; never mentioned it to Mauer, and was not even curious about it.

"Flogalto," he said, "told me when he bought the land that he was going to work on a patent."

FALL OFF ROOF FATAL.

A. W. Pancera, 37 years old, was killed when he fell from the roof of his home at 1101 Cornell street yesterday.

FIND 40,000 CITY AUTOS WITH TAGS OF OTHER STATES

Fifty inspectors working out of the city license bureau have uncovered 40,000 Chicago motorists who have purchased automobile licenses in states where the vehicle tax is cheaper than in Illinois, Fred Fischman, superintendent of licenses, said yesterday.

The inspectors have been touring the city, Mr. Fischman said, investigating "out of town" licenses, tracing ownership from the license tags, and determining whether the owners are registered as voters in Chicago. Sufficient evidence has been obtained, he said, to procure warrants against the violators.

The investigation was undertaken at the order of Mayor Cermak. The violators will be forced to buy both Illinois licenses and city vehicle tags. The revenue lost to the city through the evasion of the vehicle tag ordinance has been estimated by city officials at $200,000.

STAFF OFFICER MAKES PLEA FOR STRONG DEFENSE

Col. Alfred T. Smith, assistant chief of staff of the U. S. army, last night addressed 500 members of the Cook County chapter, Reserve Officers association, following a dinner in the Naval Reserve armory at the foot of Randolph street. Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the sixth corps area, was a guest.

Col. Smith traced the development of the American army from 1897, when he became an officer up to the present moment. He stressed the need of maintaining a strong army as a defense weapon with many countries of the world filled with unrest.

Col. Smith is chief of the division of the general staff of the army which deals with military intelligence.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 29.—A new French plan for gradually thawing out the funds frozen in Germany and a new German plan to hang on to everything possible by scaling down war debt payments were simultaneously intimated here tonight.

The French plan was unfolded today to Premier Laval by a Banque de France expert on the S. S. Ile de France, bound for France from the United States.

A reliable German source said Germany is going to invoke the safeguard clause in the Young plan, by means of which a committee appointed by the world bank will investigate all phases of the country's financial situation and fix its exact capacity to pay war indemnities. Ambassador von Hoesch is now in Berlin. He will return here Sunday with the German plan in his pocket.

SEEK TO CURB NAMES OF NOTED ATHLETES ON SPORTING GOODS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Golden signatures of athletic stars' indorsers of sporting goods are about to be blotted up by the trade commission and the industry.

As a result of conference with athletic equipment manufacturers and other branches of the industry, the commission announced a set of trade practice rules calling for:

Plain labeling of indorsements as purchased when so obtained.

Prohibition of the use of a notable's name on equipment he did not design or use.

Prevention of infringement by one firm upon another in the use of indorsers' names.

The commission said 90 per cent of the athletic goods industry agreed to the code.

LION MAULS AND KILLS U. S. GAME HUNTER IN AFRICA

Aberdeen, Wash., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Will E. Herren, 47, Aberdeen contractor and big game hunter, died Sunday in Nairobi, British East Africa, from injuries suffered Oct. 21 when mauled by a lion, said a cable received today from Gus Peret of Yoncala, Ore., one of Herren's companions on an African big game photographing expedition.

The lion charged while the party was taking motion pictures on the plains of Tanganyika. The beast felled Herren and was clawing and chewing him when a bullet from Peret's rifle ended its life. Herren was taken 350 miles to the Nairobi hospital, where he died four days later.

The party had been hunting about a month. W. H. Coleman of Seattle, one of the party, was an archer, hunting with bow and arrows. Mrs. Herren and Mrs. Coleman were also on the expedition.

U. S. SHIP LINES TO BE SOLD TO HUGE COMBINE

Leviathan Included; Close Deal Today.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—An agreement by which the United States lines with their flagship, the Leviathan, will be taken over by the newly formed United States Lines Corporation of Nevada, will be reached probably tomorrow.

T. V. O'CONNOR.

Following an all day meeting of the shipping board, T. V. O'Connor, chairman of the board, said tonight that a practical agreement has been reached with the interests behind United States Lines of Nevada, in which the controlling factors are the Dollar-Dawson-Chapman group, the International Mercantile Marine, the Roosevelt Steamship company, and H. Fleishhacker, San Francisco banker. All these interests were represented before the board at its meeting today.

Details Are Kept Secret.

No details of the agreement which the board and the interests involved expected to sign tomorrow were given out, and Chairman O'Connor said that none would be until a few minor matters are settled and the document is signed and delivered. The general understanding, however, is that a payment of between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000 in cash or its equivalent is part of the agreement, about two-thirds of this amount to be applied to operating expenses and the rest to meet construction charges of the two new liners now being built for the United States Lines at the New York Shipbuilding company yards in Camden, N. J.

A feature of the agreement is said to be a guarantee to operate the Leviathan for at least seven round trips annually. Other features of the agreement, according to unofficial talk in shipping board circles, eliminate competition as between the interests behind the new merger and provide for traffic in the Pacific as well as in the Atlantic.

Agreement Seen Months Ago.

For more than four months the board has been seeking a solution of the United States Lines' problem. A month ago the board was convinced for a while than an agreement with the Dollar-Dawson-Chapman interests was in sight.

The lawyers of the board were directed to draft a contract, but at the last minute the deal fell through and then came the suggestion for a combination of the principal interests concerned in the bidding, in this instance the Dollar-Dawson-Chapman group, International Mercantile Marine, and the Roosevelt Lines, which was shortly followed by the incorporation of the United States Lines of Nevada.

CARAWAY STANDS OPERATION O. K., DOCTORS SAY

Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 29.—(AP)—United States Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway of Arkansas underwent an operation here today for removal of a kidney stone. His physicians said the operation was a success, and the senator's condition was described as entirely satisfactory.

The operation was planned for yesterday but a shifting of the stone caused a postponement. Senator Caraway had been suffering from the kidney ailment for several months. This summer he was in a Washington hospital for a time and later was in a hospital at Hot Springs.

WINNER OF POLICE PRIZE NAMED HEAD OF VETERANS' GROUP

Policeman Ambrose M. Mahoney was elected president of the Second Division association at the Adventurers' club last night. He is attached to the West North avenue station.

POLICEMAN MAHONEY.

He served with the 96th company, 6th marines, during the war, and was one of the twenty men who captured the town of Bourecbes, in June, 1918, where Floyd Gibbons, then a CHICAGO TRIBUNE war correspondent, lost his eye. Mahoney received a decoration for bravery for his share in the capture.

The new association president has been on the police force since the war. He was awarded THE TRIBUNE hero prize of $100, an award given monthly for exceptional valor by policemen or firemen, for his killing of two bandits as they were holding up a restaurant at 2103 Madison street, in March, 1927. Other officers elected are Charles S. Cole, first vice president; James Giblin, second vice president; B. W. Kallin, treasurer, and Leonard Cole, secretary.

NAN'S BOOK IS READ AT TRIAL; JURY ALL EARS

Even She Blushes at Own Writings.

Toledo, O., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Two family skeletons were rattled loudly in the halls of the federal court today as Nan Britton's $50,000 libel suit over her claim that Warren G. Harding was her daughter's father dragged through another session. Not a witness took the stand during the day.

C. A. KLUNK.

Instead of testimony, the jury lolled back in their chairs and enjoyed a day of reading from two books, the one that provoked the suit and the one that first brought into print Miss Britton's claim against the former President. It was the first time that the books became public property through being introduced as evidence in a court of law.

Still proceeding in reverse, with the defense on the offensive, Grant Mouser, a tousled haired veteran in Ohio legal circles, particularly Marion, strutted back and forth before the jury in schoolmaster fashion as he read from the two books.

Sitting alone at her counsel table, Miss Britton often appeared to blush at references to her character or association with Harding.

The first defense of the former President came in the closing chapters of "The Answer to the President's Daughter," the book that was sold in a hotel operated in Marion by C. A. Klunk, the defendant in the libel suit. "The Answer" is written in the form of a trial and Miss Britton is referred to as the complaining witness.

In the afternoon Mouser kept the packed courtroom tense as he turned to the more sensational chapters of Miss Britton's book, "The President's Daughter."

SHOT BY HIS STEPFATHER.

Walter Kreuger, 22 years old, was shot in the right knee by his stepfather, Harry Kettler, in their home at 2833 Warren boulevard last night after a quarrel over their respective contributions towards the household expenses.

AUCTION ESTATE KINKLESS HAIR IDEA PURCHASED

Throng at Sale of "Mme. Walker's" Effects.

New York, Oct. 29.—[Special.]—The last tangible fruits of the invention that straightened a million kinks and made more than a million dollars for the late Mme. C. J. Walker went under the auctioneer's hammer today at the Walker estate, Villa Lewaro, at Irvington-on-the-Hudson.

The elaborate mansion of the world's wealthiest Negro woman, who worked out by the day until she began marketing her patent hair straightener, was host to an odd throng, mostly women, who came to buy from the job lot of luxury that crammed the house. Dozens of automobiles parked in the drive attested to the presence of many of the Westchester fashionables who by their attendance were paying a tribute to Mme. Walker.

Mingled with them were many Negro women with more slender purses, hoping to retrieve some memento of the almost legendary woman.

Sold by Administrator.

The sale, which will run through the week, is the second auction that has taken place in the house. A year ago people flocked to buy a collection of the effects of Mme. Walker—things that her daughter, Alelia, wished to dispose of. The daughter has since died and now the rest of her own and her mother's effects are being let go by the administrator of the estate.

It was Alelia Walker for whom Lewaro was named. Though her mother, shrewd founder of the fortune, was uneducated, Alelia had every advantage and was a woman of education and taste, well traveled, the friend of many important personalities of the last two decades. It was while visiting in her home that Enrico Caruso suggested the name Lewaro for the estate, a synthetic blending of Alelia Walker's married name, her husband being named Robinson.

The buying was not very lively. The presence of several New York dealers was an indication of bargain prices, according to Benjamin S. Wise, the auctioneer, the same who a year ago disposed of the furnishings of the Waldorf-Astoria.

To Last Through Week.

The sale will become more interesting later in the week as the auctioneer works down to the drawing room and the rest of the first floor. There is a Chickering grand piano in a special case of carved walnut, the original cost of which was $12,000. The rich dining room is brilliant with half a dozen full sets of china, Limoges, Royal Worcester and such like fine ware.

Every room on the lower floor bulges opulently, some of the pieces somewhat grotesque and lush, but opulent, nevertheless. Several dozen oriental rugs are items not to be sneezed at in any Westchester house. One might even buy the cheap copy of the "St. James Infirmary" blues, the only piece of music on the grand piano.

When the auctioneer knocked off for lunch today the Negro caretaker who has been living in the house sold sandwiches and coffee to the purchasers in the basement, the scene faintly reminiscent of the mixing of races at tables in Harlem.

ROBBERS HOLD UP 8, GET $9,000 IN WILMINGTON BANK

Compelling six customers to lie face down upon the floor, two bandits yesterday robbed the First National bank of Wilmington, 15 miles south of Joliet. They escaped with about $5,000 in cash and securities valued at $4,000. They bound the two bank officials on duty in the cages with sash cord after threatening one until he had opened the vault where most of the loot was locked up.

The robbers entered the bank about 9:50 a. m. F. D. Willard, vice president, and L. A. Bitterman, cashier, were serving the patrons. One robber pointed a gun at the customers and waved them into a back room where he told them to lie down. Standing in the doorway between that room and the cages, he kept watch over both customers and bank officers while his companion forced Bitterman to the vault and commanded him to open it. The cashier was nervous, but he managed to work the combination.

The money and securities in their possession, the robbers ran from the bank and jumped into a small sedan driven by a confederate. The car speeded east to Peotone, then turned toward Chicago, eluding pursuers.

BRIDE, 58, MUST PAY DETECTIVES IN DIVORCE CASE

Mrs. Harry C. Wils, the former Mrs. Sarah V. Brown Deynzer, was ordered yesterday by Justice of the Peace Borchardt of Evanston to pay $174 to a private detective agency for gathering the evidence on which she won a divorce from John Deynzer. Mrs. Wils, who is 58 years old, was married to her present husband, an automobile salesman, on Sept. 30. She was reported to have inherited several million dollars on the death of her first husband, Edwin Brown.

Palmer Tells Baker's Story of World War

Describes Making of American Armies.

"Newton D. Baker—America at War," by Col. Frederick Palmer [Dodd, Mead & Co.]. Two volumes.

NEWTON D. BAKER, the mayor of Cleveland, answered the call of Woodrow Wilson and in March of 1916 went to Washington as secretary of war. Frederick Palmer has set down the record of that man from that time until after the armistice, Nov. 11, 1918. The character of Newton D. Baker, his work and his place in the history of the United States are both clarified in these volumes.

FREDERICK PALMER

Baker's first important move after the declaration of war, April 6, 1917, was to go ahead, without awaiting the sanction of congress, with his war program involving the expenditure of billions of dollars, and he literally ran the risk of being put in jail.

But Baker knew that if he waited for congress to appropriate the funds there would be a dangerous delay. Col. Palmer cites remarks of congressmen to show how few were aware of the needs of the United States at war. The damage that might have been done while such men were becoming convinced was almost incalculable. These actions, as told by Palmer, explode the theory of Baker's persistent pacifism and delay.

Baker knew that the initial demands of France for only a few hundred thousand men and our economic assistance were fantastic optimism. Mr. Palmer says, he prepared for an army double the estimated size. The United States ultimately raised a much larger army than any one, even he, had anticipated.

Col. Palmer reveals to what extent, unknown to the public at that time, the volunteer system was falling short, when it was determined to resort to a draft.

The draft had been tried previously in the history of the United States in the civil war—with disastrous results. Col. Palmer shows that Baker, with the censure of many factions aimed at him and against public sentiment, should have put the conscription through without any destructive political attacks and without rioting is another tribute to this quiet man's diplomacy.

President Wilson, Palmer points out, realizing that divided power in the war department would have been a serious danger, gave Baker virtually absolute authority. Baker chose for his staff those men who were expert in their particular fields. He never evaded criticism nor hesitated to learn by it.

Baker, in his turn, selected Pershing as the commander in chief of the American expeditionary force and gave him virtually absolute authority.

With almost unbelievable speed we prepared ourselves for war. A country inclined toward pacifism, and without any militaristic preparation, mobilized a huge army, manufactured all sorts of equipment, found means of transport, and actually created an air force. Though at the time, in the heat and fanaticism of war, our preparation seemed to be continually slowed up, perspective presents a splendid accomplishment. But for Baker with his knowledge of the war machinery there would have been fatal delays.

Baker, the little, quizzical, philosophical man who became secretary of war, without any military qualifications, and with only his shrewd wisdom and a vision beyond his experience to guide him, appears in Palmer's book to dominate the home war scene. Perhaps his was the most difficult of all war time jobs, partly because of bitter criticism led by George Harvey and Theodore Roosevelt. After the war started Baker and his department were subjected to an official investigation. He made an eloquent defense before a senate committee.

CHICAGO RELIEF CASH NEARLY $4,000,000; OIL GROUP HELPING

Employes of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana yesterday subscribed $39,413.42 to the Joint Emergency Relief Fund on the day's pay a month for six months plan. The corporation matched the employes pledges and as a result $78,826.84 was added to the fund. This brought the total contributed thus far to $3,952,520.84. The total deemed necessary for aid to the poor and unemployed this winter is $8,800,000.

Publishers of the Foreign Language press met at the Hamilton club and were addressed by John F. Gilchrist, vice president of the Commonwealth Edison company. The publishers selected a committee which will enroll all the staffs and employés of the various publications as subscribers to the fund.

Edward L. Ryerson, president of the fund, announced that 95 cents out of every dollar contributed to the fund will go to the actual relief of the needy. Only 5 cents out of each dollar will be used up in administrative expenses and other overhead expenses, he revealed. Nothing is spent for overhead expenses by the fund in operating its office or in the campaign.

The relief fund workers have stressed a belief in their speeches that the $8,800,000 put into circulation by the fund this winter may afford "the relatively small change" referred to.

Planet Hunter Says New One Eludes Science

Affects Conduct of Others, Avers Dr. Pickering.

New York, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Astronomical computations predicting a giant unknown planet, 44,000 miles in diameter, lying far outside the present solar system limits, was received here today from William H. Pickering, Harvard astronomer. He names it Planet P., and says it is a member of the sun's family.

Dr. Pickering, who like Dr. Percival Lowell predicted Pluto, the planet discovered two years ago, based his forecast of the new unknown planet upon years of computations. His latest figures were given to the Associated Press today in response to a request for information.

The astronomer finds the evidence of this unknown planet in a perturbation of the planet Uranus. This planet, Dr. Pickering says, is off its course and the deviation is accounted for by existence of an unknown planet exerting a gravitational pull.

Dr. Pickering also finds additional evidence of this unknown giant in the actions of certain comets.

His estimations are that the unknown is the third in size in the solar system, Jupiter and Saturn being larger. Its distance from the sun is estimated to vary between 5,000,000,000 and 9,000,000,000 miles, depending upon the planet's position in its elliptical orbit.

This entire orbit is diagrammed by Dr. Pickering, whose sketch shows it lying completely outside even of the vast path described by Pluto. At present Uranus and the unknown planet are on the same side of the sun, Dr. Pickering states, and this brings the unknown brother close enough to tug at Uranus.

Pluto and Neptune still are farther from the sun than is Uranus, but just now both are on the opposite side of the sun from the computed position of Planet P. and this, Dr. Pickering says, puts them out of influence of the gravitational disturbance. But he predicts that Neptune probably will be perturbed by the unknown planet in the year 2040.

Only telescopes in the southern hemisphere could see the new planet in the present forecast position. If they are turned upon the right part of the sky, Dr. Pickering says, the planet is so big it will show a disc, instead of a mere point of light.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams.

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight.")

In spite of popular tradition, every man who works hard and conscientiously does not reach the pinnacles of success. In contract many hands, expertly and soundly bid, are doomed to failure because of an unlucky break or skillful defense by the adversaries. Yesterday's problem hand is an example:

NORTH.
♠—A,K,Q
♥—J,10,9
♦—J,6,5,2

WEST
♥—3

EAST
♠—9,5,4,3,2

SOUTH (Dealer).
♠—J
♥—A,K,Q,6,4,2
♦—K,Q,8,7
♣—9,8

South, holding four high card tricks and seven tricks in all, opened with a bid of two hearts. West passed. North, not holding adequate support, but holding a no trump count of 11, bid two no trumps. East passed. North's denial of hearts merely told South that North did not hold as many as four hearts (or A x x, K x x, Q x x). South, with a six card suit, was perfectly willing to play hearts as long as North held as many as two and, therefore, rebid his heart suit. West passed. From South's rebid, North knew that South had at least five hearts and so normal support (three small) was sufficient. He, therefore, raised South (holding three high card tricks) to four hearts. East, South, and West then passed.

South's and North's bidding was sound. With the average player sitting East four hearts would have been made, but the East who played this hand was a discerning player who knew his defense.

West opened with the ♣ K. North played the 3 and East stopped to think. He reasoned that, if South held two clubs, East and his partner would normally take two club tricks and the ♦ A, which would give South the game. Now, if West had four clubs, South held just two. That would mean that if East allowed his partner's ♣ K to take and then took the next trick in clubs and followed by leading the ♦ A, he could not get back into West's hand by leading another club since South would trump it. He must get back into West's hand to stop game, first playing the ♦ A in order to give West a diamond lead that he, East, could trump.

If West held five clubs, South only held one and nothing East and West could do would stop game. If West held three clubs, South held three and nothing South could do would give him game. East's play, then, was only important if South held two clubs.

East played his A on his partner's ♣ K, taking in the trick; he then played his singleton ♦ A. East now led a small club which West took with the queen. West returned a diamond which East trumped, saving the game.

The hardest thing in the world to teach the average player is that the result of any particular hand is not conclusive evidence of the proper bidding of that hand. Let us suppose that we lay out the North and South hands just as given and then take the remaining 26 cards, shuffle them, and divide them equally between East and West.

Suppose, moreover, that this were done one hundred times and, as is probable, a hundred different combinations of East's and West's holdings resulted. It is likely that in ninety out of these hundred holdings North and South would make four odd; that in five of the remaining ten they would make more than four, and that in the other five they would make less.

PLAY-A-PROBLEM: SOLITAIRE OR PARTNERS

Play this hand tonight at your bridge game. Keep a record of the bid and play in the spaces provided. Numbers in the bidding squares are for successive rounds. Check your results with tomorrow's answer.

To play "Solitaire": Record the bids you think each hand would make in the bidding squares. After the final declaration has been made start the play, leading from the hand at declarer's left. As you play each card, cross it off of the diagram and record it in the proper square, as S. 3, H. K, etc. In the last column indicate the hand which won the round and lead from that hand on the next round.

Is the soul of America pitifully small and undeveloped in comparison with American shrewdness and energy?

Is it being smothered by the extreme mechanization and standardization of all our functions?

Is the America of tomorrow condemned to the fate of Tyre and Ninevah?

What does the future hold for our civilization?

Ex-Kaiser's Son Denies Plan to Restore Throne

Joachim Talks of His Family's Fate.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

BERLIN, Oct. 29. — Though the Hohenzollern dynasty is dethroned, Berlin still has its Hohenzollern prince who lives in the palace of his ancestors, right in the heart of the German capital.

If you walk along the "Wilhelmstrasse," past the white house, the foreign office, the chancellery, and numerous official buildings, you finally are drawn to the most stately of all these buildings, with beautiful trees shimmering between high imposing columns and a vast park stretching behind the big palace. The home of Prince Joachim Albrecht of Hohenzollern.

A Hohenzollern throne stands in a nearby festive hall, but the big rooms are scarcely ever used. The prince receives his visitors in small, unpretentious rooms, dotted with old fashioned upholstered furniture as you might find in any old fashioned middle class family. Pictures of old gentlemen in simple uniforms, of ladies with pompadours, beautiful décolletés and gowns of stiff silk — an autograph from Bismarck, another one from Hindenburg—in simple frames, can be seen on the slightly faded walls. None of the stiffness you expect to find in a palace. Pomp and ceremonies don't please the owner, Prince Joachim Albrecht, who even in the days of the kaiser, devoted most of his time to music and art.

As only member of the Hohenzollern family who still resides in Berlin, Prince Joachim Albrecht can tell much about what Hohenzollerns are doing today. Uppermost in the mind of all is the question, "What does the new generation of Hohenzollern intend to do?

"Will it struggle to reconquer the throne of its ancestors?" The answer of the only Hohenzollern living in Berlin is, "No, I don't believe that any of them will do it," stroking his carefully kept gray beard, the prince muses. And a Hohenzollern gossips about Hohenzollerns.

"The crown prince showed remarkably sound judgment during the war when he tried to warn his father and h father's advisers of the dangers of protracted war," Prince Joachim Albrecht tells his visitor who asks about the Hohenzollern family. His brother, Prince Eitel Friedrich, is having a harder time than the crown prince, because he was a soldier to the marrow of his bones.

THE STAGE

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

THE Chicago stage will make its contribution to the city-wide drive for unemployment relief in the form of an "All-Star Gambol," to be given in the Civic Opera house next Sunday afternoon. The stars, principals, character actors, and choristers of every show in town will be there, and those who do not contribute to the generous program of entertainment will be visible at least—seated on the stage as the celebrants at a cabaret performance. In view of the fact that the current playbills are rich in free-hand, extempore comedians, this mixed bill promises to establish a record in entertainment values for benefits.

The curtain will rise at 2:30 to disclose a scene in a café, with a background representing some ducal palace out of the opera repertory. Ben Bernie's band will play while the histrions warm up with a little public dancing. Then "the old maestro," as Mr. Bernie is known in his profession, will start the ball rolling as master of ceremonies. Phil Baker, Benny Rubin and Walter O'Keefe, representing "Crazy Quilt," "Girl Crazy," and "The Third Little Show," will pick up the plot where Mr. Bernie drops it, and from that point the show will be a laughing frolic until Louis Armstrong's jazzists play the recessional.

Beatrice Lillie (Lady Peel to her acquaintances) will offer a sketch with Ernest Truex as her associate. Later on she will do a sister act with Fannie Brice of "Crazy Quilt." Blossom Seeley, Frances Upton, and Hal Thompson of "Girl Crazy" will give some of the liveliest numbers from that musical comedy, backed by its choristers. Carl Randall and the dancing lassies of the "Third Little Show" will frisk like kittens, and Walter O'Keefe will not forget to bring his tuba.

The heavenly choir from "The Green Pastures" will sing spirituals. Moissaye Boguslawski will show what a virtuoso can do to a piano. Rosemary Deering will flutter through a ballet number. "Once in a Lifetime" will be represented by Jean Dixon, Ruthelma Stevens, Hugh O'Connell, Grant Mills, and Marjorie Wood.

The Tavern club, which is sponsoring the benefit, will entertain the participants at a midday breakfast before the show. Ernest Byfield, chairman of the program committee, will be host at a greenroom reception. John J. Garrity, technical overseer, will have stage managers in ambush at every exit and light switch.

All of which promises the best benefit show in the town's history. A capacity audience is expected.

Maude Adams' return to the stage as co-star with Otis Skinner in "The Merchant of Venice" will begin in Cleveland next Tuesday night. Recent additions to the cast are Robert Harrison, Frank Henderson, Byron Russell, and Joseph Curtin. The company will travel around actively, and the week of Nov. 23 will find it in Boston.

School Board Attacked by Another Speaker.

Six hundred women attended the annual one day regional conference of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs yesterday in the Hotel Sherman. They discussed training men as home makers; wild flower preservation; community centers; and child welfare, etc.

"Twenty-six community centers have been closed by the board of education for lack of funds," Mrs. Willis M. Graham, chairman of a committee, told her group. "In the great tragedies of unpaid teachers and hungry children, we have been overlooking this third tragedy, which is turning young people to pool rooms, dance halls, and the streets for recreation.

"I know of ten basketball teams which are anxious to play but have no gymnasium to play in. The gymnasiums are lighted at night and open for the janitors to clean them, but although I went to the board with the plea, red tape prevented my obtaining permission for the teams to use them.

"The ballot has entitled us women to have a voice in government. In view of the deplorable condition of our school finances," she continued, "I think we would be justified in not only letting our voices be heard but in turning on the loud speaker.

"I am told there is a plan to put recreation into the night schools," said Mrs. Graham. "This is a step, but it doesn't take the place of community centers with athletics. The boy who needs to be kept off the street is not going to see much lure in choruses and dramatic classes.

"I hope the club women of Chicago will start a concentrated drive on the budget committee of the board of education. If there is going to be money to budget, we want it spent on necessities, not dictaphones, superfluous reference book and overpriced toys and on auditors, while the teachers walk to school for lack of carfare and share their meager luncheons with children who are fainting from hunger."

Mrs. Wilbur E. Fribley, addressing the American home conference, one of many group meetings held in the afternoon, pointed out that parents should encourage both boys and girls to study the fundamentals of homemaking.

"I should like to see a course in budgeting introduced for boys in the schools," she said. "The reason more budgets aren't successful is that the husbands leave it to their wives to manage without cooperating.

"Boys also ought to learn to help do some things in the home. For instance, I think a man gets a great deal of pleasure out of keeping the cellar steps clean and the yard in order. As for the home economics courses offered girls, they are not made attractive or practical enough."

Home influence is important in accident prevention, Mrs. James H. Downey, head of the women's division for safety of the Detroit police department, told one group.

Mrs. Clyde E. Clarkson of Nashville, told the art conference that members of women's clubs should protest the use of rural billboards by national advertisers, and should attempt to obtain legislation against billboards which hide scenery on state highways.

Miss Zoe Louise Gray deplored the "waste, disorder and destruction made by persons in automobiles on picnics, with their aftermath of broken branches, flowers torn up by roots, and tin cans and paper strewn over the ground."

Wild flowers so rare that they should never be picked were listed by her as follows: Blue bell, bittersweet, columbine, blue phlox, closed and fringed gentians, blood root, cardinal flowers, Dutchman's breeches, Jack-in-the pulpit, pink lady slippers, sepatica, trillium, shooting star, and false Solomon's seal.

Early Christian Art on Display at the University of Chicago

A collection of early Christian religious art pieces was opened for exhibition at Wieboldt hall on the University of Chicago campus yesterday. Objects range from the 3d to the 12th centuries. The exhibition will last for two weeks.

One of the outstanding works displayed in the collection is a Coptic tapestry, made in Egypt in the 6th century, A. D., into which the figure of St. Theodore had been woven. The piece was lent to the Renaissance society of the university by Mrs. John D. Rockefeller Jr.

A bronze cross carried by the Christians during the 4th century and found in the catacombs is one of the exhibits.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

(Registered U. S. Patent Office.)

WOMAN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

The seaming detail of this black Canton crepe frock introduces the new back movement in the skirt. The collar on one side of the neck only, and the sleeves with the contrasting color cleverly placed are other smart details. The sheer woolens, crêpe satin, or crêpe marocain are suitable.

The pattern, 3357, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material with ⅜ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

Fine Statues on Display at Art Institute

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The Forty-fourth Annual American Paintings and Sculpture exhibition opened yesterday afternon in the east wing galleries of the Art institute. The exhibit is more varied than usual and the division of sculpture is particularly fine. If among the pictures some that are more or less trash did slip by the jury yet the standard of the invited works is higher and saner than last year so that altogether we have a more interesting and better balanced exhibition in the current show.

The jury undoubtedly has been reading mystery stories. Nothing more pertinent than an Edgar Wallace steeped mind could have made the first prize award, which is the Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan medal and $2,500, go to "Haunted House," by Morris Kantor. Here are the ingredients of a literary thriller: the mysterious brick, the spectral ghost and the vanished wall. It is an amusing creation, but seems a trifle thin to have been so greatly honored.

More ponderous is the recipient of the second important prize. The Logan award of $1,500 was given to "Mother and Child," by William Zorach. The third Logan prize of $750 was won by John Storrs with a very beautiful, chill, austere and academically correct "Seated Torso."

The Norman Wait Harris silver medal and $500 went to Henry Mattson for "Pine Trees," a painting in which the trees are flung hither and thither at the mercy of a sickening gale. The Norman Wait Harris bronze medal and $300 went to "The Valley," charming in color, by Nikolay Cikovsky. The M. V. Kohnstamm prize of $250 was awarded to "Bowery," by Reginald Marsh. Francis Chapin was rewarded with the Martin B. Cahn prize of $100 for his "White Towers."

Honorable mentions for landscape, architectural subject, sculpture and figure study were awarded in the order named to H. Leon Roecker for "Wisconsin Landscape"; Edward Laning for "Street Orator"; Gertrude K. Lathrop for "King Penguin," and Frances Foy for "Visitors."

The exhibition will continue to Dec. 13.

Velvet Makes Smart Frocks for Afternoon

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The afternoon in Paris is hung with velvet and it's a poor wardrobe, indeed, that hasn't at least one velvet dress in it. Black velvet is the big favorite for the afternoon frock, particularly if it is trimmed with ermine, sable, or frills of lace or chiffon. Brown velvet, dark green velvet, dark blue velvet, and darkest red are four fabrics that are as chic as any to be found.

The velvet dress shown in our sketch today is dark, romantic green, and it is trimmed with frills of ecru chiffon applied in the Paris manner. The cut of this dress is as simple as that of a knitted sports frock. Paris prefers her daytime clothes to be as simple as this. It is a two piece with a jumper blouse of the green pile velvet. The sleeves are three-quarters length, made long by three ruffles of ecru chiffon.

The V neck of this blouse is trimmed with a big sailor collar of the ecru chiffon edges with a wide ruffle. The belt is ecru with a buckle of rhinestones and emeralds.

The skirt of this dress is a straight one piece skirt with a seam straight down the front and two sc..are topped godets are set in at the side of the front to give it width. They begin well below the hipline and the skirt is snugly fitted above. Hiplines are kept flat and fitted, this winter.

The hat is made of green velvet with an undulating brim that dips down to eclipse the left eye, and way up on the right side. A long uncurled ostrich plume in green and ecru trims this hat. Both hat and dress are from Molyneux.

1932 Figure Is More Than Slim; It Must Have Modeled Look

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Put down on your memo pad and mark it must have: "A firm modeled body." Not just a figure dieted down to correct or nearly correct weight in pounds and ounces. Your figure has to have that extra thing known today as a modeled look.

If you've been taking training right along, or been submitting to regular body massage, and expert, you won't have to italicize your memo pad note. You're probably on the high road with the firm, modeled figure.

Here's one silhouette gift you just don't get without muscle work. Exercise, to you! It isn't the most pleasant medicine you can offer a member of the Eugénie-hatted sex! They like their diets better. And you've got to admit diets make snappier conversation. Whether they're on them or not, women do love diet recitals. In monologue or dialogue, or, as the saying goes, catalogue form.

Talk about the diets. Work at them if you're over weight and you know a good sane, healthful one. But don't let the good figure work rest there. It's got to have that snap to twist and turn that a really young girl figure boasts. You have to be able to move and bend and twist and turn with real muscle ease. And there is a difference between the dieted figure and the modeled one! Sometimes a difference of quite a few years. A dieted figure can still be a rigid one, a stiff, awkward one, an oldish one.

But when you set about modeling your lines, that's something else again. And since there's no such thing as a stationary stage in beauty cultivation you may just take it that the modeling with pliant, flexible, elastic muscles is the next step on the road to perfection.

If you're among the lucky group who still don't have to count the nickels or the dollars, tie up with one of the good body reconstruction salons or gyms. If not, convert a corner in your private boudoir to exercise pursuit. Train the will to control the muscles so that a harmonious line of figure automatically will develop. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to me for some good exercises, if you don't know any off hand.

Chicago Artists Making Likenesses of the Hoovers

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—After more than a week of secret comings and goings at the White House two Chicago artists announced tonight that they practically have completed a portrait of the President and a bust of Mrs. Hoover. Both, according to plans, are going to be exhibited at the Chicago World's Fair. They were commissioned by the Middle West Art association. Baroness Violet Beatrice Wenner said tonight that her portrait of the President is "well on its way to completion." Adele Lerch Miller, who is making the bust, said she expects to have completed the work on Tuesday or Wednesday.

Crossness Is Never Needed in Training, Correcting a Child

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

The children were spending the day and night with their grandmother at the same time that a young mother of her acquaintance was visiting her on her way through the city. After they were all in bed for the night the younger woman sat back.

"Well, darling, I've got to hand it to you. The way you corrected those youngsters at the table without taking any one's appetite away, or even making them feel uncomfortable before me—the way you got them off to bed, even that beautiful but spoiled baby, without a cross tone in your voice—was swell. I'm going home a reformed parent. My own children won't know me!"

The older woman smiled, then said reminiscently: "It took me years to get the trick—to learn that scold and correct don't mean the same thing. With my large family and my naturally quick temper I learned things pretty hard, so it took me a long time to see that you can be dispassionate in correcting a child and get better results.

"I used to frown, scold, and raise my voice and lose my temper. The only thing I didn't do was to look cold and disapproving. Not but that's bad enough—only I wasn't built that way. It was sad experience and a rude awakening one day to the fact that I was getting to be a crank that made me learn to be quiet and friendly in correcting the children."

"Experience is the best teacher," says the old saw. We'd like to say: "Other people's experience is a good teacher, too." Every one who is successful with children has found by experience that you don't have to use cross tones, have a frown on your face, or use a severe manner to correct a child. If your baby is still little let this suggestion sink in and later bear fruit. Correct and train are not words synonymous in meaning with scold and punish.

WEDDING

MADRID, Oct. 29.—(AP)—William L. Finger of Ripley, Miss., assistant commercial attaché at the United States embassy in Paris, was married today in the English church to Miss Sally Livengood, daughter of Charles A. Livengood of Walla Walla, Wash., commercial attaché at the American embassy here. A reception at the embassy followed the ceremony.

Opera Singer Gives Clown Show for Children's Home

The youngsters at the Sarah Hackett Stevenson Memorial home love a circus just as much as any other youngsters, so John Charles Thomas, baritone of the Civic Opera, brought one to them yesterday afternoon. The singer, who will visit the bazaar at the Palmer house next Thursday and Friday for the benefit of the organization, inspected the home at 2413 Prairie avenue yesterday afternoon and took his clown costume from Pagliacci along. The youngsters were delighted when Thomas did cartwheels and back flips for them on the nursery floor.

"The women who manage and support this home are doing a great work for Chicago," he said. "I want to go back and see the youngsters again before I leave Chicago. And you can bet the next time I go I will have a pianist along and sing for them."

Female Tyrant Urged to Show Some Mercy to Her Jobless Fiance

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"My closest girl friend has been engaged for a year. Three months ago, her fiancé lost his position. Recently she started going out with other boys. Still she says she loves her fiancé and will not return his engagement ring.

"Her idea, she says, is to make the fiancé hustle and secure a position. I know he has been trying hard, with the most discouraging results. She continues to see him, but will not go out with him. Would you say she is using the correct method? I think she will lose his respect and his faith in her. MARIE."

It seems like pretty hard tactics on the face of it, but maybe she knows her man best. Some of these hard sisters surely can make their men accomplish the seemingly impossible. You and I may sit by, critical of the hard boiled stand. Our hearts may be wrung with sympathy for the young man.

Then, presently, we look up and see the victor in the hard boiled scene being led proudly around by the now reëstablished male.

Life carefully planned for next ten years

Keeps eye always on higher office

ASK any of the boys who've made good and they'll tell you it didn't just happen by a lucky break. Their success was the result of careful planning. Hard work. Night school, perhaps. And above all, always attending strictly to this important matter of health.

"I had no time for outdoor exercise," is the story you'll hear. "I couldn't afford one of those gymnasium courses. But I figured I could keep myself in good shape by taking Nujol. I've taken it ever since. And it's helped as much as anything to keep me fit and on the job every day."

If you're always on the job, always 100% fit, you'll be a good bet for any employer.

There's no easier way to keep in first rate condition than by taking Nujol. Nujol is not a medicine. It's just a pure, natural substance that helps your system to function as Nature meant it to under all conditions. Normally. Easily. Regularly. Without any extra effort and strain on your part. It not only keeps an excess of body poisons from forming (we all have them), but aids in their removal. Nujol can't possibly upset or disagree with you, because it contains absolutely nothing in the way of medicine or drugs. It is simply a pure mineral substance. Perfected by the Nujol Laboratories, 2 Park Ave., New York City.

Start Nujol today. Give it a fair try—for the next three months, anyway. By the end of that time—even before then perhaps—see if you don't feel much more all-round fit. If you're like everyone else, you'll have more ambition and energy, feel more optimistic, and look like a different person after following this wise regime. And you'll profit by it.

You can buy Nujol at all drug stores for a small sum. Worth trying, isn't it? Nujol is sold in sealed packages only. Stop at your corner drug store and buy a bottle on your way home tonight.

If you use Listerine after a shampoo; you can part your hair or arrange it where you choose. Moreover, when used full strength, frequently, Listerine is a preventive of loose dandruff—also a remedy. Tens of thousands of cases have yielded to it. You simply douse it on full strength and massage thoroughly. Keep the treatment up several days. You will be delighted by results.

If infection is present on the surface of the skin, Listerine attacks it. A powerful germicide, it kills bacteria in 15 seconds, the fastest killing time accurately recorded by science.

Listerine helps to dissolve oily crusts and quickly removes them, as well as horny scales. And Listerine quickly relieves that burning, itching sensation. It soothes inflamed or irritated areas of the scalp.

If scalp is excessively dry, a little olive oil may be used in connection with the Listerine shampoo, or independent of it. The oil aids in dissolving crusts and scales and keeps hair from drying out. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

TRIBUNE SCHOOL FOR COOKS TO OPEN TUESDAY

Training for Beginners and Experts, Too.

Are you a good cook?

Whether you are or not, you will want to attend the great CHICAGO TRIBUNE School of Cookery which has its grand opening at 1:45 p. m. next Tuesday at the Trianon ballroom, 6201 Cottage Grove avenue. THE TRIBUNE school will be conducted by Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, nationally known expert of the culinary arts, with the cooperation of Miss Mary Meade, THE TRIBUNE'S home economics editor.

Cooking school sessions for north side women will follow at the Aragon ballroom, 1100 Lawrence avenue, on Nov. 10, 11, 12 and 13, and on Nov. 17, 18, 19 and 20 classes will be held for west side women at Guyon's Paradise ballroom at 4000 Washington boulevard.

Instruction for All Cooks.

Mrs. Chitwood and Miss Meade say any one can learn to cook and also that any woman can enlarge on her knowledge of the culinary arts. The aim of the instruction to be given in THE TRIBUNE school is to include both elementary and advanced branches of cooking for the greatest benefit of Chicago housewives.

The knack of achieving uncurdled custards, airy popovers, savory and tender meats, and unusual garnishing will be discussed and demonstrated. Economical buying and household marketing of foods with respect to their value in daily family diets will be treated. Every angle of cooking desired by Chicago women, as expressed in their letters to THE TRIBUNE'S home economics department, will be referred to and discussed.

Daily prizes will be given to those attending the sessions. These will consist of foods and articles of household and kitchen equipment. Weekly grand prizes, more elaborate than the daily prizes, will be given away at each of the divisions of the school. All the prizes have been chosen by experienced judges with a view to their suitability and adaptability to household needs.

Children to Broadcast.

Quin Ryan, manager of W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station, will make a personal broadcast with a group of children of the air on Monday afternoon, Nov. 23, at the grand finale at the Coliseum.

With him will be radio's "Little Orphan Annie," "Joe Corntassel," and "Betty and Bob." "Uncle Quin" will hold an informal interview with these characters, and perhaps "Betty," who in real life is Antonio Gilliman, will recite a poem.

Paul Whiteman, who is playing nightly at the Edgewater Beach hotel, will also make a personal appearance at the Coliseum on Nov. 23.

STUDENTS BLAST THEORIES ABOUT SEARING STEAK

Experimental cooking classes at Iowa State college, Ames, Ia., are reported to have proved recently that searing a steak has no effect in retaining the meat juices.

"Formerly it was believed that seared meats were juicier and for this reason retained a particularly pleasing flavor," the college girls reported. "Experiments revealed that the flavor of seared meats was caused by the high dry heat to which the meat had been subjected rather than by its juices.

"In addition to this flavor, searing gives the meat an appetising brown color, which alone is often reason enough for the increased trouble of the cook. The flavor of pork is due to fatty tissues in the meat rather than to the juices and muscle extractives, as in other meat."

DESSERTS CALL FOR VARIATION TO FIT MEALS

"Desserts or sweets are served at the close of the meal because one should leave the table feeling satisfied. If taken between meals sweets check the hunger for more substantial foods that are necessary for tissue building and body repairs," says Dorothea Muehl of the home economics extension department of Purdue university.

"A dessert should not be an afterthought, but its place is to add to the foods previously served and to provide a well balanced meal. A heavy meal calls for a light dessert and vice versa."

HOE CAKE MUST BE ET, NOT EATEN, TO BE ENJOYED

Adds Backwoods Tang to Winter Breakfast.

BY ROE FOWLER.

Hoe cake is one of those foods that has to be et, not eaten. When it is eaten its magic charm is lost; but when it is et it is plenty potent to the palate. I have et it many times, though never [I must confess] from the hot spade of a hoe.

There is a smack of the backwoods about this simple fare, which is delicious with or without embellishments in the form of butter, molasses, or sirup. Hoe cake was originally prepared out in the field, or perhaps in the woods, by our hardy ancestors. It was not uncommon for the necessary corn meal to be prepared at the same time and place, from fresh dried corn just harvested. The meal would be ground or pounded between two smooth stones, water and salt added, and the batter slapped onto a hot hoe spade which had previously been greased with a hunk of country bacon.

Hoe Cake Breakfast.

That is the way the dish originated, but the influence of civilization has made it less convenient to use the original crude utensils than to use ordinary household ware. Furthermore, hoe cake on a cold winter morning goes well with molasses—say, good fresh sorghum molasses—or maple sirup. Dripping with melted butter, it needs no sirup at all. And if you are a true connoisseur of the victual you will enjoy it now and then without any sort of trimmings.

Good old hoe cake breakfast! I can picture it again: There is dad with his napkin tucked into his collar, and mother with a plate of the steaming cakes. Sis and I, until that moment sleepy heads, suddenly perk up. There is a quick passing of plates, a pleasant clatter of silverware, and a maternal caution to watch our manners, and for heaven's sake not to take such big mouthfuls. How can people enjoy small mouthfuls? Especially when the cake is so darned good. Another cake, and yet another disappears, and we get up to rush off to school, so full that we can hardly waddle.

Joke Part of Ritual.

There was one ritual, by the way, that was always observed at our breakfast table when he had hoe cakes. That was the telling of the joke.

The joke was dad's, and without it no hoe cake breakfast was complete. Shortly after tucking in his napkin, preparatory to buttering the children's cakes, dad would remark expansively: "Why are hot cakes like a caterpillar?"

Of course, nobody knew the answer. Dad would look around the table with a twinkle in his eye, and after a moment of silence, continued: "Because they both make the butterfly." Then we could all laugh, and I'll betcha the hoe cakes we et went better because of the joke.

How to Make Hoe Cake.

I'll tell you, now, if you want to make hoe cake in a kitchen, how you go about it. Take two cups of corn meal, one cup of hot water, a half teaspoon of salt, and one tablespoon of butter or lard. Bacon grease makes a swell shortening, too, and some people like some sugar in the batter.

You melt the shortening and mix it in with the other ingredients—the dry ingredients being mixed first, then the shortening and then the water. Beat well and pour onto a hot griddle liberally greased with butter, bacon, or lard. Cook until browned and butter while hot.

Meat Council Says Pork Represents Best Bargain

In its regular weekly report, issued for the guidance of consumers, the committee on marketing information of the meat council of Chicago states: "Fresh pork, especially pork loins, continues to represent the most economical meat buy for the Chicago housewife over the coming week-end. Fore quarter cuts of lamb, including the shoulder and breast, are also recommended as economical meat buys at the present time."

TELL SUPPLIES LINER CARRIED ON LAVAL TRIP

That Premier Laval, his daughter Josee, and the distinguished personages accompanying the French party were amply supplied with all the viands they could desire during their voyage to the United States and back is evident from the list of food supplies carried by the Ile de France. These supplies for the round trip include 55,000 eggs and 5,000 chickens, approximately nine tons of game and eleven tons of meat, a ton of bread and four tons of ice a day, and almost 3,000 quarts of wine for the passengers and 10,000 for the crew. Since the meals are prepared in French style by French chefs, the premier and all other native Frenchmen on the voyage were assured in advance of obtaining their favorite delicacies in the way of food.

HUNTERS' WIVES, HERE IS ADVICE ON COOKING DUCK

Bird Should Not Be Too Fresh, Chef Says.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

At sunrise next Sunday the hunting season for ducks and geese will be ushered in for Illinois. Elaborate plans are being made by many a hunter whose eye has been turned skyward at every honking of wild geese flying south. Guns are being cleaned and polished. Final advice is given to wives to be sure to be home to cook ducks for Sunday night supper.

The hunter won't deliver particular instructions just how the ducks are to be prepared. He will leave that to the cook, knowing a hunter's place is in the marshes, and a housewife's in the kitchen. He will expect, however, a palatable dish to be set before him for his pains, and if a wife wants to please her spouse, she will do well to follow the instructions of one of Chicago's veteran chefs.

Advice on Cooking.

Ernest E. Amiet, executive chef at the Palmer house, took time off yesterday to describe some of the methods of preparing wild fowl, chiefly ducks.

"Whether it be duck or chicken, the fowl has a better flavor if it has been forgotten for a while after killing," said Mr. Amiet. "Let the duck hang outside for a few days with the feathers on. The temperature shouldn't be above 40 degrees. Then prepare the duck in the usual way for cooking.

"One of the quickest and easiest ways of serving duck is to fry or broil it. One duck will serve two persons. Use only the breasts. The legs may be saved by putting them in mild vinegar with a few cloves, onions, bay leaf and whole peppers to pickle for a few days, then prepared like German rabbit stew. But the broiled duck is very easy to fix and very good."

Not Too Well Done.

Mr. Amiet stressed the need of care in cooking duck. For roast duck 1¼ to 1½ hours is sufficient, he said, and if there is no stuffing, three-quarters of an hour will do. Duck should be rare to medium, never cooked until it falls apart.

Some favorite stuffings are apples and chestnuts. In the apple dressing, use two-thirds part bread, and one third apples. The apples should be sliced thin so they will cook easily. Some like to fry the apple slices a short time in butter before mixing with the bread. Then add egg to bind the dressing together and salt and pepper for seasoning.

"Chestnuts make a very good dressing. First cut open and roast until the nut is loose from the shell. Cook in salt water a half hour and cut up, then mix with the bread. Apples and chestnuts may be used together."

What to Do With Tough Duck.

How to deal with a tough duck was described by the chef. It should be braised often and kept in the oven longer than usual and finished up by cooking from a half to three-quarters of an hour in sauerkraut. The kraut will take out the strong game flavor in the meat, he said.

If you're at a loss what to serve with wild duck, here's a tip from Chef Amiet:

"I'd choose breast of duck with no stuffing. Steamed wild rice I'd serve, because wild rice is a favorite food of the duck., To this I would add currant jelly, and, for a vegetable, braised celery. The salad would be fruit salad of romaine, slices of oranges and grapefruit with French dressing. For dessert I'd serve pumpkin or mince pie or plum pudding."

These retail meat prices, mostly cash and carry, were gathered by the bureau of agricultural economics of the United States department of agriculture in the Chicago area.

TURKEYS TO BE PLENTIFUL AND EASY ON PURSE

West Reports Good Supply of Birds.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Good things to eat for the approaching holiday season are in store for Chicagoland. Just now they are being allowed to graze in green pastures, and to strut their fine plumage between meals of corn and wheat and dried milk.

A nation-wide survey just announced by the federal department of agriculture indicates that we may expect a plentiful supply of turkeys soon, and at most reasonable prices. There are a trifle more turkeys this season than a year ago, but fewer than two years ago. The increase is found largely in Texas and the Pacific coast states.

U. S. Report on Turkeys.

"Conditions were quite favorable for the raising of young turkeys in most of the area west of the Mississippi river this year and the proportion of poults [young turkeys] hatched that were raised was above average," the government crop reporters said. "East of the Mississippi river, while conditions were less favorable for saving poults than in 1930, the proportion saved was about average. In both sections reports indicate that hatchings this year were rather poor."

The hatch from turkey eggs is smaller in proportion to the number of eggs than with any other poultry and the young birds are susceptible to adverse weather or a fatal disease called "blackhead." This accounts largely for the revelation in the government's October turkey report that fewer turkeys are being raised on general farms and more of them on specialized farms. This trend toward production of turkeys in commercially handled flocks and on specialized poultry farms is a continuation of what has been going on in recent years throughout the country.

Birds of Fine Quality.

Conditions in all areas except where drought prevailed this summer promise fine quality turkeys. Low prices on grains and milk have caused liberal feeding.

"Except in some of the states in the western drought area," the government report says, "turkeys were in better than average shape on Oct. 1 this year. Comments from growers were quite general that the quality of the turkey crop this year is unusually good.

"While reports as of Oct. 1 indicated that the proportion of the crop that will be ready for market by Thanksgiving this year will be larger than last year, growers in the western commercial production areas reported a growing tendency to hold more of their birds for the late markets."

Somewhat more than one-half of the turkey crop is to be ready for Thanksgiving dinners, while almost one-third will be fattened for Christmas.

VEGETABLE AND FRUIT PRICES ARE STILL LOW

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

With potatoes selling at less than a cent a pound wholesale, except for some sales of Idaho russets, the price of potatoes can be considered a guide to the cheapness of nearly all fresh fruits and vegetables, according to a glimpse at the food markets this week.

Sweet potatoes, even more so than the white or Irish spud, are low in price, especially as compared with a year ago. Bushel hampers are being sold wholesale for from 50 to 85 cents except for some of the New Jersey crop which is priced at $1 to $1.10. Even onions, on which there is a shorter crop than usual, are still in the low price class, selling for little more than at the time they were being harvested more than a month ago, about 1½ cents a pound wholesale.

Green Onions Cheap.

Retail prices on such luxuries as asparagus, for instance, are necessarily high at this time of the year, for the crop is just beginning to get plentiful on shipments coming from California. Wholesale houses must pay anywhere from $2 to $4 this week for a box of one dozen bunches, depending on the degree of fanciness.

Green onions should be cheap, for dealers are selling them for less than one cent a bunch; radishes, about two bunches for five cents, wholesale; carrots, 1½ to 2½ cents a bunch, and beets the same price. Home grown bunches of turnips are quoted mostly at two cents a bunch.

Pears and Apples Are Also Low.

The average size orange should be selling retail for about 35 cents a dozen, according to fruit auction figures which indicated that average prices on a box of the fruit this week were $4.03. As the average size sold is called "216" or 216 oranges to the box, the 35 cent retail price is considered sufficient margin for most of the grocery and fruit store operators. Lemons should be about the same in price for the average size.

Grapefruit, grapes, pears, and apples are also low in price compared with other years. Wholesale grape prices indicate those who purchase quantities for the purpose of making grape juice can pay anywhere from 55 cents to $1.85 for a 26 pound box of California fruit, or around 30 to 35 cents for a 12 quart or 15 pound basket of Michigan vintage.

For Clorox bleaches, removes stains, destroys odors and kills germs, all in one operation. Little white cotton and linen suits, frocks, undergarments, even diapers, are made snowy-white and disinfected when washed with Clorox. Rubber panties and bed protectors, too, can be disinfected and deodorized this way.

Follow your usual laundering methods—dry clothes indoors or out—but add Clorox to the soaking suds or first rinse. Your wash will be both snowy-white and disinfected.

Laundering is only one of the important uses for Clorox; there are countless others. You will find Clorox indispensable in kitchen and bathroom.

IMPORTANCE OF VEGETABLES IN DIET OF CHILD

Supplies Needs, Establishes Rational Appetite

BY MARY MEADE.

"Food a growing child properly and you have helped to make a good citizen."—Rose.

This week we will concern ourselves with the importance of vegetables in the diet of the child or vegetable purées for the very young. Let us start out with the mandatory statement: "Some fresh vegetable should be given to children daily." The character of the food we eat will control longevity if other conditions are favorable to health. Then start with the small child in providing proper food and establishing a rational appetite.

Satisfactory growth cannot be maintained on a diet which excludes green, leafy vegetables. The leaves of vegetables are particularly rich in calcium as well as phosphorus, iron, and iodine and vitamins A, B, and C. Vegetables are of greatest significance, in fact, for their minerals and vitamins. We may not know just what a vitamin is—with all the scientific research work that has been done on vitamins, they are still difficult to explain—but we do realize their extreme importance.

When Supply Is Inadequate.

An inadequate supply of vitamin A, for instance, causes children to become susceptible to infectious diseases. Its lack is also responsible for a disease of the eyes. The restriction of vitamin B will cause beriberi. The lack of vitamin C is responsible for scurvy, and the absence of vitamin D will cause rickets.

All of this can only impress us further with the importance of the presence of vitamins in the diet. When we realize that such diseases are brought about primarily by certain nutritional inadequacies, how still more vital does the problem of feeding become.

We have said that vegetables supply these dietary needs. But they are important, too, for their laxative properties. The energy value and the protein value of vegetables are not high. [We emphasized these values in this column last Friday, in reference to cereals.]

Mild Flavor at the Start.

A vegetable of mild flavor and fine texture should be selected for feeding very young children. Spinach, because it is richer in iron than any other vegetable, is an ideal one to add first to the child's diet. Cook the vegetable quickly in an uncovered kettle. When tender drain and press through a fine sieve to obtain a pulp. A little cream may be added to the purée. For the initial introduction into the diet only one to three teaspoonfuls should be served. This amount can be very gradually increased as the digestive system becomes accustomed to the new food.

It is sound advice not to try too many vegetables on small children. Sometimes a dislike for certain foods is formed just because of their strangeness or newness. Give the child an opportunity of becoming acquainted with these new additions to his diet. Green beans, asparagus tips, young beets and carrots, if thoroughly cooked, are practical to strain and are usually digested by children. Children of this age—two years—should never be allowed to eat raw vegetables.

For children of three and four years of age string beans, squash, and stewed celery are good additions to the list. These need not be strained, but can be mashed or finely chopped.

And this is our final admonition. Whatever happens, make vegetables a regular part of the daily diet of adults as well as children.

Fresh Vegetables on Market Later Than Is Customary

Fresh vegetables on the Chicago market still include many of the home grown kinds often off the market by this time of the year because of cold weather. Because no serious freezes have occurred this fall, the stores still sell home grown radishes and onions, carrots, beets, celery root, horseradish, leaf lettuce, oyster plant, parsley, parsnips, peppers, turnips, and rhubarb.

HOMINY A FOOD THAT'S THEME OF SONG AND STORY

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

". . . Or offering up at eve to thee Thy birchen dish of hominy."
—Whittier.

Whitecaps on the lake; a telltale chill in the air; gipsy leaves, scarlet, brown and yellow leaves, whistling and spinning to mad wind rhythms; blue shadows; early dusk.

So winter comes with fire and candle light, and old dreams stirring, old books, old friends, and on our dinner table the simple foods whose odors might be those wafted from the copper kettles, iron pots and pewter plates in the days of Priscilla, the Puritan maiden, scholarly John Alden who loved her, and Miles Standish, bluff, brave captain of Plymouth. Such foods as they ate, on our table—porridge and buckwheat cakes, maple sugar and syrup, roast duck with a dressing of chestnuts, a bowl of hominy.

Food of Colonists.

Hominy, golden grain of the plumed Indian maize beaten into coarse meal. Gift of welcome to the Pilgrim fathers from their red neighbors. Among the dishes of early American cookery, what the Cabots and Lodges are to the sons and daughters of the American revolution.

Of hominy as a food of the colonists, wrote Capt. Smith in 1629, "They commonly fed upon milke hominl, which is bruised Indian corne pounded and boiled thicke, and milke for the sauce."

"Their ordinary diet is poane and omine, both made of corn," wrote Lord Baltimore; and William Penn, "Their diet is maize, sometimes beaten and boiled with water, which they call homine." One waggish scribe relates, "Our entertainer made him [a newcomer] own that a plate of hominy was the best rice pudding he did ever eat."

Today we commonly refer to the coarse meal made of white corn kernels, from which the rough fibrous part and the germ has been removed, as hominy grits. Hominy is the term more generally applied to the whole corn grains hulled by lye immersion.

A gentleman from North Carolina tells us that "down south" water poured through wood ashes often furnishes the lye solution. He speaks with eloquence of hominy fried with cracklings.

As the breakfast cereal, hominy may be served like oatmeal porridge with melted butter, sugar and cream. It is a delectable dish when, cool and firm after cooking, it is sliced, fried in a thin pancake batter and served with maple syrup. Hominy grits for the breakfast table may be purchased in packages and the coarser grains, eaten as a dinner vegetable, as a canned product. Both forms are prepared for use by boiling in water or milk. As with all cereals, satisfactory results can be obtained only by thorough cooking.

How to Make Hominy.

Should you prefer making your own hominy, do not use an aluminum kettle; use an iron or an enamel one. Dissolve a tablespoon of concentrated lye in 2½ quarts of water. Lye should be used carefully; it is poisonous and caustic. Immerse a quart and a half of shelled white corn, from which the chaff has been removed, into the lye solution. Thirty minutes' cooking with constant stirring will produce a thick yellow mixture. Remove the pot from the fire, pour water into it, and drain. Again pour in water and drain. With enough water to cover the corn, place the pot on the fire again for another thirty minute cooking period.

Black coats will have formed on the kernels. Drain the pot, add water and rub the grains vigorously between the hands to remove the dark coverings. After these have been washed away, cover the corn with water and cook [between 2 and 3½ hours] until the grains are white, tender and fluffy. Most of the water should have evaporated during the cooking process. You will have about a gallon of hominy. Turn it into a crock or jar and keep it in a cool place.

MEAT INSPECTION SERVICE OF U. S. 25 YEARS OLD

Oct. 1 marked the 25th anniversary of federal meat inspection service, as conducted under the present law. In these 25 years, federal inspectors have examined annually from 42 to 79 million food animals and their carcasses, a total of approximately 1,600,000,000 animals. At the beginning of the period, marked by the passage of the federal meat inspection act of 1906, government inspection included about 51 per cent of all the animals slaughtered. By 1924 it had increased to about 67 per cent.

All slaughtering and meat packing establishments doing a substantial interstate or foreign business operate under federal meat inspection. Those whose products are not shipped out of the state do not receive federal meat inspection. Carcasses slaughtered by farmers on the farm and meat supplied to consumers by retail meat dealers are also exempt from inspection.

Officials of the bureau of animal industry, United States department of agriculture, who direct this service, point out that the slaughter of food animals under federal inspection has advanced at a rate sufficient to keep pace with the nation's increased demand for meat and meat food products during the last quarter century. The increasing human population, combined with the estimated present consumption of about 145 pounds of meat and lard annually per person accounts for the magnitude of live stock slaughter and of federal inspection.

MANY PLEASANT HOURS SPENT AT OLD CIDER MILL

Vassar Girls Take Their Boy Friends There.

BY BETTY BROWNING.

In one of those super groceries where delicacies from far countries are exposed in show cases with an art otherwise reserved for the rarest jewels there was on display the other day a keg of cider.

Just a plain keg of cider, the familiar clear amber gleaming through the homely glass jug under the forthright cork stopper. A bit lost among those exotically wrapped and sealed containers of caviar from Astrakan, goose liver from Strasburg, turtle from the Galapagos, anails from Burgundy, honey from Hymettus, figs from Smyrna.

But the keg bore the label, "New York Cider." Simply that and nothing more. The authority who affixed the label seemingly regarded it as a sufficient passport to that noble company and disdained superfluous elaborations. Let the uninitiated pass New York cider by—better so. This celestial potion should go only to epicures able to savour to the full the liquid perfection they were quaffing.

It's Matter of Sentiment.

Now all this may be pure Greek to middle westerners brought up on the cider of Michigan or Iowa. Can you mean to insinuate, they will ask, that any cider, even this New York cider, can be better than ours?

No, dear readers, such a contention must rest in the hands of our authority, the grocer, and his connoisseur customers. Cider we love, but all cider to us is just cider, we fear. The fine shadings and gradings which might differentiate New York cider from Michigan cider would be lost on us.

Still, we might purchase this keg of New York cider, yes, carry it home and pass a keg of Michigan cider by. But for reasons of sentiment, not of the palate. New York cider has associations for us. We were once a Vassar girl.

Probably the daisy chain is the most famous thing about Vassar. But the cider mill is a close second. Though not officially incorporated into the college, it is the blood and bone of the campus life.

Few Professors Refuse.

When men are up for the weekend they are taken to the cider mill. Sophisticated juniors invariably lead their freshmen advisees there once during the fall season. And the young newcomers in turn hopefully invite their faculty sponsors to the cider mill for dinner, tramp there and back included. It is surprising, considering everything, how few professors refuse.

For it is quite a walk to the mill—across the campus, down the road, up a hill and then a second hill. By this time the sun has retired in an orange mist back of that purple-black line of Catskills and little knots of girls stumble along in the dusk under the first stars, laughing and chattering constantly and singing now and then.

Up the last hill a house looms, light streaming from the windows and from open counters along the front of the building. Visitors look in vain for a mill. This is just a farmhouse; some poet, inspired perhaps by the cider, invented the mill and the idea took root, a clear triumph of mind over matter.

The accepted routine once arrived at the cider mill, is to find seats on the low stone wall across the road from the mill, then send the more efficient members of the party for food. Efficiency is needed, for a small mob is always around the counters, crying "Four hot dogs, five ciders, three doughnuts" and it takes practice to bring back just the number of doughnuts, dogs and drinks one was sent to get.

Fortunately, the proprietor of the cider mill is an imperturbable Britisher. He saw action in the Boer war and was en route to new adventures in Australia when the possibilities of this country struck him. Minor riots, therefore, are nothing to him.

Certainly his cider is worth climbing two hills to sample. It has even prompted freshmen to lug a gallon home over two miles of hilly road, a practice resulting in explosion in more than one dormitory as nature took its course. This involuntary moonshine, as it were, owes its existence not a little to the great harvest moon which invariably rises over the Connecticut plains 40 miles away in time to light the jug luggers on their homeward way.

Autumn air, mountains, and moonlight—these are associations of New York cider. But to return to the mill out of season in May, and in the orchard find others in the long stemmed purple violets massed below drooping pink and white boughs.

THREE MEALS A DAY

From the Tribune Cook Book

BY MARY MEADE.

I was asked the other day whether or not yellow midget tomatoes were still on the market. Also, how they might be used. Emphatically "Yes!" They are on the market. Their uses I shall give here this morning.

At one time yellow tomatoes held a very respected place in every truck and home garden. In recent years they have been slighted without apparent reason. Perhaps many of us discarded our garden hobbies with the close of the war. However, we still find them peering up at us from roadside stands and grocery windows. Should we perchance succumb to their persuasive color and charm, let's give a thought to their preparation.

Although they do resemble big yellow buttons, they are tomatoes and may be treated in any of the innumerable ways with which we are familiar for the standard red variety of the fruit. They make pretty marmalades, attractive salads with endive, lettuce, and watercress, and are equally good stewed, in soups, and in sauces or relishes. Skin them by plunging into boiling water for a minute and follow with a cold water plunge. Then remove the loosened skins with a sharp paring knife.

If you wish special recipes for the yellow tomatoes, I shall be glad to forward them. Don't forget that, except for the slight difference in flavor, yellow tomatoes may be substituted for the red in almost all of your own recipes.

Heat the fat in a frying pan, and add the hash. Stir until heated through. Sprinkle with pepper. Let cook until well browned; fold like an omelette and serve on a hot platter.

When the roast of beef is nearly done, place the pear halves, which have been drained and dredged with flour, around the meat. Bake them until nicely browned. Serve as a garnish encircling the meat.

DADDY IS A BIG HELP AT MEAL TIME, IT'S FOUND

Children Eat Spinach for Him, Expert Says.

Father comes into the picture of the ideal family at mealtime, and he comes in to do more than consume his own meal or to lead the topics of discussion, if modern child feeding authorities have placed a correct value on his services.

When mother is using her best persuasive powers on the growing youngsters to increase consumption of milk and spinach and salads she has reason to expect father's active as well as moral support, they say.

Here Are His Duties.

If you would know more of daddy's duties, listen in on a typical classroom discussion among the junior and senior students at the National College of Education, whose training ground for nursery and primary school teachers in Evanston combines the theoretical with the practical.

"When a child is told or, better, asked to eat certain dishes he is entitled, should he request it, to a logical reason for his action," Miss Beatrice Billings, head of the college's home economics department, says. "He may gain confidence in drinking milk if he knows that Lindy drinks it and has been drinking it since childhood."

Miss Billings smiled a possible approval of the incident described to her in a recent discussion of this subject. A 12 year old who was being told to eat carrots wanted to know why he should when daddy didn't. To which mother replied that "carrots will make you beautiful."

"Well, I'd just as soon look like pop," was the considered reply.

Many fathers have come to find foods which supplied nourishment and a more nearly balanced diet appetizing when they had held aloof from them for many years—all because their example had been an aid in attempting to overcome dislikes being built up in their children's minds.

Says Fathers' Help Is Needed.

Miss Billings and her associates find few children in the model classes of the nursery and primary schools who fail to react favorably to examples set by parents, teachers, or some hero at the time the object of the youthful's worship. Father may not always be this example, but his leading may make matters much easier for the mother.

"Most men do not see as readily as mother the need for the child to have vegetables, fruits, eggs, and dairy products in every day's meals," Miss Billings finds.

Tells Dad's Duties

Miss Beatrice Billings, head of the home economics department of the National College of Education, advocates the aid of father in inducing children to overcome prejudice to certain foods.

CELERY TOPS LIST OF ACCESSORIES FOR DINNER MENU

Prices 20% Lower than Last Year.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

"Celery is to Kalamazoo what baked beans are to Boston." This was the response of a wholesale fruit and vegetable dealer yesterday to an inquiry concerning the source of Chicago's celery supply. "And," he added in true masculine fashion, "celery is to supper what ham is to eggs."

In brief this tells the story of a vegetable that tops the list of accessories to any luncheon or dinner menu. The crisp, white, savory stalks are obtainable the year around in our city markets, but it is the early fall that marks the real beginning of the celery season. Car loads and truck loads have been pouring into Chicago the last month from our neighboring state and reports from wholesale headquarters indicate that the quality is splendid.

Here's Some Good News.

More good news comes in the statement that celery prices this year represent at least a 20 per cent reduction from those of 1930. Whereas "flats," as the wholesale shipments are called, were priced at 75 cent last year, they are costing dealers only 40 to 60 cents this season which means that a bunch of celery, containing two or three stalks, should retail for seven or not more than ten cents. When the Michigan crop is gone and we must depend upon California and Florida for our supply, prices may show a slight increase, but the quality will remain at its present standard.

If you have never seen a celery field it is worth a trip to Michigan, New York, or the far west to look out upon the brilliant green rows of plants, stretching like ribbons through acre upon acre of rich black muck. This picture represents an industry that has grown to its present proportions only in recent years for our early forbears overlooked the delicacy and the appetizing flavor of the celery stalks.

There was celery, to be sure, in the earl ydays, for even as far back as 1669 Evelyn recorded that the "smallage and sellery are to be sown in March." History relates that the first celery was a cultivated variety of the English weed "smallage" and that some Italians first gave the plant its present name about the time of the Reformation. However this may be, the wild celery that still grows so profusely in parts of this country and in Europe was overlooked for centuries and even when one or two varieties were cultivated about 1830, the vegetable was priced so high that it could only be considered a luxury.

Seeds from Scotland.

Today the celery industry in the country surrounding Kalamazoo alone represents in value between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000. Some of the thrifty Dutch growers say that George Taylor, a Scotchman, brought the seeds from his native country and grew his first crop in Michigan in 1856. At a banquet that year held at the Burdick hotel, Kalamazoo, Mr. Taylor persuaded Thomas Acker, the proprietor, to put his new variety of celery on the menu. It attracted much favorable attention and soon appeared on one menu after another.

Fifteen years later Hollanders began to grow this "table" celery on muck land in several different parts of the city and soon it was offered for sale on the streets.

Fine for Flavoring Broth.

Almost every part of the celery plant can be used to advantage. The stalks and heart are delicious eaten raw, either plain or with a stuffing made of equal parts of cream cheese and Roquefort cheese mashed until smooth with a little butter. Dust the stuffed celery with a little paprika and then chill before serving. Raw celery is also a popular ingredient in salads and various sandwich fillings.

Perhaps the most popular dish made from cooked celery is the well known celery soup. Stewed celery may be served for the vegetable course of a dinner, or it may be combined with cheese or oysters for a scallop. Celery trimmings are excellent, fresh or dried, for flavoring broths. The seeds are used for celery salt and for numerous pickles and seasonings.

Two popular recipes are listed below:

BRAISED CELERY.

3 cups celery
4 tablespoonfuls of butter or ham fat
½ teaspoonful salt
½ cup water
1 bouillon cup

Cut celery in pieces from 1 to 2 inches long. Melt butter or fat in sauce pan. Add celery and salt. Cover closely and cook over a low flame three or four minutes, stirring often. Add water and bouillon cube. Finish cooking with cover removed. Tender celery will require only 5 or 6 minutes of cooking. This is a good way to use outside stalks of celery.

CREAM OF CELERY SOUP.

2 cups sliced celery
1 slice onion
2 cups water
1 tablespoonful butter
1 tablespoonful flour
1 teaspoonful salt
1 quart rich milk
1 cup meat broth
¼ teaspoonful pepper
1 egg

Cook celery and onion in 2 cups of water until soft. Drain celery. Put through a food chopper and return pulp to liquid. Prepare a white sauce of the butter, flour, salt, milk, and meat broth in a double boiler. Add celery pulp, liquid, and pepper. Continue cooking 10 minutes. Beat egg slightly and add to soup. Stir thoroughly and cook 2 minutes longer. Serve immediately.

• • •

"A little at a time"—instead of in bulk—is the principle of Controlled Roasting

Roasting coffee in small quantities, under exact heat-control, is the secret of a perfect, unvarying flavor. Hills Bros. invented and patented the only process that permits this sort of roasting. It is called Controlled Roasting. It's a process by which Hills Bros. Coffee passes through the roasters evenly, continuously—a little at a time. Every berry in the blend receives a perfect, unvarying roast. Naturally, then, every cupful of Hills Bros. Coffee has the same marvelous flavor. It is a flavor no other coffee has, because no other is roasted this way.

Hills Bros. Coffee is always fresh too. Air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is removed and kept out of Hills Bros.' vacuum cans. Ordinary, "air-tight" cans won't keep coffee fresh. But Hills Bros. Coffee is always as fresh as when it comes from the roasters.

The fragrant wisps of steam floating up from a cup of Hills Bros. forecast a coffee flavor you never dreamed of. Drink a cupful and see! Ask for Hills Bros. Coffee by name, and look for the Arab trademark on the can.

The Marriage Racket

By VINA DELMAR

SYNOPSIS.

Irma Corbin, while playing a week's vaudeville engagement in Thrace, an upstate New York town, is showered with invitations by Bill Pitaroy, friend of her pianist, and Wallace Graham, a widower friend of Bill's. Wallace asks Irma to be his wife. Bill's proposal to her is of a different nature. Irma marries Wallace and settles down to a dull existence as his wife. Wallace has a young daughter, Mildred, who has grown up under the supervision of her Aunt Tessie. A son is born to Irma. He becomes the center of her universe. Wallace and Irma go on a trip to Europe. Irma spoils their pleasure because of her worry over the baby. They meet Russell Byrnes, a wealthy bachelor from New York, through friends from the boat. He has a cabin on a boat sailing in two days, which Irma persuades him to sell to Wallace. Back in Thrace they find the baby well, but Mildred planning a eugenic marriage with Scott Avery. Wallace takes Mildred out of school and appoints Irma to guard her. Mildred eludes her guard and elopes with Scott. Wallace accuses Irma of marrying Mildred off to be rid of her. They quarrel and Irma leaves, taking the baby with her to New York. She meets Carlos Gonzales and they form a dancing partnership. They get an engagement in a second rate night club.

INSTALLMENT XXXV.

A TEN WEEKS' CONTRACT.

Carlos lived in one of the brownstone houses off Broadway. He had a huge basement room filled with an astonishing array of batiks, cubist pictures and sofa cushions.

"Not a bad little place, is it, for twelve dollars a week? Of course, all the colorful things are my own."

"They would be," Irma remarked.

"Now look." Into a cretonne hung corner of the room Carlos disappeared for a moment. When he emerged he was carrying an exquisite gown.

"O, gorgeous," said Irma. A hundred yards of fine lace must have been used in that skirt. The quality and workmanship on the gown made good the boast that it could not be duplicated under three hundred dollars.

"You will wear it well," Carlos said. "I like dark women in pure white."

"But will it fit me?"

"It will need some taking in at the waist and a little taking up at the hem. I can do it. I made it," he added.

"O, it's beautiful."

"Try it on."

The dress was a trifle large. With his mouth full of pins Carlos busily fitted it to Irma's frail form. He reminded her of Aunt Tessie as he kept up a running conversation despite the pins.

"Now, I'll sew this while you run out and buy your slippers. Buy cheap ones. Have you money with you? Never mind stockings. Carroll will like bare legs and it will save you money. Buy two yards of black satin, too. We have to think about that second costume. Get the best grade of satin."

Carlos busily fitted it to Irma's frail form.

It took her less than twenty minutes to do her shopping, then she wanted to see her baby. After a few hours away from him apprehension and doubt always assailed her. The costume making had to go on. Carlos and the black satin went with her to the little apartment.

The baby, as usual, was well and happy. He gazed curiously at Carlos.

"O," said Carlos, "he's absolutely outraged that I didn't bring him anything. Here, baby, here's a lucky elephant. Don't break it. It's lucky."

He handed the baby a tiny white elephant which he fished out from among the coins in his pocket. Irma's annoyance at having the baby hear such superstitious nonsense was swiftly routed by the pleasure which the little elephant brought.

"Now, Irma," Carlos commanded, "bring me your best fitting brassiere and a pair of trunks. I am about to create."

Irma ran for the articles, noting as she ran the bewilderment and horror of Miss March. When Carlos produced his dressmaker's shears and cut into the satin with authority and confidence Miss March said, "Well!" Then swiftly recovering her poise she turned again to the business of cooking the baby's dinner.

Later Irma prepared fried eggs, toast and coffee for herself and Carlos. He looked up as she stood in the kitchenette and said, as though noticing the apartment for the first time, "Your curtains don't hang right, dear, and you should have a few lampshades. When we get set at the club I'll fix this place up for you if you like."

"O, that would be grand."

"I always liked decorating. I've done several apartments, but the competition is too terrible with all the bored old ladies and bored young girls taking correspondence courses and doing their friends' places."

Then busily back at his sewing again. When he put it aside in favor of eating she said, "Carlos, I meant to talk to you about money sooner. I told you I have to have a hundred——"

"You'll have it, my dear. Even this week you'll have it. I'll take the seventy-five."

"But, look, suppose he keeps us. When you've put in the costumes and arranged the dances, are you going to be satisfied with a fifty-fifty split?"

"Do hold the complaints till it's you getting cheated, will you, dear? I never saw such a woman for digging up trouble. Here, do you suppose you could sew a strap to this thing very tidily?"

"I'll try," she said, wondering at her own humbleness.

He handed her the bandeau and turned to the binding of the seams on the satin trunks. They sewed in silence for a time. Irma was wondering what Thrace would think. It all seemed a little fantastic even to her.

. . . . . .

Carlos had felt from the first that he and Irma would get the ten weeks' contract. Irma's great need coupled with her worrisome disposition made her afraid to even hope for it. Nor did she expect to hear before the end of the week what decision Carroll had reached concerning herself and Carlos.

She was surprised when on the second night of their appearance at the club Carroll brought the contract to be signed.

"We might as well do this and have it over with," he said. "It calls for more money than any dancing act for a café is worth. Nobody watches you anyhow, but I can't be bothered arguing."

"I'm that way, too," Carlos said. "Give us the contract. We'll sign."

Once her signature was placed beneath Carlos' Irma felt extremely light-hearted. That was ten weeks taken care of. The next job would be easier to get, for she would be able to name a recent engagement. Besides, who knew, they might even be taken for a show. Some one of importance might happen to see them here. Her spirits were so high that even riding home in the subway at five o'clock in the morning couldn't dampen them.

When her salary was paid her at the end of that first week she wrote Bill Fitzroy, carefully omitting her address but inclosing a money order for fifty dollars.

"Dear Bill:

"Here's a tenth of what I owe you. I hope to send another tenth next month. I know you don't need it, but I feel the need of paying you. You'll understand how that is. I have a job. It's a pretty good one with possibilities of something better arising from it. Everything is fine with me. The baby and I are both in perfect health and you can tell that to whom it may concern. I hope you're well and happy, for you're a swell fellow. Best, IRMA."

It took Irma another week to get over the delightful shock of having a job. When she settled down to normal she looked the situation over with a critical eye. Approximately four hundred a month was the present income. One hundred out for rent, eighty for Miss March, fifty toward her debt to Bill. That made two hundred and thirty. Of course she didn't have to send Bill as much as fifty dollars. As a matter of fact, she didn't have to send him anything, but, whether it came under the heading of honor or self-indulgence, the fact remained that she intended to send him fifty dollars every month that it was humanly possible. Now, could she get by on the remaining forty-two dollars a week? Out of that must come food for three, gas, electricity, telephone, carfare, clothes, laundry, an occasional gift for the baby, and possibly doctors' bills. Well, she'd have to get by. There was a hundred and fifty dollars from Bill's original stake in a savings bank around the corner. She had put it there the day after she had signed her contract at the club. And there it would stay till the darkest hour of the darkest day. Meanwhile she could go easy on the gas and electricity, forget she had a phone and walk when possible instead of riding. There were no facilities for washing anything but small objects in the kitchenette. It was fortunate that the bed and table linens were supplied spick and span weekly by the apartment house management. The baby, she thought with thanksgiving, had plenty of clothes. She was less fortunately placed, but the absence of a social life made attractive clothes wholly unnecessary.

By her third week at the Club Denise Irma was fairly sure that no one of importance would see Carlos and herself and whisk them into a show. The patrons were mainly suburban gentry on a bender, with characters from the lower fringe of Broadway scattered about for relief. A few minor celebrities had dropped in, but they were from the sporting world and from the newspaper field. So much for that dream.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Little Eddie, aged 4, came bursting into the room in high glee, calling, "See! I'm a big boy now! I can write my own name. Brother showed me." Examination of the not very clean sheet of paper clutched in his chubby hand showed that it contained, evidently as the result of much effort, in giant but wabbly capitals the word "M E." W. A. B.

My 2½ year old niece detests spinach, and my sister has vainly tried to camouflage it in every way so that she will eat it. Recently I brought some seaweed home for our goldfish, and after putting it into the bowl she toddled up and said: "Poor fishy—did mommy div you my pinnish?" E. C.

Billy, aged 3, has among his toys a beloved picture book which is his companion on all visits. One day, after he was in bed he asked mother to read some stories to him. Mother told him she couldn't, as she cannot read without her glasses. When these had been found, Billy asked in a wondering tone. "Who reads those stories, you or the glasses. G. S."

Jean Adams, S. C. Pirie Jr. Are Married

AUTUMNAL decorations of leaves and amber and bronze chrysanthemums brightened the chancel of St. Chrysostom's church for the wedding yesterday afternoon of Miss Jean Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Martin Adams, to Samuel Carson Pirie Jr. After the ceremony a reception was held at the Drake hotel.

The bride wore a deep cream velvet gown and a tulle veil dyed the same cream color with a short lace veil and headband of pearls. The lilies of the valley and orchids in her bouquet were tinted to match the gown and veil.

Miss Isabel Pirie, the maid of honor, wore a yellow chiffon velvet frock and the bridesmaids, Mrs. John T. Pirie II., Miss Patricia Schmidt, and Miss Virjean Richey, were gowned in nasturtium velvet. They all wore golden brown hats, gloves, and shoes, and carried arm bouquets of bronze chrysanthemums.

ZIMBALIST, STOCK DRAW CROWD FOR SYMPHONY CONCERT

BY EDWARD MOORE.

There is only one trouble with the appearances of Efrem Zimbalist, the violinist. They do not occur often enough. But he gladdened the hearts of those who like good violin playing when he appeared as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra at Orchestra hall last night.

In several ways he differs from a good many of his brethren of the fiddle. One of them is that he seems to care little about making a display for its own sake. He is entirely competent when a fireworks passage crosses his path, but just when he is busiest and most brilliant over it is when he becomes most impersonal.

On the other hand the second, or slow movement of the Sibelius Concerto in D minor as he played it last night was as beautiful a performance as one is likely to hear all this season or next. There he was at his high point. Perhaps it is another mark of his departure from the violinistic conventions that he played this concerto, for it has never become popular with violinists. In fact the records disclose but two previous performances of it in the orchestral programs here, and they took place twenty-two and twenty-four years ago.

Mr. Zimbalist set down a good many reasons why it should be played more often, but possibly they were because he is the kind of artist he is. At any rate he was a notable success, and the orchestral audience raised many pairs of hands to indicate it.

The program contained only two composers, Sibelius and d'Indy. The concerto was followed by "Finlandia." It was preceded by the first named musician's "Wallenstein's Camp," opus 12, and the second symphony, opus 57. These two works are a long way apart in time and in the development of their composer, and they show it.

Because the second symphony is such a superb bit of composer's workmanship, and further, because it received such a masterly preformance from Mr. Stock and his men, one hesitates to register a feeling of coolness in its presence. Apparently one gets down to essentials, the invention of melody, in its case. The themes are altogether agreeable, they are at times light hearted, and they are handled as only an expert could treat them. But they lack the final impulsive thrill of great vitality. If they had succeeded in getting what they just miss, this would have been one of the great symphonies of the world.

Auction of Antiques Brings 10 Per Cent of Appraisers' Ratings

Articles contributed by well known persons for the benefit of charity were sold at small prices under the auctioneer's hamme. yesterday at the Chicago antiques show at the Drake hotel. The auction brought less than 10 per cent of the value of the articles as appraised by experts earlier in the day. The total receipts were $199.25.

A rare silver spoon that had been valued by an expert at $100, sold for $7. A German silver tea urn bearing the date "1805," sold for $40, although it was valued at $125.

The bookends from the Ninian Edwards home where Abraham Lincoln was married, contributed by Gov. Emmerson, brought only $5. The Russian ikon George Ade brought from Moscow years ago sold for $4, while the old map of the Mississippi river published in 1775 contributed by W. R. Browne went for $7.

The proceeds of the auction will be divided among the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society, Juvenile Protective association, and the Infant Welfare society.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Society Views Art Display at the Institute

THE chatter of feminine voices and the clatter of dishes almost drowned out the orchestra at the Art institute reception and tea yesterday afternoon to open the annual exhibit of American paintings and sculpture.

The affair was crowded, festive, and noisy. The guests clustered around the galleries where fashionable ladies dispensed tea and wafers with the skill and rapidity with which they used to hand out coffee and doughnuts in canteens during the war days. The tea tables, as usual, were lovely enough to steal almost everybody's attention from the exhibition itself.

The table representing the Antiquarians, Fortnightly, and Friends of American Art, done in black and white and shimmering silver by Mrs. James M. Hopkins, won a large share of admiring "Ohs" and "Ahs." A cloth of silver cover with two inserts of black lace formed the foundation of the decorative scheme. The centerpiece was a slim silver Archipenko statuette loaned by Mrs. Walter Brewster, with gardenias spread lavishly around its base.

Among the busy pourers here were Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, in a navy wool dress with a red scarf collar and a red hat; Mrs. Moses Wentworth, in black velvet and ermine; Mrs. Waller Borden, in a beige crêpe frock and brown felt hat; Mrs. Hopkins, in a lavendar crêpe dress and close fitting caracul toque, and Mrs. D. Mark Cummings in brown satin.

The Arts, Contemporary, and Friday clubs held forth at a table decked with white roses in the Arts club's bronze and ivory centerpiece. Mrs. Willard Boyden, Mrs. William B. Hale, Mrs. Charles W. Dempster, Mrs. E. Harris Brewer tended to the refreshments here.

Other organizations represented were the Drama league, with Mrs. Frank Marston and Mrs. Albert E. Shutz presiding at a table blooming with a large centerpiece of bronze and yellow fall flowers; the Tuesday Art and Travel, the Arche, and the Musicians Club of Women, whose table was set with a huge bunch of Talisman roses and two tall yellow tapers in bronze candlesticks; the Renaissance and the Association of Arts and Industries, at a severely simple, uncovered table with fall flowers in a black bowl; the Chicago Woman's club, the Municipal Art league, the Chicago Woman's Aid, and the Art Institute Alumni association, whose ecru filet covered table with a centerpiece of red roses was regarded by many as the loveliest of all.

Miss Isabelle Hill, daughter of Mrs. William Henderson Hill of Birmingham, Ala., and James M. Sheldon Jr., son of the James M. Sheldons of Glencoe, were married at 8 o'clock last night in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Don M. Compton at 5490 South Shore drive. The bride wore an ivory satin gown with a court train and Brussels lace veil and carried a shower bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley. Miss Betty Sheldon, her only attendant, was also gowned in white satin and held a spray of Talisman roses. Sayre Bradshaw of Oak Park was best man for Mr. Sheldon. The bride and groom will reside at 1047 Bennett avenue after a wedding trip to Hot Springs, Va.

Harold F. McCormick and Fowler McCormick had a brief visit between trains yesterday morning with Mr. and Mrs. Max Oser [Mathilde McCormick] and their children, Anita and Peter Oser. The Osers arrived at 9:30 o'clock from California and boarded a New York bound train at 11 o'clock. They will sail shortly for their home in Switzerland.

LANE GRADS RAP MOVE TO NAME SCHOOL 'EDISON'

Protest Massmeeting to Be Held Today.

More than 75,000 alumni of Lane Technical High school yesterday prepared to combat a proposal in the school board that the institution be renamed for Thomas A. Edison. R. M. Robertson, president, and other officers of the alumni association will address Lane students in a mass meeting of protest at noon today.

Another committee, headed by Mr. Robertson, Hobert Sommers and R. M. Bodach, will present the alumni objections to the proposal to the board's committee on school administration next Wednesday.

"We are not opposed to honoring Thomas A. Edison," said Mr. Bodach, "but that can be done without consigning Albert G. Lane to oblivion. Some one of the new schools should furnish the opportunity for the use of Edison's name.

"Our objection to renaming the new Lane building at Western avenue and Addison street is based on its obvious injustice—injustice to the memory of a man who both as city and county superintendent of schools created an enviable name for himself in the history of Chicago education; and injustice also to 75,000 or more men and women who proudly call Lane their alma mater and by a change would be put in the position of orphans.

"In the 31 years of its existence, Lane has built a reputation for being the greatest technical high school in the world. We are proud of that reputation. Lane is so much more than a name that it would mean humiliation were its alumni forced to say: 'We came from what used to be a school called Lane.'"

The proposal to change the name of the school was made at the school board meeting on Wednesday. It was referred to the committee on school administration.

West Parks Adopt Hoover Board's Traffic Plan

The west park board yesterday adopted a plan for a uniform uniform traffic code based on the suggestions of the Hoover traffic commission. The west park plans were presented by Daniel A. Roberts, board attorney. He explained that they would be coordinated with the national code. The system is patterned after that adopted originally by the city of Chicago and later approved by the Lincoln park board. The south park board is expected to follow the action of the west park board.

M'LEAN FIGHTS WIFE'S SUIT TO OUST HIM AS PUBLISHER OF POST

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Edward Beale McLean, publisher of the Washington Post, today asked the District Supreme court to dismiss the suit recently instituted by his wife, Evalyn Walsh McLean, to have him removed from the trusteeship of his father's estate. The motion to dismiss was made through McLean's attorneys, the publisher being at present in Europe.

EDWARD B. M'LEAN

Counsel for McLean, in the petition, claim the publisher's wife has no authority to institute the suit as "best friend" of their three children for whom the estate is held in trust. According to the petition, special guardians for the children were named by the court in the equity proceeding under which McLean was named cotrustee of the estate. Removal of McLean as trustee would involve his removal as publisher of the Washington Post.

The other trustee of the McLean estate, the American Security and Trust company of Washington, yesterday filed an answer to the court in which it admitted McLean's prolonged absences prevented personal conferences, but said it had been able to communicate with him in urgent matters.

It denied it has asked Mr. McLean's resignation, but admitted that it had threatened to do so, and that it had requested that the publisher pay closer attention to the affairs of the newspaper.

BARONESS HERE ON TOUR OF U. S. TALKS TOMORROW

Baroness von Notstix und von Hindenburg, making a tour of American cities in the interests of German-American friendship, arrived in Chicago last night from Cincinnati over the Big Four railroad.

Tomorrow morning she will talk on "The Old and New Germany" at the Palmer house.

FESS WILL STAY G. O. P. CHAIRMAN TILL CONVENTION

Plan to Force Him Out for Dry Talk Fails.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—The long standing uncertainty over the chairmanship of the Republican national committee came to an end, for the time being at least, with the announcement tonight by Senator Simeon D. Fess [Rep., O.] that he would continue to serve until the Republican national convention next June.

Previously Senator Fess had pleaded a press of senatorial duties as his reason for wishing to resign next December. His desire to retire led to conferences and controversy within the party. The President and Republican leaders canvassed the field for a successor. Many names of possible next chairman came to the surface. None, however, was fixed on, and it finally was decided, it was announced, that the party's interest would be best served if no change were made until after the convention.

It was also felt, it is understood, that were Senator Fess to resign it might be said that he had done so under pressure because of his dictum that the Republican party would be dry in 1932.

Senator Fess was named as chairman of the Republican national committee on Aug. 7, 1930, as successor to Claudius H. Huston. It was understood at the time that his tenure would last only until some other chairman should be chosen.

BROTHER SAYS MIKE HEITLER DIED PENNILESS

"Mike de Pike" Heitler, slain vice monger, died penniless, a letter received by the government from Coleman Heitler, his brother and executor of the estate, said yesterday. Federal authorities had sought an $1,356.34 occupational and liquor tax owed by the gangster in the connection with the raiding of a roadhouse. Coleman Heitler set forth that he had had to pay for his brother's funeral and make good a $300 note.

The government's claim arose from a raid on the Burr Oak inn, Burr Oak, in 1928. Heitler, the owner, was never prosecuted, but after his death the tax claim was revealed. Despite Coleman Heitler's letter the government will try to collect the money in the Probate court, Assistant United States Attorney W. B. Crawford announced.

SUSPECTED PICKPOCKETS FREED.

Ted Roseman and Max Fleisher, reputed pickpockets, who were arrested in front of the Federal building in the crowds massed to see Al Capone recently, were discharged for lack of evidence by Judge James F. Fardy yesterday.

WIFE DIVORCES HAROLD T. RAY, FORMER BROKER

Mrs. Evelyn Ruth Ray of Daytona Beach, Fla., was granted a divorce yesterday by Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude from Harold T. Ray, 625 Ridge avenue, Evanston. Ray formerly was the head of a brokerage house bearing his name, which ceased operations in 1929. His wife charged cruelty.

The action was uncontested, although Ray had previously filed a cross-bill charging his wife with abusing him while he was suffering from the after effects of drinking. Judge Trude granted a decree by default.

Attorney Benjamin H. Ehrlich, representing Mrs. Ray, presented a stipulation dividing the property of the couple, which was approved by the judge. Mrs. Ray got an automobile, a house valued at $44,000 in Daytona Beach, and three lots adjoining the home. Ray retained his Evanston home, valued at $42,000, received a house valued at $40,000 in Coral Gables, Fla., to which his wife formerly held title, and retained possession of the second of the family cars and a 65 foot motor cruiser, valued at $35,000, now at Jacksonville, Fla. Mrs. Ray waived alimony.

JOSIE MANSFIELD BURIED; ONLY 3 ATTEND FUNERAL

PARIS, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Josie Mansfield, whose gay charms nearly sixty years ago caused one of New York's most sensational killings, was buried far from Broadway today with only two serving women and a single faithful acquaintance to mourn her passing. She was buried as Mrs. Helen Josephine Mansfield Reads in a grave beside her mother's in historic Montparnasse cemetery on the southern heights of Paris.

Only a large bouquet of chrysanthemums from the two maids and the friend was the final tribute to the woman over whose affections Edward S. Stokes shot and killed his business associate, James Fisk Jr., on the stairs of a Broadway hotel Jan. 6, 1872.

The three mourners attended a brief funeral service conducted at the hospital where she died Monday by the Rev. George C. Gibbs, canon of the American cathedral of the Holy Trinity. Then they followed the casket through a drizzling mist to the cemetery. Mrs. Reade's age appeared as 78 in the notice of her death after a half-century of retirement in Paris.

MINNESOTA GRID STARS EXPOSE BRIBE OFFER

FLAWS ALWAYS WILL OUT, EVEN IN GRID RULES

Kickoff Brings Back the Flying Wedge.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 29.—They are clamoring for the abolition of the kickoff in football, the only play in which the flying wedge still is permitted to be used, and no doubt something will be done about this when the rules committee meets again next winter.

RICHARD SHERIDAN.

Probably the rules committee will retain the kickoff, but forbid the wedge formation, which has been growing more compact and more dangerous in the last few years. It was a wedge of this kind, I understand, which ran down the little cadet, Dick Sheridan, of West Point, in the Yale game last week and left him for dead.

This snowplow formation is legal and comparatively new. Until a few years ago the return of the kickoff was not a mass play, and the members of the interference preferably worked as individuals. The mass interference, when it was used, seemed to take shape accidentally and often piled itself up. But when it was deliberately planned and worked upon it was seen to embody the offensive power of the outlawed wedge plus the advantage of legal sanction.

Flaws Always Appear.

There are not many coaching football teams nowadays who have a fine eye for technicalities in the rules, but the pressure of the game is such that flaws in the regulations are constantly disclosing themselves.

People grow accustomed to reading of the injury of football players in the fall and, if dwelt upon, these casualty reports could be made very impressive. This is a Thursday, five days since last Saturday's games, but casually included in the football news on one sport page, with no intent to emphasize the dangers of football, there are references to half a dozen young men so badly hurt that they will not be able to play next Saturday. Among them is one college student whose trouble is calmly described as concussion of the brain.

Prof. Howard Savage of the Carnegie Foundation has an idea that in the course of time the college teams will turn to touch football, eliminating the tackle and obviating many injuries. I am not thoroughly familiar with touch football, but I presume that, if it is intended to minimize the physical danger to the athletes, it must recognize touch blocking, or imaginary blocking, as well as the touch tackle, or imaginary tackle, because more players are injured in the obscure work of blocking than in tackling.

Ancient Game of Tag.

Touch football is an adaptation of the ancient game of tag. When the player carrying the ball is tagged he is deemed to have been tackled just as seriously as though he had been twirled three times around some adversary's head and spanked on the ground like a slat. Possibly the tackler exclaims, "Tag; you're down!" and the members of the interference, "Tag; you are dumped on your face!"

The present alumni and the present combatants would be sure to regard this as a sissy type of football. But I must admit that I have seen casual groups of students of the non-varsity type playing it in long pants and common shoes, just as they came from their class rooms, strictly for exercise and that it is by no means a sedentary sport. For one thing, there is no sprawling and the game therefore is not subject to delays while the players sort themselves out and pick themselves up after each play. Consequently they run off many more plays in touch football, and if exercise were the chief motive of varsity football, as it is not, touch or tag football would be much the better game.

Pageantry Makes Dissenters.

But the people who love football or the pageantry and excitement of which football largely consists are bound to resent any attempt to institute Prof. Savage's favorite form of the game. If it is to be imagined that a man is tackled or blocked when he is merely tagged, then, in the progress of effeteness, would there not come a time when the players would sit in their rooms and leave the tagging to the imagination, too? Touch football will assay less than one-half of one per cent of football, by volume.

As to the man building virtue of football I have always been suspicious. Most of the players who make varsity teams come to the football coach ready built, and football confers no physical improvement which could not be achieved in other sports. And no other sport so tends to tear the boys apart.

But this is not intended as an indictment of the game. Football has been indicted by experts on many counts many times ere this, but the indictments always have been tossed out of court and the game goes on, noble, brutal, chivalrous, cruel and altogether gorgeous and daffy.

THREE GET BID OF $1,500 TO LET WISCONSIN WIN

Think Letters Work of Jokester.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Three of the University of Minnesota's leading football players—Capt. Clarence Munn, Kenneth MacDougall, and Jack Manders—today received letters offering them $1,500 each to "throw" Saturday's game with Wisconsin here. The letters had been mailed in Madison, Wis., on Tuesday and were signed by "W. Burzik."

CLARENCE MUNN.

The attempted bribe was regarded by some Minnesota fans and members of the football coaching staff as the work of a practical jokester. Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite of Wisconsin expressed the opinion of another group when he said the letters were written by some Minnesota partisan in an effort to key the team for the game.

Third Group Blames Gamblers.

A third faction accepted the letters as a crude attempt by a group of gamblers to influence the outcome of the game, which is looked upon as one of the most important of the season. Neither team has lost a conference contest.

All three of the athletes received the same message. The letter read:

"Dear Friend: If you will do your best to throw the game away to the Badgers this coming Saturday, and provided that the Badgers win, I will present you with $1,500 in bills. The money will be in your possession late Saturday night. You do not have to answer this letter, but let your work Saturday earn you some real money instead of glory.

[Signed] "W. BURZIK."

Fritz Crisler, head coach, as well as the three players, refused to take the letters seriously, although Crisler said that he would turn over the letters to postal authorities for investigation at once.

Newspaper Man Gets Letter.

One Minneapolis newspaper man also received a letter from the same "W. Burzik." That letter said:

"Sports Editor:

"A number of my friends have formed a big betting coup for Saturday's game and we want the Badgers to win. We want you to work up in your paper that Minnesota will be a cinch to win and to offer odds on Minnesota to win 5 to 1. We have $50,000 to bet on this game and of course we want the odds.

"If you will do your part, we will present you with $2,500 in bills, provided, of course, that Wisconsin wins.

"We will arrive in Minneapolis Friday morning. For your confidential information, we have written to Munn, Manders and MacDougall offering them $1,500 each, provided they throw the game and Wisconsin wins.

[Signed] "W. BURZIK."

The letters to the Minnesota players, as well as to the Minneapolis sport writer, were written on a typewriter on Hotel Loraine, Madison, Wis., stationery. The signature also was written on the typewriter.

No Burzik on Register.

As soon as the boys received the letters shortly before noon they rushed to Athletic Director Fritz Crisler's office with them. He immediately telephoned the manager of the Madison hotel to find out if any "W. Burzik" was registered there or had been there recently, the letters having been written on Oct. 27. They could find no one on their books by that name or anything like it.

"It looks like the work of some demented person," said Fritz Crisler tonight. "It's too ridiculous to give serious attention, especially as we are plenty busy trying to get ready for the Wisconsin game Saturday."

There has been no serious betting in the Twin Cities on the outcome of the game. At most downtown sports headquarters the Badgers were favored at odds of 10 to 7, with little money on either team available.

The letters will be turned over to local postal authorities tomorrow in an effort to trace the sender. The letters carried a Madison, Wis., postmark and were mailed at 4 p. m. Tuesday.

Gophers Brave Storm.

Despite another all day rain, Coach Crisler kept the Minnesota football men outdoors on a water-soaked field for the most strenuous practice of the season preparatory to the homecoming game with Wisconsin Saturday.

Scrimmage against the freshmen on Wisconsin's passes with which the varsity had some difficulty, formed the major part of the drill. Time after time Crisler stopped the scrimmage to reprimand the backs.

Oen, center, and Wells, tackle, were in uniform, but only limbered up. Wells is taking hourly treatments for

Comiskey Led Browns to 4 Titles

[This is the fourth of a series of articles on the life of Charles A. Comiskey.]

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

When Charles A. Comiskey reported to the St. Louis Browns in the spring of 1882 for his first bona fide pro job, it wasn't definitely established, except in his own mind, that he was a first baseman. Of course, he won his point.

It will be recalled that at Dubuque he had been a pitcher until he injured his arm. But even without that injury he might have quit that particular line in baseball. It was his habit to remark in the later years of his life that he had given up the idea that he was a pitcher after seeing Larry Reis. The latter was a Chicago boy who served with Comiskey, Radbourne and others on one of the Dubuque teams.

The pitching notion had been dismissed by Comiskey while he still was a member of the Dubuque Rabbits in 1881. First base was his choice and when he reached St. Louis in 1882 he already was playing the bag according to the style still prevalent. But Cuthbert, the St. Louis manager, figured Comiskey could play the outfield.

Commy practiced out there for a time and then went to the boss with the information that he (Comiskey) had signed to play first base, that his arm was no longer good enough for an outfield job, and that if he couldn't play on the infield he would welcome a release so that he could accept a job awaiting him with the Louisville team.

Cuthbert sent the tall, clean shaven lad to first base. Commy had been doing a little spring work at Dubuque before reporting, so he was in fine shape to clinch the job in a hurry.

Sullivan Starts Building Championship Team.

In 1883 Ted Sullivan, who died several years ago, came along the same road Comiskey had traveled. Sullivan came from Dubuque to St. Louis to be the manager of the Browns. He promptly set about on the building of the foundation of the team which Comiskey was destined to lead to four titles. Sullivan went to Boston and returned with Catcher Tom Deasley. He added Hugh Nichol, the outfielder with Chicago. Besides these there were Tony Mullane, now a retired Chicago policeman, Tom Dolan, Tom Sullivan, Charles Hodnett, George McGinnis, Walter Latham, William Gleason, Eddie Cuthbert, and, of course, Comiskey, whose clean shaven face looked like that of a cherub among the heavy, black bandit mustaches which most of the players thought becoming to them.

The famous Chris von Der Ahe, Der Poss of Der Browns, was a genial German to whom the tricks of business were as strange as prayers to a heathen. It was Chris' habit to boast: "Ve got der biggest infield in baseball." It didn't occur to him that all infields measured the same. What he meant was the park, but the word infield to him seemed more intriguing. Anyway Chris began to think that he knew something about the playing management, so in 1883 Ted Sullivan walked out on the job. He signed to manage the St. Louis Union team, which was placed in the field in 1884 by Henry Lucas. Until then the Browns had St. Louis to themselves.

Comiskey Becomes Manager at Salary of $6,500.

Sullivan's resignation was in time to be Comiskey's luck. Von Der Ahe selected Jimmy Williams, afterward president of the Western league, for the Browns' manager in 1884, but before the season ended Comiskey, who had been captain, was asked to take the reins. Thus Commy, until then a boy struggling along on a meager wage, came into the big money. At least it was big for those days, as witness Comiskey's return each winter to Dubuque where, with the "town sports," he engaged in harness cutter racing which then was in vogue. His salary as the Browns' manager was in the neighborhood of $6,500.

Being boss of the Browns made Comiskey the enemy, at least on the ball field, of his lifelong companion, Sullivan, who was leading the rival Union team. Comiskey frequently recalled that on two occasions the Browns went to the Unions' park—called the Patch—for games and each time, after winning, were pelted with all the decadent fruit and vegetables in the town. The fans of that period were a playful bunch. These same

BASEBALL PAYS LAST TRIBUTE TO CHAS. COMISKEY

Throngs Attend Funeral of Old Roman.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

They've buried the Old Roman. The body of Charles A. Comiskey lies beside that of his wife in Calvary. Commy is beyond the reach of the heartbreaks and the ecstacies of this sphere. As the Rev. James Leddy said in the funeral sermon yesterday—"The game is over; the players have left the field."

Hundreds of old friends and associates attended the funeral services of Charles A. Comiskey, taking up every pew and every available corner of the spacious church of St. Thomas the Apostle at 55th street and Kimbark avenue. Hundreds more waited outside the church while the solemn requiem mass was being sung.

Recalls Commy's Life.

After the mass had been celebrated, Father Leddy launched his eulogy. It was not an impersonal sermon in any sense. Father Leddy talked about a baseball leader who had fought adversity to success; who had been charitable to all with whom he had come in contact; but who, late in life, had suffered a broken heart because of those whom he had trusted most.

Father Leddy's sermon specifically was about Charles A. Comiskey, the Old Roman, happy host of other days who had died in the quiet of the north woods, alone except for the presence of his son and only heir, Louis Comiskey.

Father Leddy didn't dwell in detail on the chapters of the late Mr. Comiskey's career. He didn't have to, especially to the group of baseball men who gathered to pay tribute to the Old Roman. They knew of the part the dead man had played in the development of the national sport and they knew his bitter disappointments in the last years of his life.

Friends, Foes Attend.

Some of those who had come to St. Thomas' to pay their last respects to Comiskey had fought with him shoulder to shoulder in the advancement of the national game. Others who were there at times had taken issue with the Old Roman. But yesterday morning they all were there in Commy's church as friends who mourned his passing.

Baseball men formed only a small proportion of the gathering of some 1,500 persons who were able to get into the church. But they were the most intent observers of the services.

In one of the front pews was the official personnel of the Cubs, Owner William Wrigley, President William Veeck, Vice Presidents William Walker and John Seys, and Manager Rogers Hornsby.

Landis, Heydler Present.

Elsewhere in the auditorium sat Commissioner K. M. Landis with John Heydler, president of the National league. Near them was Will Harridge, president of the American league.

Clark Griffith, once an employé of Mr. Comiskey's and now president of the Washington Senators, was there and with him were Frank and Charles Navin, president and secretary of the Detroit Tigers, Robert Quinn of the Boston Red Sox, Billy Evans of the Cleveland club, and L. C. McEvoy of the St. Louis Browns. Jake Ruppert and Tom Shibe, heads of the New York Yankees and the Philadelphia Athletics, were too ill to attend the services and their organizations were the only clubs in the league not represented.

Umpires George Moriarty, Clarence Owens, Emmett Ormsby, and William Guthrie completed the representation from the American league. Thomas Hickey, president of the American association, was among the mourners, as was Mike Sexton, head of the National association of minor leagues.

It'll Be Long Walk for These Boys if They Lose

Kewaunee, Wis., Oct. 29.—(AP)—The football players of Kewaunee High school may walk the eight long miles back home burdened with their football equipment after Saturday's game with Algoma High. That will be their self-inflicted punishment if they lose to their traditional rivals, the Kewaunee team recently vowed.

Maroons Are Ready; Await Boilermakers

Every indication, including the report that Purdue will be in top shape for the first time this season, points to another crushing defeat for the Maroons on Stagg field tomorrow. But in the midst of the encircling gloom the Maroons yesterday were in cheerful spirits.

The remarks of Capt. Sam Horwitz yesterday were indicative of the surprisingly good morale of the squad.

"We are conceding Purdue better blocking and better organization," he said. "We are not conceding them anything more—least of all a victory before the game starts. Man for man, we are as good as Purdue. We hope to show them."

Chicago held its final scrimmage yesterday. For the first time in several years Coach Stagg has turned the defensive tactics entirely over to an assistant, and Pat Page has evolved a formation designed especially to check passes and wide runs.

The center of the line will be stronger than it was last Saturday, even though Hamberg is out. Both Hamberg and Horwitz were on the bench during most of the Indiana game, but this week Horwitz is back and three fairly competent guards are fighting for Hamberg's spot.

It became apparent yesterday that Stagg may decide to save his son Paul for the second half as he did last Saturday. In that event Wallace will start at quarter, with Sahlin, Birney and Temple around him.

PURDUE DRILLS INSIDE

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Purdue virtually completed preparations today for its Chicago invasion Saturday with an extended dummy scrimmage. A cold rain drove the Boilermakers into the Armory for the drill.

Squad members make no secret of the fact that they intend to cut loose with all available power in a wide-open game. Although frankly expecting a victory, Purdue will enter the game with some misgiving. Through the years Coach A. A. Stagg has pulled more than one surprise on Purdue. This year he is aided by Pat Page, who engineered Indiana's stunning 7 to 6 victory over Purdue last season.

Suggests College Presidents Make Grid Schedules

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 29.—(AP)—David E. Ross of Purdue university today recommended to the Association of Governing Boards of State universities that authority to schedule football games within a conference be taken away from coaches and athletic directors.

The association, meeting at the University of Minnesota, took no action upon the suggestion, under which Mr. Ross would have given to the president of a school the full power to draw up conference games.

Mr. Ross said such a change would enable universities to get away from any suspicion of professionalism in conducting athletics. Circumstances at present, he said, force a coach to "parallel the activities of a promoter."

"It is only human," Ross asserted, "that they should look to gate receipts. This is the first step made by boards of control themselves and presidents of universities in professionalizing the contests.

"The presidents should be requested to arrange the schedules or perhaps lay them out for years in advance in a rotating manner. Thus we would free ourselves of a sharp criticism."

CANZONERI WINS EASILY TO KEEP JUNIOR TITLE

Newark, N. J., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Tony Canzoneri of New York, defending his junior welterweight championship, took the referee's decision over Phil Griffin of Newark in a ten round bout tonight. Canzoneri also holds the lightweight championship, which was not at stake.

Canzoneri, unmoved by the boos and taunts of the crowd, hardly exerted himself for the first five rounds. Griffin appeared frightened to be in the same ring with the champion, and his morale was so badly affected he was unable to try to make a fight of it until the affair was half over.

Farrell, Former Yankee Owner, Leaves $1,072 Estate

New York, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Frank J. Farrell, who for ten years owned the New York Yankees and a string of race horses, left a net estate of $1,072 when he died Feb. 18, 1925, an appraisal filed today showed. His widow, Mrs. Anna E. Farrell, received $731 of the total.

N. U. GOES OVER FUNDAMENTALS FOR ILLINI GAME

Weldin and Meenan Only Casualties.

A workout, characterized by the coaches as "light," was given Northwestern's football team yesterday as the final preparation for tomorrow's Illinois game at Dyche stadium.

Although there was no actual scrimmage the practice included a complete rehearsal of fundamentals.

Seldom has a Northwestern team gone about training with such a serious mien. Coaches and players alike have turned to a program of hard work in an effort to thwart any tendency towards a let down such as might logically follow for successive games.

With the exception of two positions, the Wildcats are better prepared physically for tomorrow's game than for any other this season. The only casualties are at center, where Weldin will be replaced by McDonald, and at left half, where Al Moore is slated to start in favor of Ken Meenan. Both Weldin and Meenan are nursing injuries sustained in the Ohio game.

Alumni to Meet.

Unlike last week, the Purple's starting back field is physically sound. Olson has recovered from a leg injury and Potter's ailing knee is mended.

A back field consisting of Pug Rentner and Al Moore, half backs, Ollie Olson, full back, and George Potter, quarter back, will start against the Illini. The line will consist of Manske and Fencl, ends; Riley and Marvil, tackles; Evans and Engebretsen, guards, and Weldin, center.

Three hundred alumni of both Northwestern and Illinois will attend a joint luncheon at the Sherman hotel at noon today. Speakers will be President Harry W. Chase of Illinois, President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern, Coach Bob Zuppke of Illinois and Dick Hanley of Northwestern; George Huff, athletic director of Illinois, and K. L. Wilson, athletic director of Northwestern.

Illini Here for Game.

Thirty-three Illinois football players arrived in Chicago last night and went to the Wilmette Country club.

Purma and Perkins are surprise selections. Others making the trip are:

Ends—Bailey, Fredenburg, Owen, and Schustek. Linemen—Bodman, Glick, Gorenstein, Jackson, Kennedy, May, O'Keefe, O'Neil, Platt, and Straw. Backs—Carson, Cook, Horsley, Morgan, Munch, Root, Snavely, and Wilson.

Lind Murray, full back, who was listed yesterday with the traveling squad, was unable to join the team.

Scrimmage, signal drill, and punting practice formed the final home workout. The freshmen served as opponents on both defense and offense, using the Northwestern attack. Gil Berry, Eddie Schalk, and Herman Waser shared the punting duties.

More than 6,000 tickets have been sold in Champaign for the game. The Illinois delegation, for which special excursion trains have been arranged today and tomorrow, will be headed by the 160 piece band.

NEVERS TAKES 25 CARDINALS EAST FOR THREE GAMES

The Chicago Cardinals football squad, 25 strong, will leave today for the east where it will play three National league games at Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Cleveland.

The first game is against the Dodgers in Brooklyn on Sunday.

The improved showing of Bill Glasgow, Iowa half back, has been a source of cheer to Coach Nevers. Glasgow has firmly established himself as one of the first string backs.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

Viewed solely from the box office standpoint, professional football does not yet rank with the rah rah brand, but there is evidence that the game is gaining in popularity.

Chicago this week-end will be host to one of the biggest attractions on the pro gridiron—the Green Bay Packers versus the Bears. George Halas, owner of the Chicago club and a pioneer in the promotional field, predicts that nearly 30,000 will pay their way into Wrigley field to watch the game.

The biggest crowd that ever has seen a pro game in Chicago was 32,000, on Thanksgiving, 1925. That was the day Red Grange made his debut with the Bears. The Cardinals provided the opposition. Three years later Benny Friedman came along with his New York Giants to attract 24,000.

Business this year, depression or no, has been better than last. Mr. Halas reports an increase of 15 per cent in net profits to date and his major attractions—Green Bay twice, Portsmouth and a return game with the Cardinals—have yet to be played. Dr. David Jones, owner of the Cardinals, likewise states revenue from football exceeds 1930 earnings.

The technical value of professional football no longer need be defended. I have seen more than one college coach in the stands at Wrigley field watching the Cardinals or Bears and it is my opinion that they were not there to be invigorated by the zippy breezes off Lake Michigan but to study the finished fundamental work salaried men invariably display.

Pro football may be lacking in color and popular appeal but it comes close to perfection in the basic patterns of technique.

There is a player who will appear with Green Bay Sunday for whom Chicagoans have particular regard. He is Russell Saunders, who used to cavort in the back field for Southern California. The last time Saunders appeared in Chicago was at Soldiers' field in 1929 against Notre Dame's national championship team. You may recall that he was the young man who returned a kickoff 95 yards for a touchdown. I have been watching Notre Dame play the best teams in the country since the late Knute Rockne became head coach, but I never saw an opposing player run through the team like that. I am wondering if Saunders can repeat that sprint in professional football.

A game of intersectional importance which does not involve Big Ten competition is scheduled for East Lansing, Mich., tomorrow. It brings together the undefeated Syracuse eleven and Michigan State, beaten only by the Army.

The outstanding achievement of the Syracuse team this season was a 33 to 12 victory over Florida. The southern eleven was strong enough last week to whip Alabama Polytechnic, which earlier in the year tied Wisconsin.

Syracuse is coached by Vic Hanson, one of its greatest gridiron heroes. Michigan State football is directed by Jimmy Crowley, one of Notre Dame's Four Horsemen.

This is Michigan State's chance to get even with Syracuse for the 21 to 7 victory scored by the easterners in 1917, the only other meeting of the schools.

JAPANESE SEND GIRLS TO GREET AMERICAN TEAM

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Three pretty girls, clad in gay kimonos, and carrying bouquets, welcomed the visiting American baseball players when their ship docked this afternoon at Yokohama. Thousands of fans cheered as the Americans descended the gangplank.

More bouquets followed when the Americans arrived in Tokio. They were cheered as they drove through the streets to the Imperial hotel, which was decorated in their honor.

Japanese baseball players, though they usually can hold their own with visiting college teams, have not yet met major leaguers and the result of the forthcoming encounters is awaited with intense interest and anxiety.

The Americans, including Lefty Grove and Mickey Cochrane, are making a short tour of Japan on the invitation of the newspaper Yomiuri Shimbun.

PACKERS TO SEEK 8TH IN ROW OVER BEARS SUNDAY

Record Crowd Expected at Wrigley Field.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Green Bay Packers, champions of the National Professional Football league for the last two years and undefeated in seven games this season, face the Chicago Bears Sunday at Wrigley field. Advance sales and reservations indicate that the largest crowd to see a professional game since Red Grange made his debut with the Bears in 1925, will watch the champions in action.

Green Bay will support its team in its first trip away from City stadium. Eight trains will bring several thousand fans to Chicago. Popular subscription has provided transportation for the Green Bay Lumberjack band.

Packers Best in Country.

Eastern Wisconsin is more interested in the Packers than in the state university. And Chicago shares that interest, for the Packers probably are the best football machine in the country, professional or amateur. When they meet the Bears spectacular football always has been the result.

Sunday's engagement is the twenty-second game between the Packers and the Bears. Green Bay has been victorious ten times, the Bears have won eight games, and three have been ties. The first game this year, played at Green Bay Sept. 27, resulted in a 7 to 0 victory for the Packers.

Until their unexpected defeat last Sunday by the Philadelphia Yellow Jackets, the Bears, along with the undefeated Portsmouth eleven, were regarded as the Packers greatest rivals in the battle for the 1931 title. The Bears still have the ability to upset the Packers, although greater team strength may turn the tide for the invaders. But the Chicago Cardinals, who met the Packers here two weeks from Sunday, Portsmouth and the New York Giants, now that Benny Friedman has rejoined the Gotham team, also are considered worthy opponents.

Seek Third Title.

The Packers are the best team ever developed in the National league. In 1929 they won the title with 12 victories and 1 tie.

Last year the Packers again fought it out with the New York Giants with the Bears finishing in third position. The Packers won 10 games, lost 3, and tied 1. The Giants won 13 games and lost 4. All of the Packers' defeats came late in the season and they did not clinch the title until the final game, a victory over Portsmouth. The Giants, Bears, and Cardinals won from the Packers.

The Bears won two games from the Packers in 1927. The next meeting between the teams early in 1928 was a 12 to 12 tie. Then the Packers rushed to seven victories in succession, and the last six held their opponents scoreless before the Bears crashed through in the final game last fall with a 21 to 0 triumph. The rivalry now is in its eleventh season. In 21 games the Packers have scored 175 points to the Bears' 157 points.

Record of Series.

1921—Bears, 20; Packers, 0.
1923—Bears, 3; Packers, 0.
1924—Packers, 5; Bears, 0.
1924—Bears, 3; Packers, 0.
1925—Packers, 14; Bears, 10.
1925—Bears, 21; Packers, 0.
1926—Bears, 6; Packers, 0.
1926—Bears, 19; Packers, 13.
1926—Bears, 3; Packers, 3.
1927—Bears, 7; Packers, 0.
1927—Bears, 14; Packers, 0.
1928—Bears, 12; Packers, 12.
1928—Packers, 16; Bears, 6.
1928—Packers, 6; Bears, 0.
1929—Packers, 23; Bears, 0.
1929—Packers, 14; Bears, 0.
1929—Packers, 24; Bears, 0.
1929—Packers, 7; Bears, 0.
1930—Packers, 13, Bears, 12.
1930—Bears, 21; Packers, 0.
1931—Packers, 7; Bears, 0.

When the Packers faltered in the closing days of the 1930 campaign they immediately strengthened the team with new players. That has been an established policy at Green Bay, and it has brought out some splendid players because, in addition to the salaries paid the players, positions are obtained for them. Russ Saunders of Southern California and Hank Bruder of Northwestern were back field replacements. Gantenbein of Wisconsin at end and Dick Stahlman, an old pro player who still is an excellent tackle, were signed for the line.

The Packers have two teams of nearly equal strength. This in itself is an advantage, but they also have perfected a forward passing game which has swept aside all foes by a decisive margin with the exception of the Bears.

Lewellen Keeps Going.

Verne Lewellen, who vows this will be his last year of competition, still steps in the back field when he's needed. And Lewellen not only can run and pass with the best of the youngsters, but he can kick better than any player in the league.

Red Dunn, former star at Marquette, sends the team through its paces with a dash that seldom can be stopped. Red's old college teammate, Verne Dilweg, holds down left end at least half of the time. In addition to Saunders at full back, the Packers have McCrary and Bo Molenda, former Michigan full back, for the position.

Opposed to this array of stars the Bears will have a first string back field which equals any four of the opponents. Red Grange, at left half, has been playing better than any time in his career. Joe Linzenich, who was injured last Sunday, will be able to hold his job at right half back. Carl Brumbaugh, quarter back, and Bronko Nagurski, the bruising full back, need no introductions. It is fortunate that Lintzenich will be able to play, for his kicking will be needed Sunday.

Four Mainstays in Line.

Bert Pearson, center; Link Lyman, tackle; Luke Johnsos and Garland Grange, ends, are the mainstays in the line. Coach Ralph Jones has had the squad at work all week preparing for this game. But when it comes to spirit and determination, the fact that the Packers are coming to town is sufficient to key the Bears to their best efforts.

Horwitz Attacks Anonymous Demand That Stagg Retire

Sam Horwitz, captain of the University of Chicago football team, yesterday was the first to rise in defense of Coach A. A. Stagg when an anonymous contributor to the Daily Maroon, University of Chicago student newspaper, suggested that the Old Man retire at once as Maroon coach. Speaking for a large group of Chicago students who expressed resentment against the writer of the open letter, Horwitz addressed a reply which will appear in today's Maroon.

While some undergraduates were disposed to argue the matter, the majority felt the anonymous author, who signed himself as "Undergraduate," was not aware of the conditions under which Stagg is working and was guilty of bad taste.

Horwitz Defends Stagg.

Horwitz's reply is as follows:

"Any one with a little common intelligence and football knowledge can easily recognize the fact that there is a dearth of material on the varsity squad. In spite of injury and ineligibility, the team did not quit once. We gave a bigger Michigan team a battle they won't forget in a long time. We went into that game acknowledged underdogs and we nearly beat them. And we did it for the Old Man.

"Nor is the Old Man a quitter. Do you think he will turn over the reins when the going is toughest? No, nor do we want him to. Give Mr. Stagg the material other famous coaches receive year in and year out and I'm positive he will equal their records or better them. If some of the grandstand-sitting undergraduates could receive the inspiration we on the team get from the Old Man they might gain more than they do from much of their academic work.

Team with Stagg.

"You think Mr. Stagg should retire, do you? The justices of the Supreme court of the United States also reach and pass a retirement age. But they continue in the harness and their age is a tribute to their wisdom. The board of trustees of the university, if they be good judges of coaching ability, will continue to keep the Old Man on the job he loves, as long as he wants to stay there.

"I'm for the Old Man, and so are the rest of his players. In our opinion he will qualify as the dean of all American coaches; more than that, he has never been a quitter. No matter what the odds, he never gives up, and neither will his team."

Stagg Is Silent.

Coach Stagg refused to comment directly on the letter, and did not appear to be greatly perturbed.

"I have not seen it," he remarked, and added with a chuckle, "but I understand it's scurrilous.

"This has been a strange season. I was not particularly pleased with the celebration of my fortieth anniversary. I have been too busy even to tell my wife about the Yale banquet. I have not had time to open or answer a stack of letters and telegrams of congratulation. And I am not particularly upset by this criticism, though, of course, it hurts a little."

Letter Cites Success.

The letter, which set up a ripple on the ordinarily placid Midway campus, appeared in the "Athenæum" department of the Daily Maroon. It was headed: "The Daily Maroon takes this opportunity to present, without comment, a recent communication received from a student at the university. Members of the university community who hold other views are invited to make use of this column."

The letter pointed to the records of Chicago teams in other sports in recent years, contending that it is not a lack of material which is responsible for the football team's poor showing.

Reasons for Poor Showing.

Defenders of Coach Stagg yesterday pointed out that the Chicago teams which have been victorious in recent years, including the baseball team, have depended upon the prowess of one or two men. Sports depending on large numbers have suffered equally with football.

The dearth of material, it was claimed, results from several sources—the fact that Chicago has the smallest available and eligible group of undergraduate males in the conference, the high entrance and eligibility standards set up by the faculty, which resulted this year in the elimination of most of the promising men who applied for admission or played on the freshman squad last year, and the honesty the university has practiced in the matter of recruiting high school athletes.

GOOD BACK FIELD GIVES ST. RITA CHANCE TO WIN

Another hard practice session was ordered by Coach Father Donovan yesterday as St. Rita's continued preparations for its game with Mount Carmel, leader of the south section in the Chicago Catholic High School Football league at St. Rita's field, 63d street and South Cabley avenue, Sunday afternoon. Advance ticket sales indicate that 15,000, the capacity of the new stadium, will watch the game.

St. Rita boasts of a powerful backfield, composed of Lang, Dabrowski, McCue, and Klugbauer, the latter the leader of a 52 to 0 victory over St. Ignatius last Sunday. The team must triumph over Mount Carmel if it is to retain its sectional title.

A scoreless tie, played with Leo on a muddy field, is the only other league game the Saints have played. The Joliet game, scheduled for Oct. 17, was postponed until next month. De La Salle, which lost to Mount Carmel, is the next team on St. Rita's schedule.

Mount Carmel is in first place with three consecutive league victories. Victory Sunday would practically end the race for the sectional championship, as Joliet, a weak squad with two defeats already on its record, is the only team remaining on the Mount Carmel schedule.

Approximately 27,000 saw Mount Carmel defeat De La Salle last Sunday afternoon at Soldiers' field, according to Thomas Wren, chairman of publicity of the Sisters of Mercy building fund. Receipts have been estimated at close to $20,000.

St. Mel will seek to hand St. Michael its fourth straight defeat this afternoon in a north section game at Logan Square park. St. Mel, in four games, scored two victories and tied St. George and Loyola.

Bowen and Englewood will clash at Normal park, 61st street and Racine avenue, in a central section game this afternoon.

Oak Park and Deerfield-Shields, which drew byes in tomorrow's Suburban league schedule, will not rest over the week-end, however. Deerfield will face its traditional rival, Waukegan, this afternoon in the latter's field, while Oak Park will meet University City High school of University City, Mo., at Oak Park field tomorrow afternoon.

Morton will attempt to score its first Suburban league victory, meeting Proviso at Berwyn stadium, 26th street and Ridgeland avenue, tomorrow afternoon.

an injured arm, but it appeared almost certain he would not be available Saturday.

CALLS IT KEY UP SCHEME

Madison, Wis., Oct. 29.—(AP)—The purported attempt to bribe three Minnesota players to throw the game to Wisconsin Saturday is believed by Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite of the Badgers to be simply a means of trying to key up the team.

"It is so silly on the face of it," he said, "that no serious person would do it. Ninety-nine chances out a hundred the letter was sent to stir up Minnesota. It is probably the work of Minnesota sympathizers."

Wisconsin's football practice today was devoted to perfecting the offense to be used against Minnesota Saturday. While power plays are expected to form the backbone of the Badgers' attack, several new running plays and forward passes were gone over.

Wimmer and Schiller worked at quarter back, confirming the report that Goldenberg, regular pilot, will be held out Saturday. Both are good on offense, but neither is as savage a tackler as Goldenberg. McGuire was at right half, calling signals.

Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite announced that instead of leaving for Minneapolis at 3 o'clock Friday, thus by missing practice, the squad would entrain at 7:30 in the morning, arriving at Minneapolis in time for a workout.

NOTRE DAME'S SQUAD OFF FOR CARNEGIE GAME

3,000 Students Cheer Team at Rally.

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—With the vocal encouragement of 3,000 students who cheered them from Cartier practice field to the gymnasium ringing in their ears, Notre Dame's football squad left here tonight for Pittsburgh.

On Saturday the Irish, making the first of three invasions into eastern territory, will play Carnegie Tech, their rival since 1922, in the ninth game of their series. Notre Dame plays Navy and Army in the east later in the season.

Coach Heartly W. [Hunk] Anderson sent his first two varsity teams to the showers early this afternoon after a light drill on offense and defense. He will drill them again in Pittsburgh tomorrow afternoon for last minute changes.

He undoubtedly will start his varsity Saturday, as he did last week against Pittsburgh. Carnegie has played inspired ball against Notre Dame in the past.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Carnegie Tech completed its heavy work today for the football game with Notre Dame here Saturday. A light rehearsal will be held tomorrow and then the Skibos will retire to an isolated spot until game time. The Notre Dame squad will arrive tomorrow morning and will work out at Pitt stadium, scene of the game, in the afternoon. The Pittsburgh season's record crowd to date is expected to look on Saturday.

HOOSIERS LOSE PASSER

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—After a long workout here today, Indiana is ready for Ohio State in the homecoming battle at Memorial stadium here Saturday. Two elevens of first string men went through scrimmage.

Freshman elevens then clashed with the varsity and displayed Ohio State's running attack. The drill was conducted under lights in the field house.

A blow was dealt Indiana's pass offense when Adolph [Little Joe] Sabik aggravated an old injury. There is no hope of his entering the Ohio State game and the chances are slight that he will be able to play again this season. Sabik was injured in pre-season practice and was not ready to play until the Chicago game last Saturday. Coach Hayes now plans to use Opasik as the key man of the passing attack Saturday.

Greater speed in the line and back field to offset Ohio State's speed was emphasized by the Indiana coaches. Both teams will work out in the stadium tomorrow afternoon.

OHIO DRILLS ON PASSES

Columbus, O., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—The Ohio State Buckeyes today took their last long workout on forward pass defense and offense before entraining for the Indiana game at Bloomington Saturday.

The hospital list was reduced to one today with the appearance of Johnny Pugitt, sophomore kicking star, who returned to uniform following recovery from an ankle injury suffered early in the season.

There were 46 players and athletic officials in the official party which was to leave here early tomorrow morning, going direct to the Indiana stadium at Bloomington, where a light workout will be held, with the team spending the night at Spencer, Ind.

WOLVERINES GO EAST

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Following a final drill on South Ferry field and in Yost field house this afternoon, Michigan's football team departed for Princeton here this evening.

Coach Harry Kipke switched his guards and tackles and made back field changes during today's workout, giving the impression that he plans to use many men Saturday.

Williamson and Petoskey will be used at ends. Auer, Wistert and Samuels will be at tackles; Hoser, Lajeunesse, Kowalik and Cantrill, guards; Morrison, center; Tessmer and Bowman, quarter backs; Hudson, Fay, Everhardus, Heston and De Baker, half backs, and Hewitt, full back.

Predictions here favor Michigan by two touchdowns.

Kickoff Play Approved by Rule Makers

New York, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Any movement to abolish the kickoff in football, a play to which attention has been drawn by the fatal injury of Cadet Richard Sheridan in the Army-Yale game, apparently will find little favor with members of the football rules committee.

Eight of the nine members were reached today for comment on whether they favored abolishment or alteration of the present rule which puts the ball in play by a kickoff at the beginning of the first and third quarters and following each goal or touchdown. Five favored its retention.

T. A. D. Jones, former Yale coach, who saw the game in which Sheridan was injured, said he would prefer not to comment until he could gain a more sane perspective. E. K. Hall, chairman of the committee, declined to comment.

Call Play Most Dangerous.

It has been argued that the play is the most dangerous in the game, permitting formation of the banned flying wedge, such a group of interference as Sheridan tried to break up in an effort which cost him his life.

"Doing away with the kickoff would not stop injuries in football," said Amos Alonzo Stagg, veteran coach of Chicago, who added that the same logic behind the demand for its abolishment "would also ban a punt."

A. J. Stegeman of the University of Georgia called the play one of the most spectacular of the game and said he believed it resulted in no more injuries than other formations. Stegeman said the decision really was up to the coaches and that if they believed it dangerous the rules committee undoubtedly would ban it. He added, however, that he did not believe the coaches had that feeling.

Owen Is Opposed.

M. J. Ahearn, director of athletics at Kansas State Agricultural college, said his snap reaction would be to favor retention of the kickoff, but he had not given it much thought. "It is a beautiful and thrilling play," he said, "and it would take a strong argument to convince me it should be abolished."

W. O. Hunter of the University of Southern California said he would prefer to reserve his decision for the moment, but that if he had to decide right now he would favor retention of the kickoff.

One criticism of the play came from George Owen, former star at Harvard, who said he remembered a game in which three men, including himself, were hurt in runbacks of kickoffs. "Do not let them tell you kickoffs are not the most dangerous plays in the game," he was quoted as saying.

Morrison Favors Play.

W. C. Crowell of Philadelphia, member of the rules committee from the Second district, said tonight he "wouldn't care to take a definite stand until whatever objections opponents of the kickoff have are laid before me."

"The rules committee," he added, "always has favored a minimum of danger. If serious kickoff objections obtain I feel the committee as a whole would act upon it. I hadn't heard of any agitation against the kickoff."

Ray Morrison, coach of Southern Methodist and representative of the Sixth district, said he was in "favor of retaining the kickoff exactly as it is."

"I consider it one of the most thrilling plays of football," he said, "but I am in favor of the complete elimination of the flying wedge, which I consider the most dangerous play in football."

LEAD AGGIES EAST

THREE FOOTBALL SQUADS STOP FOR DRILL IN CHICAGO

Coach Bo McMillan and the Kansas State college football squad got an unexpected break yesterday when they stopped off in Chicago, en route to Morgantown, W. Va., where they will meet West Virginia Saturday.

The University of Mississippi squad, on its way to meet Marquette university at Milwaukee, also stopped off for a drill at Soldiers' field, and a dummy scrimmage between the teams was arranged. The Loyola [New Orleans] squad which meets the University of Detroit, reached the stadium in time to watch the last few minutes of the Aggie-Mississippi practice.

THURNBLAD, CUE CHAMPION, LOSES TO KIECKHEFER

Augie Kieckhefer won the opening blocks of the 200 point match with Arthur Thurnblad, world three cushion champion, at the Kieckhefer Recreation yesterday. He now leads, 100 to 68, in 31 innings. Kieckhefer won in the afternoon, 50 to 39, in 32 innings, having a high run of 7 against Thurnblad's 6, and at night Kieckhefer triumphed, 50 to 29, in 39 innings, his high run being 7 to Thurnblad's 5. The last two blocks will be played today.

Michigan Looks for Brown Jug in Minneapolis

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—If Oscar Munson, equipment room manager at Minnesota, can come to Ann Arbor and find the missing little brown jug within an hour after arriving here he can produce the jug only by actually bringing it with him, W. Henry Hatch, equipment manager here, insists. In fact, Hatch is suspicious that the original jug, emblem of victory in the Michigan-Minnesota football series, is housed at Minneapolis—and has been since it disappeared from here.

Hatch, who has been property man here for 12 years, actually feels that his confrere at Minnesota was discouraged with the Gophers' prospects of reclaiming the jug this year and may have been implicated in bringing about its disappearance. "He took our water jug back in 1903 and told us to come and win it back if we wanted it," Hatch says. "Why couldn't he have taken it again?"

It was rumored here early today that the jug had been found in a storeroom at the Michigan union, but examination of the earthenware disclosed that it was only the jug that the union places on exhibition each year at the time of the Minnesota contest.

Shamrocks to Begin Season Here Nov. 26

The Shamrocks will open the 1931-'32 American league hockey season in Chicago on Thanksgiving night, Nov. 26, at the Chicago Stadium. This was announced yesterday by President T. J. Shaughnessy.

Announcement of the Shamrocks' opponents for the home opener will be made with the release of the schedule the first of next week. The green and white squad opens its foreign season Nov. 15 at Buffalo and repeats against the Majors on Nov. 17. Both clubs have new managers, Babe Dye heading the Shamrocks and Eddie Gatman the Buffalo club.

Shamrocks Now at Hamilton.

Manager Dye will take his team direct to Buffalo from Hamilton, Ont., where the Shamrocks are now in training.

The American league's board of referees was announced by President William F. Grant. The only regular member of last year's staff retained is Dr. E. J. O'Leary of Ottawa, Canada. The new regulars are W. A. [Bill] Shaver of Los Angeles and P. L. Traub of Regina, Sask. Shaver formerly worked games in western Canada and in the Pacific Coast league.

Helmer Grenner of Duluth and Cameron McKinnon of Chicago have been selected as reserve officials.

PLA-MORS BEGIN DRILL.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—The Kansas City Pla-Mors began training today for the 1931-'32 American league hockey season. Among the veterans who reported for duty were Pat Byrne, whose sale to the Montreal Maroons was blocked by a ruling of the National league. Most of last year's team, which finished second both in the regular season and in the playoffs, will be back.

CERMAK TO LEAD 200 NOTRE DAME ROOTERS TO GAME

Approximately 200 Notre Dame enthusiasts, headed by Mayor Cermak, will leave Chicago tonight to witness the game between the South Bend team and Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh tomorrow. They will occupy a special section of the Fort Pitt Limited of the Baltimore & Ohio leaving at 8:30.

The party will include Sheriff W. D. Meyering, Edward J. Kelly, Probate Judge Henry Horner, Bailiff A. J. Horan of the Municipal court, Edward J. Hughes, Paul Colianni and a number of other public officials. The arrangements have been made by State Senator George Maypole and Floyd M. Kenlay.

Mills Beat Cicero, 12 to 0; Lawless Scores Twice

Tony Lawless scored two touchdowns in the last quarter to give the Mills semi-pro football team a 12 to 0 victory over the Cicero Boosters at Mills stadium last night. Lawless intercepted a pass and ran 45 yards for the first touchdown and scored again on a three yard plunge.

OHIO STATE FANS WILL CONTRIBUTE TO ROCKNE FUND

Columbus, O., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Columbus football fans will contribute to the Knute Rockne memorial fund Nov. 7 at the Ohio stadium when Ohio State university celebrates homecoming day by meeting the U. S. Naval academy football team.

The Ohio State university athletic board, working in cooperation with the local committee, today granted permission for a memorial service to Rockne between halves of the homecoming game.

Savoldi Begins Training for Stadium Bout

Jumpin' Joe Savoldi, former Notre Dame football star, arrived in Chicago yesterday and went to Howard's gymnasium to begin training for his appearance Monday night on the world's championship wrestling program at the Chicago stadium. Addition of Savoldi to the card, sponsored by the benefits division of the joint emergency relief fund, rounds out the program.

Ed [Strangler] Lewis, who has challenged all comers to meet him for the disputed heavyweight title, and Wladek Zbyszko, Polish giant, will clash for the world's championship. The winner will be recognized as world's champion, Gen. John V. Clinnin, chairman of the Illinois athletic commission and president of the National Boxing association, has announced.

Charlie [Midget] Fisher, world's light heavyweight champion, will defend his title against Zack Malkov, Rogers Park motorcycle policeman.

Just who Savoldi will meet the committee in charge has not made known. Even Savoldi does not know, but the Notre Dame plunger, who has been winning with regularity, doesn't seem to care.

Another newcomer, Joe Osterpovitch, Michigan giant, clashes with Everett Marshall, Pacific coast favorite, in the semi-windup, and Lou Talaber, former middleweight champion, and George Schwaab, clash in another bout. The committee still is hopeful of getting King Levinsky, and Johnny Meyers, former middleweight mat champion, into the ring in a mixed boxing-wrestling bout.

Allen East, Ex-Maroon Track Captain, Marries

Allen East, captain of the University of Chicago track team last year, was married last night to Miss Dorothy Jenkins at the Joseph Bond chapel on the university campus. Mrs. East is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam R. Jenkins, 5219 Kenwood avenue. East is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. East, 5220 Harper avenue.

BATTALINO AND MASTRO LAUNCH TITLE BOUT WORK

Bat Battalino and Earl Mastro yesterday began training for their world's featherweight championship bout at the Stadium next Wednesday, although Earl's workout was considerably lighter than the champion's. Bat boxed four rounds at Howard's, one each with Casper Leon, Harry Fierro, Wayne Stewart and Billy Gladstone. Manager Sam Plan said that Mastro would not begin boxing at Brown's gym until tomorrow.

Johnny Balma, who received a broken jaw early last summer, will be starting a comeback tonight when he meets Freddie Eller of Louisville in one half of the double windup of Promoter Billy Capak's boxing show tonight at the West Side Eagles' arena, 52d avenue and Madison street. Danny Delmont and Jimmy Lundy continue their rivalry in the other eight round attraction.

Paul Stager, 112 pounder, will meet Dave White in one of the eight bouts on the amateur program of the Northwest Lions opening boxing show of the season tonight at 4300 West North avenue. Joey Kleko will meet Ralph Tober, while Larry Strong faces Joe Italia.

Hank Kastman and Leo Ranieri, local lightweights, will meet in the windup of the amateur card tonight at the Merry Garden arena, Sheffield and Belmont avenues. Jack Lund and Frank Knipper are promoting the show. Bud Marcy, Crane college boxer, meets Barney Hassan in the semi-windup.

4 MATCH NOSES IN CLOSE FINISH AT HAWTHORNE

Calf Roper's Is Bit Longer than Ironsides',

BY FRENCH LANE.

An old-fashioned thriller, with four noses apart at the winning post, tested the vision of the placing judges at Hawthorne yesterday at the end of the six furlong Deep Lake purse.

In the most exciting finish of the Hawthorne fall season Calf Roper got the decision over Ironsides, Flag Bearer was placed third and Hot Shot was out of the money just by a fraction of an inch.

So close were the sprinters grouped that the placing judges could have given the decision to any of the four leaders and escaped without being mobbed. Calf Roper had been the favorite at 3 to 2, so most of the folks in the crowd of 12,000 who braved very disagreeable weather were of the opinion that the placing judges are men of very keen eyesight.

It wasn't a very exciting battle in the early stages. Flag Bearer was out in front by a comfortable margin and Hot Shot was second well in advance of all the others. Ironsides and Calf Roper did not begin to make up much ground until the field was half way down the stretch.

Ironsides Running Fast.

Then they pulled up on even terms with the two leaders and for the last sixteenth of a mile the four raced neck and neck apart with Calf Roper getting his decision over Ironsides only in the last jump. Ironsides appeared to be running fastest of all when they hundered past the line of finish.

Calf Roper raced in the purple and white jacket of Jim Norris of Chicago and was ridden by the veteran Frankie Chiavetta. The youngster, J. W. Frye, was in the saddle on Ironsides and from the dirty look he gave the placing judges when he came back to unsaddle he must have thought he won the race.

Calf Roper and the Jim Norris luck had so many backers that the son of High Time paid only $4.94 to win, $3.10 to place and $2.62 to show. He ran the six furlongs in 1:12 3-5, the second fastest race of the fall season here.

Sharing honors with Calf Roper was the Chicago bred filly, Volta Maid, which races for L. M. Severson. She took the most stylish band of 2 year olds in Chicago into camp in the Wellington purse, beating such a flyer as Colonial Belle, owned by Tony Pelletteri of New Orleans, by a length. Oscillation was a half length back in third place.

Early Speed Aids Volta Maid.

This was probably the most notable triumph Volta Maid has scored this season, although she has always been highly regarded. It was her extreme early speed which brought her the victory, for Colonial Belle came from far back in the run down the stretch and was closing so fast within the shadow of the finish line that it looked like she might have won if the race had been longer.

But Volta Maid hung on with considerable courage, and when she caught the judges' eye paid her backers $5.76 for a two dollar ticket. Jockey Gilbert rode her and was injured so severely when she swerved into the inner rail soon after the finish that he had to cancel the remainder of his riding engagements.

IT'S ONE ALIAS AFTER ANOTHER FOR MARSH DUCK

Makes Hunters Enlarge Their Vocabularies.

BY BOB BECKER.

Autumn brings a new language to the marshes because the ducks which migrate have dozens of different names by which they are known in various parts of the country. For example, a waterfowl hunter going into a certain part of the north country may hear about the "Trilby duck" and think that some one has discovered a new species, whereas the name Trilby duck is just another alias for the pintail or sprig of Illinois.

This is just one illustration of the enlarged vocabulary which the waterfowl hunter must have as he travels over the country. Some of the favorite or more common species of waterfowl have literally dozens of names, many of which are nothing short of ridiculous.

Here Are Three Common Names.

Right now in Illinois there are quite a number of spiketails, sprigs or pintails. These three names are quite common for the long tailed duck which is such a favorite among sportsmen. Certainly it is one of our favorite ducks and we would rather watch the flight of pintails around a blind and decoys than most any other species of puddler duck. In one part of the north the biological survey tells us that the pintail is known as the Trilby duck, a new name to us. Down in Florida we have heard of this bird as the picket-tail or gray widgeon.

In North Carolina don't be surprised if a marsh hunter talks about a neck-twister. That's your old friend, the pintail or sprig. In New York they have given this bird several names, including pent-tail, pile start, and spindle tail. In Manitoba, hunters sometimes call 'em smokers. In Nebraska the pintail often goes as the spike. And then we have pigeon-tail, sea pheasant, and water pheasant as other names for this waterfowl.

Shoveler Has Many Nicknames.

But one of the funniest names ever given a duck is that pinned on the despised shoveler or spoonbill duck, one of the handsomest birds, as far as plumage is concerned, that we have in North America. In the west some sportsmen actually call this bird soup-lips. A few more local names given this duck are as follows: Laughing mallard, spoon billed teal, souchet (which means blockhead), mule duck, mud lark, spoon billed widgeon, scooper, and mesquin.

BEGIN TAKING MONEY OUT OF HIDING PLACES

Hoarded Funds Back in Circulation.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The American people have got over their scare about everything going to pot and have stopped hoarding money. This is indicated in the weekly federal reserve statements, issued late yesterday. The chief indication is the fact that the output of money, chiefly Federal Reserve bank notes, not only stopped expanding but actually declined.

In other words, the reserve system has been able to contract the amount of money in circulation because money that was being hoarded has again begun to come back into circulation. It was the first time in weeks that such contraction has been possible, as note circulation went up by leaps under the necessity of replacing money withdrawn for hoarding purposes.

The federal reserve board reported that money in circulation dropped $24,000,000 during the week ended Wednesday. But the extent to which hoarding has increased money in the last year is shown by the fact that the present total of $5,480,000,000 is still $1,054,000,000 more than a year ago. There has been no expansion in general trade to necessitate any particular expansion.

It is notable that practically all of the contraction in money has been in the form of gold and gold certificates, which are the "hoarders' delight." The decline in federal reserve notes during the last week was only $588,000, bringing the total outstanding to $2,383,948,000. Moreover, the Federal Reserve banks alone hold $2,736,421,000 in gold.

And just as Americans are getting over their scare, it also appears that Europeans are abandoning their "run" on the dollar. Our monetary gold stock declined only $49,000,000 in the last week, which was much less than the amount of gold exported in recent weeks. It stood at $4,287,000,000 on Wednesday. Yesterday brought a net increase of $3,689,300 in America's gold stock. While exports totaled $4,295,600, gold earmarked for foreign account declined $587,900 and $7,500,000 was received from Japan at San Francisco.

Drops Fastest in Chicago.

Perhaps the most cheerful news pertaining to the middle west was the indication that the fear of bank failures has now subsided. Federal reserve note circulation in the Chicago reserve district dropped $4,184,000, which is at a faster pace than shown by the rest of the country. Such money now totals $483,581,000, about half of which is estimated to represent hoarded money. It may be that this flow of money back into circulation will become accelerated.

With the return of hoarded money into circulation, the federal reserve system should be able to reverse the recent expansion of credit. In fact, it has done so in the last week. While the member banks increased their borrowings from the reserve banks by $18,369,000, this expansion was more than offset by the fact that the reserve banks contracted credit by selling $44,286,000 of bankers' acceptances. Rediscounts now total $716,680,000 and bankers' bills $724,680,000. The reserve banks made little change in their holdings of government securities, which now total $726,959,000.

Total reserves of the system declined $24,543,000 in the last week but still stand at $2,902,851,000. The ratio of reserves to liabilities stands at 59.9 per cent this week, which is exactly the percentage shown a week ago.

Brokers' Loans at New Low.

Brokers' loans declined in the last week to a new low level at $869,000,000, according to the reserve board's weekly report. The total marks a decline of $15,000,000 for the week and also $1,643,000,000 from a year ago, when the figure was $2,512,000,000. The New York banks reduced their own loans by $9,000,000, interior banks withdrew $5,000,000, and nonbanking lenders took down $1,000,000.

The New York Federal Reserve bank made no change yesterday in its 3½ per cent rediscount rate.

Bethlehem Pays Dividend; Shows Third Quarter Loss

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 29.—Directors of the Bethlehem Steel corporation surprised the financial district after the close of trading on the stock exchange today by declaring the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share, due at this time. Wall street generally had expected poor earnings would cause the company to omit the customary payment for the final quarter.

In view of the apprehension over the dividend the common shares had fallen in trading on the stock exchange to a new low for the bear market, below $23 a share. The stock finished at 24, up ½.

Operations for the third quarter resulted in a net loss of $1,502,802, compared with net income of $1,542,743, or $1.45 a share, on the preferred stock in the preceding three months, and with $3,783,524, or $3 cents a share, on the 2,200,000 outstanding common shares in the corresponding period of last year.

Nine Months' Profit.

Net income for the first nine months of the year amounted to $1,892,683, equal to $1.89 a share on the preferred stock, compared with $21,552,406, or $5.09 a share, on the common stock in the first three quarters of 1930.

Current operations were being maintained at about 32 per cent of capacity, Eugene G. Grace, president, said after the directors' meeting. He added that unfilled orders at the end of September amounted to $48,262,342, compared with $57,334,794 at the end of June, and with $64,045,053 on the corresponding date of 1930. He took a more optimistic view of the industry's future as a result of recent wage adjustments and indications of an improved demand.

Directors declared the quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share on common, the same as three months ago, while the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 was declared on preferred stock.

Railway Omits Payment.

Directors of the Central Railroad of New Jersey today omitted the quarterly dividend of $2 a share due on the common stock at this time. The action marked the first break in the regular $8 annual rate on the stock in nearly thirty years.

The following statement was issued by the company:

"As the Central Railroad of New Jersey has already paid during 1931 dividends amounting to $8 a share, the board of directors, at its meeting today, decided to omit the dividend usually paid on Nov. 15."

The dividends paid so far this year have been three regular quarterly dividends of $2 each and one semi-annual extra of $2 a share, a total of $8, compared with four regular quarterly payments of $2 and two semi-annual extras of $2, or a total of $12 paid last year. The extra $2 was omitted in July this year.

Earnings of Jersey Central last year were $10.33 a share, compared with indicated earnings of $4 in the 12 months ended Aug. 31. Central Railroad of New Jersey was the third adverse dividend action by a large carrier this week. Illinois Central omitted its common dividend after continuous payments since 1855; Pennsylvania railroad reduced its rate for the second time this year in a cut from $3 annually to $2.

Liquidating Dividend.

Unions Mills, Inc., declared a liquidating dividend of $7 a share on its common. Early this year a liquidating dividend of $10 a share was distributed.

Pacific Fire Insurance company declared a quarterly dividend of $1 a share. In the previous quarter $1.50 was paid. Brooklyn Fire Insurance company, which paid 30 cents quarterly in March and 25 cents quarterly in the second quarter, omitted its dividend for the third quarter. United States Stores corporation declared a dividend of $1 a share on account of the quarterly dividend of $1.75 per share on the first preferred stock, placing dividends 75 cents in arrears on this issue.

Wagner Electric corporation declared a quarterly dividend of 12½ cents a share on the common stock, placing the issue on a 50 cents annual basis, compared with $1.50 paid previously.

F. W. Woolworth & Co., Ltd., British subsidiary of the American company, yesterday announced an initial interim dividend of 1s 6d upon its common stock.

FIELD ESTATE TO MODERNIZE 10 STORY BLDG.

212 West Jackson to Be Rebuilt.

BY AL CHASE.

One of the most cheering and significant pieces of construction news in many weeks came yesterday from the trustees of the Marshall Field estate, who announced that bids will be taken within ten days for modernizing and rebuilding the entire ten story structure at 212-20 West Jackson boulevard into a modern office building. Graham, Anderson, Probst & White are the architects. The property fronts 106 feet on the boulevard, is 166 feet deep, and is just east of and adjoining the former office building of the Chicago and North Western railroad.

It is stated that the rejuvenation of this old timer will be completed by Dec. 31. It probably will cost in the neighborhood of $250,000. Already the second, third, and fourth floors have been leased by the Gunthorp-Warren Printing company, now at 132 South Clark street.

All New Equipment.

The exterior of the first two floors will be of polished black granite and the remaining stories will remain brick. New, high speed elevators will be installed, new stairways will be built, and new plumbing and new wiring are to be used throughout the building.

The first floor will be rented for shops. There is about 18,000 square feet of rentable area to a floor, or a total of approximately 200,000 square feet in the entire building, according to Frank M. Whiston, manager of the property.

Suburban Apartments Sold.

William Hargraves of Downers Grove has sold the Windsor Arms apartments, at Windsor avenue and Clifton street, Berwyn, to Walter Coles of 856 East 52d street, Chicago, for a reported $135,000. Arthur Moysey of Berwyn was broker.

The New Wabash Hotel company has made a new lease with the Straus National Bank and Trust company, receiver for the property, for the hotel part of the building at 1234-36 South Wabash avenue. The lease is for a term of twenty months from Oct. 1 at a term rental of $40,000, the company being given the option to renew at the same rental in the event the receiver remains in possession of the property at the time of expiration. Bernhard Stenge was attorney.

Manufacturers Await New British Tariff Schedules

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 29.—The threat of a new British tariff as a result of the overwhelming victory of the Conservative party in the English election was accepted with little alarm by leading American corporations, it is stated.

Until the threat is more clearly defined through the formulation of tariff schedules there is not likely to be any move on the part of manufacturers to hold the British market by establishing branches there, although many have had plans formulated for such a step if necessary.

If it is to be a tariff for revenue, one exporter pointed out, there may be no appreciable change in the volume of exports to the United Kingdom. If it is to be a protective tariff, it will be selective, and until the items are chosen no one will know what the handicap is.

Burden on Auto Industry.

The American automobile industry, for example, already is laboring against an impost of 33 1-3 per cent ad valorem duty in the United Kingdom. Manufacturers in British dominions receive a preference in a tariff of only 22 2-9 per cent. This has led to the establishment of plants for manufacturing or assembly of both in Great Britain by several American corporations, including General Motors, Ford, Willys-Overland, Chrysler and Hudson.

In 1930 $11,542,552 worth of automobiles and parts for assembly climbed over the British tariff wall from the United States and an additional $5,045,000 of parts and accessories. In the first eight months of this year only $4,147,725 in passenger cars, trucks and buses, and parts for assembly went over.

View of Tobacco Men.

The principal export executive of a large American tobacco company said that tobacco men generally feared British tariff action very little, one of the reasons for such a sentiment being the recent increase in the British duty on imported leaf tobacco, equivalent to an increase of 16 cents a pound, which took effect some three weeks ago. Another increase, it was felt, would be unlikely. The British are heavy importers of leaf tobacco, notably Virginian, but prefer their own brands of manufactured articles, such as cigarets and pipe tobacco, imports of which are relatively small.

"We believe," said this executive, "that any new tariff will be on finished luxury goods not now taxed, and that tariff duties on articles already heavily taxed, or raw materials which enter into British finished articles, will be avoided."

One American industry that contributes an important share to British trade is business equipment. Great Britain and Norway are virtually the only countries in which American products enjoy free entry at the present time.

Will Await Tariffs.

International Business Machines and Remington-Rand, Inc., both indicated today that they would hold plans in abeyance until the new tariffs, if any, are known.

J. A. Zellers, vice president of Remington-Rand and also chairman of the foreign trade extension committee of the National Association of Manufacturers, pointed out that tariffs have temporary dislocating effects but that in the long run the distribution of activity is not materially changed. Foreign manufacturers defeat American tariffs by establishing plants here and reciprocal movements of American manufacturers follow foreign tariffs.

Of his own company he said: "We have lived too long with the tariff problem to be disturbed unless the rate amounts to about 100 per cent on the wholesale price."

RILL TO MANAGE WESTERN OFFICE OF PENNSY RY.

John C. Rill has been named general manager of the Western region of the Pennsylvania railroad with headquarters in Chicago. Mr. Rill, who was formerly general superintendent of the railroad's eastern Ohio division, succeeds W. C. Higginbottom, who has been made general manager of the eastern division with headquarters in Philadelphia.

JOHN C. RILL.

Announcement of the changes was made here yesterday by H. E. Newcommet, Pennsylvania vice president. The changes were necessitated by the recent resignation of Walter S. Franklin, who was named president of the Wabash road. Mr. Franklin was succeeded as assistant to the vice president by R. K. Rochester, eastern region manager, who in turn is succeeded by Mr. Higginbottom.

Mr. Rill is one of the youngest general superintendents on the railroad, being 42 years of age. He has been in the employ of the system for 21 years, having started as a clerk in Bowie, Md.

FIND ATTENDANCE IS GROWING AT MOVIE THEATERS

Since the end of August motion picture theater attendance has recorded considerable improvement, under the combined influence of normal seasonal factors and the release of a far greater number of relatively high quality pictures, says the Standard Statistics company of New York, in a survey of the industry, which continues in part:

"It is probable that this more favorable trend will remain in force during early future months. Together with the substantial reduction in costs effected through numerous readjustments during recent months, these factors should result in considerable relative betterment in fourth quarter theater earnings. Nevertheless, because of the large scale decline in income witnessed during the spring and summer months, it is probable that aggregate profits for the full year 1931 will fall more than 30 per cent below those recorded in 1930.

"From a long term standpoint, the industry has made noteworthy strides during the last year in the establishment of an efficient basis of operating costs. While further headway in this direction undoubtedly can be accomplished, we now believe that the major problem of the industry lies in the direction of expanding gross revenues, if a satisfactory rate of return is to be established on present enlarged capitalizations."

BY FRED HARVEY.

New York, Oct. 29.—Popular interest in the stock market almost ticked down today. Nothing appeared in the news to give sentiment a fillip and the trading horizon was without the faintest sign of anything that might encourage further selling of importance. It was just another one of those days.

Only 1,300,000 shares changed hands and price changes were of little consequence. Some slight strength was manifested by the rails in the later dealings on reports that the railroad executives and leaders of the different carrier unions had been talking over the matter of possible wage cuts and that the brotherhood men had agreed that some adjustment seemed to be necessary under the circumstances. Obviously no settlement can be effected without the agreement of the rank and file of workers, and it is pretty generally believed that serious difficulties are in store when the negotiations reach this advanced stage.

Benefit from Report.

However, the fact that the matter was being discussed seemed to provide a ray of hope and since the rails have long since been sold to a frazzle traders here and there apparently thought the possibilities worth a gamble. Atchison, New York Central, New Haven and Erie were among the issues to benefit. The upturns ranged from a fraction to more than 2 points.

Jersey Central took a header for 8 points on its dividend omission—for the first time since 1888. Union Pacific fell below 160, but climbed back above the line in time for the finish. Some of the inactive members of the group such as Coast line and Texas & Pacific dropped abruptly, the last named losing 14 points. Norfolk & Western lost 2¾ points.

Copper shares didn't fancy the new turn taken by the curtailment negotiations, with the idea of a worldwide

STOCKHOLDERS OF CLOSED BANK PAY ASSESSMENT

Some Liabilities Are Scaled Down: Report.

Stockholders of the defunct Washington Park National bank, which was closed on June 8, are wondering how many of the stockholders have paid the 100 per cent assessment levied by Controller of the Currency Pole. All holders of the $600,000 capital stock of the bank were called on to pay $100 on each share of stock by R. B. McCandless, receiver. They were given the privilege of paying in four installments, due on Sept. 4, Oct. 4, Nov. 4 and Dec. 4.

While some of the stockholders have met the assessments, it was reported in La Salle street yesterday that others have complained of inability to make the full payment provided by the national bank laws.

Hear of Compromises.

It was said some of this latter class have effected compromises with the receiver by which their assessments have been scaled down considerably, and even more than half in some cases. Requests for the names of stockholders who have had their liabilities scaled down are said to have been refused by Mr. McCandless on the ground that such information can be obtained only from the controller of the currency in Washington.

The Washington Park National bank was identified with the Foreman-State banks and its closing followed the absorption of the Foreman-State banks by the First National and First Union Trust and Savings banks last June. The Foreman family and others interested in the Foreman-State banks were large holders of Washington Park National stock.

25% Liquidating Dividend.

Mr. McCandless announced last night that a liquidating dividend of 25 per cent, amounting to about $750,000, will be paid to depositors within a month. It will go to about 20,000 depositors. Checks are being prepared and will be sent out as soon as authorized by the controller of the currency.

Attribute Drop in Pound to Demand for Dollar

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Oct. 29.—A sudden setback to the pound in leading foreign exchanges here today which unexpectedly followed the national government's victory at the polls is held to be due to a genuine commercial demand for dollars and other currencies and not to any untoward political reaction. The New York rate declined from $3.90¾ to $3.86½ and the Paris rate from 99⅛ francs to 98¾ francs.

From Sept. 25, when the New York exchange touched the lowest point at $3.40, the principal exchanges had moved steadily upward. There have, however, been recent signs of special buying of dollars here, possibly for future repayments in the United States.

Melville Shoe Corp. to Open 50 New Retail Units

Ward Melville, president of Melville Shoe corporation, said the company will open fifty new retail outlets by next spring. He made it clear that the company does not expect any sensational immediate upturn, but said that, on the contrary, it looks for business to continue at present or only slightly higher levels for some time to come, improving gradually and in the ratio of restored public confidence.

EXPECT I. C. C. WILL GRANT MODIFICATION OF ITS RATE RULING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 29.—Acting on the assumption that the interstate commerce commission will formally accept modifications proposed by railroad chiefs in the commission's temporary relief program, embodying moderate rate advances on certain commodities, executives began setting up the machinery today to handle the finances.

The fact that the railroads went ahead with their plans after the conference yesterday between a committee of executives and nine members of the commission was interpreted in Wall street as assurance that the government's regulatory body had shown a disposition to meet the suggestions of railway heads as outlined at the recent Atlantic City convention. In any event, the roads were prepared to demonstrate their good intentions by establishment of an organization to carry out the program.

Rail men here made it clear, however, that the commission's program would not be accepted unless the advances to weaker lines were designated as loans instead of outright gifts. This is not the time, it was pointed out, to encourage adoption in this country of a "dole system" by government sponsorship of "gifts to wastrels."

Immediately after an agreement has been reached on the rate question railroad executives plan to take up the wage problem. It is expected they will first propose to the powerful brotherhoods that a substantial reduction in wages be accepted voluntarily. Whether or not this proposal will meet with firm resistance is uncertain. In some quarters it is believed the unions would be willing to accept a moderate reduction if an agreement could be reached with the roads.

U. S. STEEL PUTS 4,000 WORKERS BACK ON JOBS

Pittsburgh, Oct. 29.—(AP)— the industrial back-to-normalcy movement was given further impetus in the Pittsburgh district today with the announcement that between 3,000 and 4,000 men will resume work at the Edgar Thompson plant of the United States Steel corporation at Braddock on Monday.

The men will return to their posts in every department of the works and begin immediately on a huge order for rails, which, officials believe, will keep the plant operating at 70 per cent of capacity well into December.

Farrell Opposes Plan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—Two more witnesses appeared today before the special senate committee of which Senator Robert M. LaFollette [radical Rep., Wis.] is chairman, to oppose the senator's suggestion of a national economic council.

James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel corporation, informed the committee that he did not believe such a council could aid the steel industry in long range planning, and that, on the other hand, a trade organization might render better service provided the anti-trust laws might be so modified as to permit of its creation.

Eugene Meyer Jr., governor of the federal reserve board, declared that some type of coordinating body might help in outlining the government's fiscal policy, but that on the whole intimate associations between members of various government boards and agencies would accomplish more than formal contacts.

BONDS, STOCKS, COMMERCIAL PAPER

100 SO. LA SALLE STREET, CHICAGO • NEW YORK AND OTHER CITIES

Offer of the Van Sweringen Corporation to Acquire until December 1, 1931, its Outstanding Five Year 6% Gold Notes for $500 in Cash and 20 Shares of Common Stock for Each $1,000 Principal Amount of Notes.

At the time of the issuance of the $30,000,000 five year 6% Gold Notes of this corporation, it acquired certain securities having a then market value of $15,000,000. These securities and any securities substituted therefor are termed in the indenture pursuant to which the notes are issued "segregated assets." Contemporaneously, Messrs. O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen covenanted that whenever the current market value of the "segregated assets" was less than 50% of the principal amount of the five year notes outstanding, they would assign and deliver to the corporation readily marketable securities (with the right of substitution at any time) to an amount sufficient at current market value to make up such deficiency. The indenture pursuant to which the five year notes were issued provides that if $15,000,000 of such notes are retired and cancelled, by the application of the proceeds of the "segregated assets" and/or "assigned securities," the covenant of Messrs. O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen terminates and any remaining balance of the "assigned securities" may be withdrawn.

The corporation has recently acquired $3,766,000 of these five year notes, part of the "segregated assets" having been used to provide the required funds. These notes are held in the corporation's treasury uncancelled. There are, therefore, now outstanding in the hands of the public $26,234,000 of these notes and the corporation has "segregated assets" and "assigned securities" at present consisting of $13,440,681.86 in cash and United States government obligations taken at current market values.

The market value of the corporation's five year notes has shared in the general decline in the market value of securities. The corporation has available sufficient cash and United States government obligations, making up the "segregated assets" and "assigned securities," to provide at this time cash equal to 50% of the principal amount of the outstanding five year notes. In the belief that it will be mutually beneficial to such noteholders and to the corporation alike, the corporation has arranged that each $1,000 note deposited with the New York Trust Company, as depositary, on or before December 1, 1931, will be purchased at a flat price of $500 in cash and 20 shares of the corporation's common stock. The $500 cash payment will be made from the "segregated assets" and "assigned securities." The stock to be delivered to the noteholders accepting the above offer will be furnished by the Van Sweringen interests from their present holdings of the entire outstanding 1,744,800 shares of common stock of the corporation. The November 1, 1931 interest coupon will be paid in the usual way on presentation.

When $15,000,000 of the notes are so acquired, inclusive of those now held in the treasury as aforementioned, they will be retired and cancelled, and thereupon the remaining "assigned securities" will be withdrawn by the Van Sweringen interests in accordance with the terms of the indenture under which the notes are issued. However, in order that all noteholders may have equal opportunity, the offer (pursuant to arrangements with the Van Sweringen interests who will make the "assigned securities" available for such purposes) will remain open until December 1, 1931. The notes acquired after the retirement of $15,000,000 will be acquired not by the corporation but by the Van Sweringen interests. Any notes so purchased by the Van Sweringen interests, together with any notes not acquired pursuant to this offer, will remain outstanding on a parity as obligations of the corporation. Balance sheets of the corporation and of its subsidiary, the Cleveland Terminals Building Company, as of September 30, 1931, will be furnished on request.

Noteholders desiring to avail themselves of this offer should deposit their notes for this purpose with the New York Trust Company, at its principal office, 100 Broadway, New York City, with May 1, 1932 and all subsequent coupons attached. Letters transmitting such notes to the depositary should set forth the name and address of the person in whose name stock is to be issued. Notes so deposited will be purchased and paid for immediately and the stock to be issued to the depositing noteholders will be delivered as soon as practicable. The November 1, 1931 coupon will be paid in the usual way on presentation to Guaranty Trust Company of New York.

Dated at Cleveland, Ohio.

CHICAGO STOCK PRICES RESIST SELLING TREND

Insull Utility Debentures Feature Trading.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Closing quotations of stocks on the Chicago exchange yesterday represented only minor variations as compared with the previous day's final prices. Trading was dull and the trend irregularly downward. News was of an indifferent character as to inspire no great enthusiasm on either side of the market.

On the whole, the active stocks appeared to show more resistance to the moderate volume of liquidation with which they were faced than they had earlier in the week.

Buying Reduces Loss.

The activity in the Insull Utility debentures was one of the features of the day's trading. On early transactions the issue broke through 50, again off around 3 points. Good buying came into the market, however, lifting the price back to within a fraction of the previous closing quotation. The turnover in the issue represented debentures of a par value of $112,000. The common stock moved in sympathy with the issue, selling off slightly on comparatively heavy trade.

Bendix Aviation was quiet following the issuance of the third quarter and nine months' earnings report. Net for the September quarter was $278,630 after all charges, equivalent to 12 cents a share on the 2,096,663 shares of capital stock outstanding. These earnings, which include certain nonrecurring income, are in excess of profit for the third quarter of 1930, when the company showed net available for the capital stock of $167,347, or 8 cents a share. In the second quarter of 1931 the company earned $713,688, or 36 cents a share.

Ahead of Last Year.

Net earnings for the first nine months of the year were reported at $1,787,975, including extraordinary nonrecurring items of $411,000. This is equivalent to 85 cents a share. In the first nine months of 1930 the company had net profit of $1,718,714, or 81 cents a share, on the capital stock outstanding.

Mr. Buettner in his letter to stockholders said that orders for delivery in 1932 for 3,000,000 feet of flexible tubing, a new product of the company, have been received. The new product extends the company's operations in the industrial and automotive fields, he asserted.

Iglehart, of the Baltimore firm of that name, was purchased in the name of Francis I. Dupont for $185,000. One of Herman D. Kountze, of the defunct firm of Kountze Bros., investment bond dealers, was transferred in the name of Ridley Watts, Jr., of Carlisle, Mellick & Co. The price of the latter membership was not given.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 2,000; hogs, 23,000; sheep, 16,000.

All classes of live stock arrived in smaller numbers at leading market centers yesterday, but only cattle responded to the influence of light receipts. Cattle supplies were smallest for Thursday in three weeks, and buoyed up by a better call for beef, top prices kept on establishing new high prices for the season.

Several carloads of 1,193@1,234 lb steers including some Wisconsin university experimental cattle reached the new $11.50 top, which stands highest since the middle of last February and within 25c of the highest point since January. Two weeks ago similar cattle were selling at $10.50 and at the low time of the year best weighty beeves went below $8.00.

Buyers scrambled for the best grades of steers on yesterday's market and some orders for highly finished stock will have to go over for next week, due to the shortage in the supply of that class. Gains of 25@35c were general and most sales of good grades are 50@75c above a week ago. Owing to the scarcity of top kinds many eastern order buyers have been going into the medium grades and some of these are selling $1.00 above the low spot Monday.

November Offers at $4.75.

Contracts for November light weight hogs were offered at $4.75 on the futures market yesterday, but no bids were made. December contracts were offered at $5.00 and January hogs carried bids of $4.50. March medlums were offered at $6.50 and March heavy were offered at $6.00.

Confrasted to the firm position of the cattle market, hogs uncovered a weak undertone when they went into a slump on light supplies directly after opening fairly active at 10@20c higher prices. Support on the bulge was lacking and only a limited number sold at the upturn. Weakness spread quickly and in less than an hour's time the advance was wiped out, with later sales showing 10@25c loss compared with the general market Wednesday.

Average Price Unchanged.

The extreme top went up 10c at the opening, prime 239@280 lb averages bringing $5.35, while the general average was unchanged at $4.95, only 10c above the bottom for the last twenty-three years. Some of the 8,000 hogs left at the close were being held off the market, in hopes that colder weather might stimulate enough demand for fresh pork to inject strength into the hog market before the end of the week.

The trend of the hog market has been lower most of the time during the last two weeks and prices are hovering only a little above the lowest level for this time of year since 1902. Quality is good and it is seasonal for light weight hogs to be moving at this time of year, but many attribute the large receipts the past few weeks to the cholera "scare" and also to the fact that farmers need cash. Receipts at leading markets this month are running about 10 per cent larger than a year ago.

Lambs Mostly Steady.

The market for fat lambs failed to show much strength, although spots were a little stronger than on Wednesday's session and some of the best "sorts" sold to slightly better advantage. A few natives to city butchers reached $6.25@6.40, while larger weights refused to pass $5.75.

Exceptionally good Colorado range lambs sold at $6.15@6.40. Aged ewes and yearlings were mostly steady. Feeding lambs are in good demand, but prices have worked down fully 50c since a week ago and most of the good to choice feeding lambs are selling at $4.50@4.75. Only occasionally does the country buyer have to pay $5.00 now.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 2,000 cattle, 23,000 hogs and 16,000 sheep, against 1,357 cattle, 19,547 hogs, and 6,347 sheep the previous Friday and 1,953 cattle, 27,531 hogs, and 19320 sheep a year ago.

HEAVY BUYING OF WHEAT ABSORBS PROFIT TAKING

Decline Is Reported in Russian Exports.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The wheat market was a big broad affair with public participation a factor in holding prices within a range of 1¼@1⅝c yesterday. Buying by commission houses, mainly in 5,000 and 10,000 bu lots absorbed heavy profit taking sales of May from 62 down to 61¼c, the inside figure of the day.

Later there was general buying which carried prices up sharply, due to reports of a large export business, with around 2,000,000 bu Manitobas and hard winters claimed to have been taken in all position.

Had it not been for extensive profit taking by local and commission house longs the wheat market might have advanced to a new high for the season, but the May only touched 63⅜c on the bulge, or ⅛c under the outside figure on Wednesday. No. 1 hard winter in the sample market, however, sold at 61c, the highest price since late in June. Late weakness in the stock market had a depressing effect on futures and the finish was at net losses of ⅜@⅝c with December, 57¼ to 57⅝c; March, 60¾@61c; May, 62⅜ to 62½c, and July, 62⅞ to 63c.

Russia Cancels Sales.

European importing countries came into the market for liberal quantities of North American cash wheat and it was claimed during the day that a tremendous business had been done in Manitobas at the Pacific coast with the Orient. Winnipeg, however, wired that fresh export business at the Pacific could not be confirmed. Cables from Europe indicated that Russia had been cancelling wheat for forward shipment and exports form that country during the past week were only 2,088,000 bu, and from all Black sea ports, 4,384,000 bu compared with 4,528,000 bu the previous week.

Speculative buying was reported in cables as having been responsible for the bulge of 3⅝@3¾c in Buenos Aires on Wednesday, part of which was credited to London account on the belief that England would impose an import duty, and nearly cash wheat was in active demand in consequence. The market there was firm early, but weakened later and closed 1⅞@2¼c lower with December at 48¾c. Liverpool gained ⅛@1¼d for the day, the advance more than offsetting weakness in sterling with December closing at 61⅝c with exchange figures at $3.87.

Winnipeg wheat showed independent strength due to persistent buying by strong interests and closed ⅞@1¼c higher with December finishing at 63⅜c in Canadian currency which was about 9⅛ per cent under American.

While reports that France was after American wheat have been officially denied, the rumor will not down, and according to a Washington press dispatch, Chairman Stone of the Federal Farm board was quoted as saying the prospective purchases by that country had not as yet reached the stage of definite negotiations. The German government was also said to be considering buying additional supplies of American hardwinter. Mr. Stone said he had heard a German offer was pending, but none had been received as yet.

Corn Leads Grain Upturn.

Corn developed independent strength and with an enlargement in outside buying combined with closing of spreads with other grains the close was ⅝@1c higher with all deliveries selling at a new high on the current movement, showing ⅞@1⅛c above the recent low at the outside. December closed at 39⅝ to 39¾c; May, 44⅜ to 44½c, and July, 45⅝c.

There was no material pressure on the corn market despite the upturn, either from cash or futures, and sentiment as a whole was more favorable to the buying side. Selling against offers was a factor in checking the bulge. Country offerings were small and the shipping demand fair.

Commission house buying of all deliveries of oats was effective in bringing about a strong rally in that grain after an early dip and the finish was ⅛@⅜c higher with December, 24¼c; May and July, 27¼c. A little export business was reported at the seaboard in both oats and barley, and futures of the latter grain at Winnipeg gained 1¼@1⅝c for the day.

Trade in rye was light and the close unchanged at ¼c higher with December 42c and May, 47c. Nothing was heard regarding export demand. Black sea exports for the week aggregated $53,000 bu. Czechoslovakia is expected to import nearly 20,000,000 bu this season owing to a poor crop.

HIDE FUTURES

Trading in hide futures on the New York Hide exchange was fairly active. The market closed from 4 points lower to 5 points higher. Total sales, 2,360,000 lbs. Prices follow:

SUGGEST CURB ON SALES OF COPPER METAL

Give Plan to Take Place of Output Curtailment.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 29.—The informal exchange of views which representatives of the world's largest copper producers have been making for a week or more in this city have gone far enough to develop a real difference of opinion on what is the right method to correct the unsatisfactory operating conditions of the industry. The disquieting idea that has crept into the discussions, and one which some copper men fear might stand in the way of any agreement, is that a marketing plan rationing the amount of metal which the world would find available for purchase, might well take the place of a program of curtailing production.

Can Prevent Agreement.

This disturbing element was injected into the informal discussions just at a time when the proponents of worldwide copper curtailment thought they were getting close enough together to insure satisfactory results from a round table conference of all interested parties. They counted without a certain faction in the copper industry which has never been fully "sold" on the idea of curtailment. This faction, incidentally, represents a no mean percentage of the world's production and can, if it holds out for its own method of solving the copper problem, stand in the way of any kind of solution.

In theory the idea of cutting down the world's production of copper to a volume well enough under consumption to insure a profitable price for the metal, has impressed every one in the industry. When Emile Francqui, managing director of the Katanga mines and former finance minister of Belgium, arrived in this country in company with other important copper men to discuss the price situation with Americans it seemed that every one concerned was of the opinion that production should be curtailed to some extent. The only question was whether the producers could agree on their respective shares in the program.

Point to Past Examples.

But curtailment is always a painful thing, while even copper men, who have tried about every other cure, will avoid if there is any faint hope of another method of succeeding. According to well informed sources, some of the conferees insist that there is good chance for success in a scheme to pool all copper as it becomes available and feed it out to consumers just enough to stabilize the market.

Opponents of such a scheme, of course, are pointing to the experience of the rubber industry, the coffee producers and the farm board's attempt in the wheat and cotton markets. They hold that these efforts failed because they ran counter to economic laws and that a similar attempt in the case of copper would be deserving of no better success.

Why pay more than Household's low rate?

The Nationally known Household Loan Plan offers cash loans of $50 to $300 to husbands and wives at reasonable rates.

Household's rate on all loans above $100 is almost one-third lower than the maximum permitted by the small-loan law. We voluntarily established this low rate in 1928, and our customers have benefited ever since. This rate remains the same until the loan is paid off. It does not increase as the unpaid balance decreases.

For example:

The average monthly cost of a $200 loan, repaid in 20 equal monthly payments, is $2.63. This is the lowest cost in Chicago.
